United Church Meeting At Big Valley

Delegates to Coronation Presbytery of the United Church of Canada with pastoral oversight of 16823 persons, met at Big Valley on Feb. 21 and 22.

The 67 delegates endorsed a resolution similar to that of the United Farmers of Alberta, requesting the Government of Canada to ask the World Fair commission to invite the Chinese Peoples Government to enter an exhibit at Expo 67

Rev A G McCurdy of Stettler, Chairman, who had just returned from a Board Meeting in Toronto, in which Union with the Anglican Church was studied, so impressed upon the presbyters the need of more consideration to the proposed merger, that a special meeting of Presbytery is to be held, when the delegates will pay their own expenses.

Rev. A. M. McNeil, of Daysland, dealing with Rhodesia pointed out the gross inequality under which the negroes labor.

Mr. McNeil was selected to attend the Pacific Mission Conference this summer.

A FREE EXCHANGE OF IDEAS between Ministers and Laymen sparked the evening session. While thankful for the chance to serve, many Ministers feel they are being kept at a distance, especially in social functions. They felt that perhaps this may be due to opposition to the consumption of alchoic beverages Some felt that some Church people want to curb their freedom of speech and action on social issues

Lay people want Ministers to look upon them more as friends. They expect the Minister to be an example From Sermons, they want inspiration and food for thought They want the Ministers to come down from the pulpit, but not too far

Missionary and Maintenance Convenor, Rev. F. McPhee, revealed the final results of the whole Church's givings total $6,598,677 While this is an increase of 1.68% over the previous year, in terms of the value of the dollar, it is a decrease

Congratulation of Illumination Presbytery raised $26,710, which is an increase of $280 00

Probably for the first time in the history of the Canadian Church, the people as well as the Ministers are consulted in the proposed changes in the Services and Sacraments of our Church

The Presbyters turned down the inclusion of prayers for the Queen and the Royal Family as an integral part of the Lord's Supper

They also voted a return to the King James Version and endorsed the Revised Standard Version of the Bible Excluded also was an affirmation of belief in the physical ascension of Christ The inclusion of the Apostles Creed as an optional, was agreed upon

T C Graham met with council to discuss the 1966 machinery needs. He recommended that the Wagner tractor and scraper be traded on a larger Pusher with power shift, etc. and that one of the older Caterpillers be kept for doing odd jobs. He stated that in his opinion it was still possible for the present machinery to do the 1966 construction.

A. Whitehead also met with council to discuss the machinery situation at some length.

Considerable discussion took place regarding the areas being maintained and snow plowed by the various motor graders in the M.D. and it was generally agreed that considerable study should be made of the situation and changes instituted in the areas allotted to the motor graders

The meeting adjourned at 9:00 p m to meet again on Saturday, March 5th at 10:00 a.m.

See those giant wide doors? Handi-Van is easy to load and unload. Two portable doors may be specified, and then there are a number of extra window combinations available.

Handi-Van can turn in a 36.5 foot circle. Lets you move out of packed traffic and deliver your goods where and when you promised.

Look at all the space. Handi-Van measures 211 cu. ft. inside. Will hold up to a ton of payload. Loadspace length from engine housing back is over 92 inches.

The engine is a 120-hp workhorse. Powerglide is available.

The metal floor is built to shrug off a ton of load in fact, it's a heavy duty floor at no extra cost.

Handi-Van's body and loams are unitized. And the heavy-gauge steel has extra resistance to corrosion, giving you longer service.

You can see how great Handi-Van is from the back. But the most important thing is on the front.

It's that GMC nameplate that makes the difference. Not the pain itself of course, but what it represents. GMC has a reputation for Engineering Leadership. For instance: realizing most Handi-Vans would be city-operated and subject to road accidents and salt, GMC engineers started at the bottom. Sheet metal is exposed areas is first galvanized, then covered with aluminum paint, phosphated ... then, after all that, undercoated! No wonder Handi-Van stands up so well under the worst a Canadian winter has to offer. And no wonder GMC has earned that reputation for leadership. When you're thinking vans—think Handi-Van by GMC.

PRODUCTIVITY AND EDUCATION

Productivity and education — those are the twin themes running through the second annual review of the Economic Council of Canada, recently published. Says the Council, "productivity growth . . . is the key to economic growth and rising living standards and to maintaining a satisfactory international competitive position", and adds "even the goal of sustained high employment ultimately depends on adequate productivity growth".

With regard to education, the Council views it as a "crucially important factor contributing to economic growth and rising living standards" and also relates it to productivity and to the potential income of the average individual.

In a recent presentation to the Federal Cabinet, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce strongly emphasized, also, the need for a Canadian economy of productivity growth and advanced education among all Canadians as the best way to sustained economic growth and prosperity for all

LIQUID FERTILIZERS NOT ECONOMICAL!

The use of liquid fertilizers on cereal and forage crops in Alberta is not an economical proposition.

A. W. Gosstel, provincial Supervisor of Soils, reports that tests conducted in Alberta have shown that although liquid and granular fertilizers containing the same amount of plant nutrients are equally effective for increasing crop yields, the liquid fertilizers are not economical at current prices. He points out that the same amount of nutrients cost more than 5 times as much in the liquid as they do in the granular form.

Fertilizers, says Mr. Gosstel, should always be purchased on the basis of their price per pound of plant nutrient rather than on their price per ton. In Alberta the granular form of nitrogen, phosphorous and potassium costs approximately 5c, 9c and 8c a pound respectively. The cost of the equivalent amount of nitrogen, phosphorous and potassium in the liquid fertilizer 10-30-10 is 60c, 50c and 60c per pound.

FARM ACCOUNTING - ANALYSIS EFFICIENCY STATEMENTS

Farm Economics Branch, says the agreement between his department and the VLA is a step towards the standardization of farm accounting and analysis systems.

Farmers with VLA loans will gradually change over from their present accounting methods to the one used in the Prairie Provinces Account Book. This book is used by most farm business associations on the prairies.

This year, a pilot group of from 60 to 100 farmers will be helped by VLA credit advisers to adapt their records to analysis forms. Credit advisors will work with District Agriculturists and District Home Economists to become familiar with the procedures employed by the Farm Economics Branch in farm business analysis. Dr. Purnell says this service-group in record keeping systems by VLA farmers will be complete by 1968.

The request for the change in record analysis systems came from the VLA through their Regional Director F. W. Newton, and from the Federal Director R. Pawley.

Alberta's Agricultural Minister, Harry E. Strom, hailed the agreement as a step forward to federal-provincial co-operation in the interests of prairie farmers.

Weekly Devotion

In a few short weeks, spring will be here — officially! Each of us will be examining trees and shrubs for signs of life With the discovery of each bud, there will come a message of hope.

Since the first morning of civilization, men have examined trees and shrubs and discovered a message. Such a man was Jeremiah, a prophet who lived 2,600 years ago. In this man's country, the almond tree was the first to show signs of life in the spring. It was far ahead of the others. As Jeremiah examined the tree and saw life, the message came to him that, just as the almond tree would live over the re birth of spring, so God watches over His people.

Jeremiah, the sensitive prophet, was full of reservations and received their messages. He saw a shrub in the desert. It was an example of stunted growth, of undeveloped potential, and of hopelessness. The shrub of this story examined the soil in which the plant grew. The soil was parched and saturated with salt What could one expect from soil such as that?

Our friend's thoughts then turned to people. Weren't there men and women much like the shrub — people of stunted growth, of undeveloped potential, and of hopelessness? The "soil" which produced such people was a way of life that had no room for God, and which relied entirely on the capabilities of the soil. So, the prophet wrote. — "Cursed is the man who trusts in man, and makes flesh his arm, whose heart turns away from the Lord." (Jer. 17:5)

The prophet looked again. This time, he saw a tall tree that was in full foliage. It had been planted by water. Its roots were in good soil watered by a stream. The tree's potential had been developed. It could withstand drought and wind.

Again, the prophet thought of people. There were those whose roots were in the good "soil" of eternal love, righteousness, and justice. Their trust, or steadfast reliance on God, was in God. Those were the people who could endure the storms of life and still reach out and receive its blessings.

What kind of "soil" are we providing in our homes, our organizations, and our communities? This soil we provide will determine its products! Submitted by Rev. Don Leslie, Sedgewick-Lougheed-Morrin United Church.

LEGION HAM BINGO at KILLAM

MON., APRIL 4

"I.O.D.E. - 66 Years Old"

The I.O.D.E (Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire) celebrated its 66th birthday on February 13th.

The results of the work accomplished by the Order's 976 Chapters, penetrate to all corners of the Globe and, at Founder's Day meetings from coast to coast, the members can reminisce with pride on the growth of the Order from one woman's dream (Mrs. Clark Murray — the Founder) to the strong and outstanding reality which it is today. This National organization — a Canadian organization — raises and disburses annually over $1,000,000 for education, emergency and disaster relief.

In the field of service the I.O.D.E. continues to make a worthy contribution, both at home and abroad, amounting to approximately half a million dollars annually. The annual of $325,000 is spent on welfare in Canada, and $110,000 on relief supplies to the needy which are shipped to Europe, Africa, Korea, The West Indies, Hong Kong and India. This includes the sponsorship of destitute and refugee children.

In the past year six hundred cases were shipped to the emerging countries. The contents of the cases represent the combined labour of work spent by I.O.D.E. members across Canada. Each province has a workroom, staffed by members who sort and pack the handmade quilts, crossword, layettes, afghans and toys for shipping. Members give countless hours of service to sanitoria for the Blind, Retarded Children, Cerebral Palsy, work in hospitals, Blood Donor clinics and Canadian Friendship Centres.

Eleven years ago X-ray equipment was provided for the T.B. Children in Korea. Each year, these undergraduate students are studying medicine — two in India and one in Nigeria, a doctor from India is taking post-graduate study in England. Students from Jamaica, British Guiana and Ghana are taking post-graduate courses in Canada.

Stamps Champs In Four Games

Hardisty Stampeders are once again champions of the Battle River League after winning the finals in four straight games.

Many people thought the finals between the Stamps and the Wainwright Commandoes would be a close one and probably for the full seven games but it was never close as the Stampeders dominated it all the way.

Stamps won the four games by scores of 6—3, 5—1, 8—3, and 11—5 and controlled the play most of the time

In Saturday evening's final game of the playoffs, Danny Davies scored a hat trick and the two Miller brothers, Alvin and Glen, got two each to show the Stamps the way to victory.

The Stampeders have a reputation for never finishing very far from the top and in most years have managed to get their name on the Championship Cup. Last year they lost out in the finals to the Killam Indians but for three years before that had won the championship Now they are back on top and with the fine young players they brought into the league this year, they are going to be hard to knock out of top spot.

The Stampeder team and players made an almost complete sweep of the league trophies this year. They finished the regular schedule in first place and won the finals for two trophies. Their players also won the top goalie and top scorer awards. That only leaves one award. "The Most Valuable Player", the winner of this award hasn't been announced yet.

RECEIVING AWARDS—Hardisty Stampeders walked off with most of the awards in the B.R.H.L. this season. In the top picture coach John Gallea accepts the team award for finishing in first place. Centre, goalie Vern Miller receives the "Best Goalie" award. Bottom, Alvin Miller is awarded the "High Scorer" trophy. Flagstaff Ratepayers Hold Annual Meeting

SEDGEWICK—The annual meeting of the ratepayers of the M.D. Flagstaff was held on Saturday, March 5th, with approximately 110 ratepayers in attendance.

Mr. C. P. Hayes of Strome, and former Reeve, was elected to act as chairman of the meeting. Mr. C. B Robertson was elected to record the meeting as secretary. The proposed agenda for the meeting was presented and adopted, and the minutes of the 1965 annual meeting were accepted as read.

Some lengthy discussion took place regarding a seed cleaning plant at Forestburg. It was revealed that the Government was prepared to make a grant, but that the Forestburg area would have to raise $20,000 for the purpose. It was indicated that Flagstaff M.D. would render assistance also with the project.

The Municipal Inspector's Report was read and accepted by the meeting.

The chairman suggested that the financial statement for the year 1965 be considered page by page. This was presented by the secretary-treasurer, who answered several questions on matters contained in the report. Following some discussions the report was accepted and passed.

Reeve George Matthews in his report, outlined the numbers of roads graded, regraded, gravelled and regravelled in 1965, and that the yards of gravel in stockpile had again showed an increase. The Reeve stated that the collection of taxes in 1965 had not been as good as the previous year, but that collection of arrears in the first two months of 1965 had been quite good. In reply to a question re Municipal Constable, Mr. Matthews said that the council was satisfied with the services provided by the Timeslick bus belt that such services should be provided by the RCMP. He said that the Timeslick was also acting as welfare Officer.

There was some discussion regarding welfare and it appeared from the floor that ratepayers were satisfied with the handling of the welfare situation.

The meeting was informed that council had found it necessary to purchase the residence and office of Dr. Pierson in Galahad, in order to attract a doctor to the area. He also said that a request had been made to the Commissioner to make fire fighting equipment available for protection in rural areas.

The new general assessment commenced in 1964 has been given a year's heist due to amendments made to the pasture land assessment schedule by the government. These changes were to incorporate equalization from regional pasture. The Reeve touched on the Rural Land Survey Study in which the M.D. is involved, and in closing asked for some direction in the purchase of fire fighting equipment.

It was brought up that roads to

Rural Road Survey

Elsewhere in this issue of the Community Press appears an article dealing with the formation of a Road Survey Group formed by the surrounding Municipalities. It is self-explanatory so there is no need to go into detail concerning its function.

That such a road program was in the making, was revealed to the Weekly Press by the Hon. Gordon Taylor last fall in convention at Lethbridge. The necessity of such a network of roads was made clear by Mr. Taylor, who realizes that while Alberta has many good hard-surfaced roads, their availability to rural areas leaves much to be desired. In its completed form the program is intended to leave no area, or farm for that matter, more than five miles from a hard-topped road which will give access to main No. 1 highways of the province. In this particular area where there are only main highways running east and west, the secondary hardtops will be built north and south, giving access to Highways 13, 11 and 16, and should provide a network of roads which will facilitate travel and availability to markets. Intensive study of the program gets under way this spring, and this year should see some actual work being done on the program. The Department of Highways is to be commended for its action along this line, and while the whole program for the province is a twenty year project, no time should be lost in getting on with it without delay.

Improvement In Grain Shipping

There has been an improvement in grain shipping along CPR lines. How much of an improvement we don't exactly know, but would like to think that mounting public indignation and persistent grumbling had something to do with it. We like this, for in our self-importance we still believe that people can get what they want if they go after it hard enough and persist long enough. Although governments are getting further away from the grassroots all the time, they still have half an ear tuned in to public opinion. Apparently they have "tuned in" to the deplorable grain shipment situation in the West, and in support of this contention, r nd what the Wheat Pool has to say:

"Whether the pressure that has been put on the CPR over the past weeks to speed up grain movement from Alberta has brought results, or that the company has normally reached the grain moving point in its operating schedule, there has been most gratifying developments in this regard."

Since early January the CPR has had 3000 cars assigned to the grain haul to the Pacific Coast, however the rate of moving the loads was discouragingly low. The company has gradually reorganized its yards at Calgary and Vancouver so that switching loads is being done with greater dispatch. Landed cars are being picked up more quickly from country points and empties are coming back faster. Pool loadings have jumped from around 400 to 500 a week a short time ago, to 867 and 1100 for the past two weeks. Total unloads at the Coast have passed 3000 a week. Although low quota points and those holding priority grain are presently receiving the main benefit from these improved shipments, if the present level continues most congested points can look forward to early relief.

These are tidings of importance, and it goes to prove once again that concerted agitation stirs the mighty to action.

Human Transfusions

It is most interesting to read and learn of advancements made by the human race in the various fields of endeavor. Technical advances are hailed as a boon to industry, science is credited with adding to the learnings of mankind and new social inovations teach man his responsibility to his brother. But one of the most interesting phases of man's discoveries is in the field of medical and surgical science, for it is here that man is most involved, maintaining of his health.

A most interesting development is getting under way in the United States, where a man with an unusual case of Cancer can be cured providing another person with the same kind of Cancer is found, who also has the same blood type. It seems that some kind of a "transfusion" can cure one of them and possibly both. This sort of a sharing of one's good things and bad things apparently when mixed together produces a rather fascinating result.

Not often does an editor transgress from the plural personal pronoun in favor of the singular, and instead of "we" says "I", but now we are going to do just that, for we are on the verge of a great new discovery; one that could settle Canada down into a united nation. Visualize with me the possibilities of the following.

Take Lester Pearson and John Diefenbaker and put them on the operating table (strapped down) transfuse what is good in each, to the other, with a tube to carry off any offensive elements so that both emerge and retire to the recovery room socially reformed and politically rejuvinated. Egad, can't you see the great results in our nation? If this is followed up, I may end up in the Senate as having made a major contribution to the stability of the nation and saving the prestige of the Western World.

ABOUT MOST ANYTHING

by A.C.B.

Back in February we had some discussion on what part the Federal Government gave away the dried fish, etc. People are still coming in to give us the answers and others are still asking what the answer is. It seems to be agreed that the year was 1927 and that MacKenzie King was the Prime Minister of Canada in that year. One interesting sidelight. Dave Hosier tells me he wrote to Edmonton to check on this matter and couldn't get a positive answer. Well there have been enough old-timers, who remember those days, tell us what is reported above that we consider it to be the right answer.

Our Editor is a hero. Last week he climbed out on a limb and guaranteed that the Press could find the owner of a pair of lost eye glasses. The paper came out in the mail on Thursday morning and that afternoon the owner was in our office to claim his glasses. This proves our editor knows what he is talking about and reinforces his favourite statement, "It pays to advertise."

The following comes from a student at Central High who wishes us to remain anonymous. It concerns a lesson that tried to attract the English Class.

In this modern atomic age of jets and spacecrafts, chivalry is dead to the younger generation. A marvellous example of gallantry was displayed shortly after 9 a.m. Thursday, March 3rd at Central High School, Sedgewick, where the English 10 class had just begun. Much to the teacher's surprise an innocent little rodent popped out of the top desk drawer and sought refuge in great haste. "A Knight in shining armour" voluntarily proceeded to chase this small intruder. Alas he was unsuccessful, but brave young man must [illegible] his fine sweater when suddenly it made a decision. Oh that did surprise our gallant knight and the mouse was promptly given the boot from the classroom. This fine young gentleman returned as My Hero.

That acute observer of public events, Charles Lynch, reports that if provincial governments heap on expanding their expenditures and the federal government does the same, the Canadian taxpayer will or could "wind up as the most over-governed and overtaxed person in the world." It is particularly heinous that the taxpayer in all intents and purposes is unrepresented in the series of federal-provincial conferences being held to cut up the tax pie.

Alberta Budget $682 Million

(By John Warren)

It was described by an enthusiastic new Financial Treasurer as "a fabulous budget for a fabulous province."

Mr. Aalborg could scarcely be accused of overstatement in presenting his $682,000,000 program to the legislature Friday. The budget totals nearly $100,000,000 higher than that of the previous year and is equal to the total paid by Alberta in its first 41 years as a province.

The budget makes education the largest spending department and provides grants to municipalities equal to a third of expected revenues from oil and gas royalties.

And, naturally, it contained the annual warnings about dangerous trends towards welfare statism. Mr. Aalborg noted that oil and gas revenues aren't immediately and totalled up his revenues and expenses to come up with a deficit of nearly $99,000,000. Hardly anyone really believes it, however. Ominous deficits and paper deficits seem to be an essential part of each year's budget speech. But the fact is Alberta hasn't had a deficit on its operating account since 1936 and most people would be surprised if the province won't have one when the final figures are in next year.

Another comforting factor is that Alberta has reserves of $1,200,000,000 in hidden dollars so that a deficit — if it does occur — will easily be covered by the reserves.

The speech Friday night gave the opposition little to cheer on the budget front. During the next two weeks it will be interesting to see just what they can come up with in the way of criticism.

Other highlights:

— Education nearly 23 per cent of the total budget at $155,000,000.

— Health expenditures up $20,000,000 to $145,000,000.

— Estimated revenues from natural resources a record of $287,000,000.

—Public works spending on building projects $115,000,000 — more than double that of 1960.

—Direct assistance to municipalities of $176,000,000. 25 per cent of the total budget.

—Estimated liquor revenues of $32,000,000 and income from gasoline taxes and car licenses of $64,000,000.

—Highways department spending up to $70,000,000.

Of particular interest to rural residents is the planned capital spending of the Agriculture Department, up 25 per cent to about $5,000,000. It will include a greatly enlarged program of drainage and flood control. Work will continue at St. Mary and Bow River Developments for irrigation.

The same department will spend more than $2,000,000 on operations that include planning of an over-all program to develop Alberta's water resources. And additions will be made to the three agricultural and vocational colleges in the province.

The government will also set aside more than double last year's figure for the Northern Alberta Development Council. Much of the $5,000,000 will be spent in the province's road and airstrips and the start of a water control program in the northern part of the province.

The medical care program, said Mr. Aalborg, will be broadened, re-examined and will cost the government more money. He continued speaking on the expanded ec service at more than $10,000,000, compared to this year's $9,000,000.

And, one small item that should arouse considerable interest — $100,000 has been set aside to create the Department of Youth at the current session. It will "foster and encourage all forms of constructive youth activities."

Everymans Estate Tax

OTTAWA—A few years ago if the average wage and salary earner realized there was such a thing as an Estates Tax Act (then Succession Duties Act) he figured it as something out of his realm and ken. Even if he were earning a fair salary the chances of his building up an estate of more than $60,000, the minimum on which his widow would pay succession duties, were remote.

The Federal Government, for its part, put little importance on the fact. If someone like Sir James Dun died — an event which threatened for a while an American takeover of Alberta Steel as Lady Dunn sought cash to pay the tax — governmental revenues got a real fillip. Otherwise it was a minor source. So little importance has been put on it that Ottawa has withdrawn from 75 per cent of this tax field in favour of the provinces and retains the rest only because the estates tax returns supply valuable information on future income tax.

But suddenly a great many people have become aware of the tax and are wondering whether it is going to follow them into the grave. In a few years the estates tax, the level of exemptions and its administration are likely to become of prime political importance.

This year the Canadian Labour Congress in its annual brief to the government ignored income tax and concentrated its attention on the Estates Tax Act, calling for major amendments and pointing to inequities. It was so unusual that the CLC itself mentioned that until now it had had only an academic interest in the estates tax but that with the coming of the Canada Pension Plan it has assumed practical importance for the wage earner. Group pension plans to which employer and employee paid contributions sometimes only the employer) are of relatively recent origin and the average employee, aside from a vague realization that he was saving up something for his old age and for his survivors, is only just waking up to the fact that he may be building an estate that will interest the tax collector.

The Canada Pension Plan to which he and his employer must contribute whether they like it or not has brough this possibility much closer.

If he is earning $5,000 a year or more his widow, after the CPP comes to maturity will be entitled to a pension of $64.08 at age 45. This assumes no dependent children. The Department of National Revenue looks at this pension and calculates its lump sum value on the basis of the number of years she may expect to receive it. This is an actuarial figure of life expectancy taken from the government annuity tables. The capital value of a CPP widow's pension at 45 is about $14,300 to which should be added the $300 death benefit.

This $15,300, admittedly, is still very below the $60,000 exemption she is allowed from federal tax. But suppose, after long years of participation in a private plan the husband has also built up a survivor benefit of $300 a month. The widow is 45 the value of this benefit in the eyes of the Revenue Department is $30,000.

Take another case of a widow of 45 whose survivor benefit is $200 a month. The value for tax purposes of her pension is $47,600. If the Canada Pension Plan survivor benefit is added to this she is over the 60,000 limit and pays tax.

Even in the case of pensions of less value if there are other assets such as a home, possibly a car, a substantial life insurance policy, the estate on this basis can soon build up to the $60,000 level. The pension values has been concentrated for tax purposes over the period of life [illegible]. There is no such compensation in the case of the tax. That must be paid within six months. The result is that the house, or our may have to be disposed of or the proceeds from the life insurance policy paid over to the state in spite of the fact that the husband's premiums through the years have been subject to income tax.

McDuff Report

In addition to all this the widow has no certainty of lasting out her span of expectancy She may die within two or three years of her husband in which case the Revenues Department shares the benefits with the insurance company since the annuity can't be passed on further as an inheritance.

For illustration take the case where the rest of the widow's estate is valued at exactly $60,000 and in addition to that she is drawing a survivor benefit from the Canada Pension Plan. If she is aged 45 and dies a year after her husband she will have paid $1,200. to tax and received $766 in pension payments.

The Canadian Labour Congress has a simple and supposedly equitable solution. It suggests that if the pension is to be valued on the basis of life expectancy the tax should be paid in installments over the same period. Ottawa officials have also examined this proposal before refuse to differentiate between a pension and any other asset left in an estate. They will not concede that if the widow dies soon after her husband there has been any overpayment of estates tax

One reason for this rigid attitude is that civil servants are probably the worst sufferers from the present system and would be greatest beneficiaries of any change. The civil service pension plan provides a widow with half her husband's pension which, in the case of a number of senior civil servants, could easily mean as much as $200 a month. They have been afraid of accusations that they were discriminating in their own favour Now that the ice has been broken by the CLC and applications of the estates tax widened by the coming of the CPP they may feel they can take a different attitude.

WEEKLIES GIVE BEST COVERAGE!
Reading our Edmonton political correspondent's report this week, we were somehow left with the feeling that Mr. Warren, our correspondent, takes it for granted that our readers will know who Mr. Charles Lynch is and what his comments were, made in a number of dailies throughout Alberta, in connection with Mr. Manning's remarks about the present Ottawa government.
Although Mr. Lynch does appear on TV as a sideline, he is a news chief for Southam newspapers in Canada, all of which are dailies, and his column appears in a number of issues each week in such Alberta papers as the Edmonton Journal and Calgary Herald.
One of the mistakes that many city folk make about areas such as ours is that the daily newspapers are read by everyone We learned about the fallacy of that situation — that only about 150 Weekend supplements come into our trading area. "Weekend" supplements are carried in three daily newspapers that we ourselves subscribe to, so one can easily see that coverage of the dailies in an area such as this is really insignificant. This probably isn't going to be hair-raising news to most of our readers, but it gives us the opportunity to point out the fact that this weekly paper is the best medium for advertising messages (among other things) in this trading area. We can't claim entry into every home, but we're getting very close to it. — Rimbey Record.

Rural Road Study Group Formed

SEDGEWICK—Some months ago the Provincial Government Highways Department came out with the idea of instituting a study of the road situation in Alberta with a view of developing a "Secondary" system of quality roads to complement the present Provincial Primary Highway system. It was felt that such a Secondary system was needed to meet the growing demand for improved inter-centre industrial, agricultural and recreational requirements in this connection the Department extended an invitation to the various Municipal Districts and Counties to take part in the study, the cost of which will be borne by the Government. Local Municipalities and Counties responded to this request and as a result a meeting was called to formulate a working group.

Sedgewick Ratepayers Review Past Year

SEDGEWICK—The annual meeting of the Village of Sedgewick was held in the Community Hall with Mayor Colbert and three councillors present. Deputy Mayor Bailey was absent, out of town on business. There were forty ratepayers present, and A. W. Keatly was elected to act as the chairman.

The minutes of the 1965 annual meeting were read, reviewed and unanimously adopted. Out of the minutes arose the subjects of a sidewalk to the Rec Centre and the opening of cars along the school speeding at cars and some of the town. Both these had been brought up at the last meeting.

The financial statement was clearly reviewed, which this year included a report of the National Gas System. After some study, it was the feeling of the meeting that the ratepayers interest in its short term, is not informative enough, and it was moved that a more informative form of statement be issued for the next annual meeting.

The Inspectors Report was presented and showed that the affairs of the town are being conducted in a satisfactory manner.

Mayor Colbert gave a review of the village affairs for the year, mentioning particularly the installation of the Natural Gas System, the installation of a new sewage lagoon on the old golf course and the further improvements made at the Sedgewick Lake.

Each of the Councillors reported for the departments they were responsible for, after which was Flagstaff Lodge which is now filled to capacity.

Several perennial questions of dogs running at large, inadequate Sedgewick Lake Park, and Dyking Status, were again introduced, and council was requested to seek a better system of policing and closer attention to the dog situation. A motion was passed that the council proceed to Town Status, and that a Planing Commission be formed to investigate and regulate future procedure.

DEAD MEN BLOCK WAY

HARDISTY—Since the people of St. Paul's Congregation went to the polls to organize a lot of land that they bought from the Town of Hardisty, they and their way blocked by FIVE DEAD MEN. This is the last thing these men would have wanted to do, because they were honored Trustees of Church property for many years. But the laws of Alberta cannot permit the ownership of property by men who have departed from this earth.

The names of the illustrious dead are Allan Johnstone, James B. Clarke, Chas. Lyons, Wm. F. H. Wemyss and A. W. Dickson. The last of these A. Dickson was laid to rest in the Hardisty Cemetery on the 12th of July, 1963.

On February 9th St. Pauls United Church proceeded to elect five living Trustees, the first to be elected on January, 1966. This will enable the Congregation to possess the land adjacent, N. W. of the church building.

and from the coal mines at Forestburg should have more signs as this was the most critical and dangerous road stretch in the M.D. Council indicated interest in this situation and indicated an investigation.

Several of the towns in the municipality indicated through representatives at the meeting that they were prepared to train firemen and maintain fire fighting equipment if the M.D. saw fit to place equipment in their towns. It was passed that the entire matter of fire equipment be left in the hands of the Council in the Fire Commissioner, and that they enter into negotiations with the towns and villages. It was also requested that Council budget for payment of such equipement in one year.

The Agricultural Service Board report as printed on the financial report was read and approved.

In reply to a question from the floor the Reeve said that Council was endeavoring to improve sight distances on roads by cutting down hills but that due to the number of such spots progress was slow. It was also stated that obstructions on road allowances such as fences, rocks etc. were illegal, and that such should be reported to council.

Financial report for 1965 covering Flagstaff Lodge was read and accepted.

Mr. C. P. Hayes thanked the council for his appointment to the Alberta Finance Corporation, and stated that to date they had very few requests for loans. He commended the rural area for their attitude in this respect.

GREEN ACRES

NEW HERBICIDE ON MARKET!

A mixture containing equal parts of Bromoxynil and MCPA has now been registered for use in Alberta. Bromoxynil is likely to be registered for use here in the near future.

W. Lobay, Agronomist with the Alberta Dept. of Ag., reports that Bromoxynil alone or in a mixture with MCPA kills a wide range of broadleaved weeds, including wild and tartary buckwheat and wild mustard, in wheat, oats, and barley crops. The action of Bromoxynil differs from 2,4-D and related compounds in that it kills mainly by contact whereas 2,4-D is absorbed into the plant system.

Mr. Lobay says both Bromoxynil and Bromoxynil plus MCPA can be safely applied to weed infested fields from the time the grain first emerges until it reaches the flag-leaf stage. To combine maximum weed kill with crop safety, however, the best time to spray is usually during the 2 to 3 leaf stage of the grain. Crop tolerance does not seem to be influenced by general growing conditions, says Mr. Lobay.

Bromoxynil may have an advantage over some of the other herbicides for controlling buckwheat and mustard because of the longer period when the grain can be treated with this herbicide. In other words, spraying can be done when weed growth requires treatment rather than when the crop is in the safe stage of growth.

It is expected that Bromoxynil & MCPA mixture will retail at about $10.00 a gallon. At the recommended spraying rate of 8 ounces per acre tenfigure ingredient the cost of this herbicide would be somewhere in the neighborhood of $2.00 to $2.50 per acre.

"Under The Northern Lights" Theme Of Hardisty Carnival

The theme for the 1966 Carnival of the Hardisty Skating Club was "Under The Northern Lights," and was carried out beautifully in the arena decorations as well as the very fine program Presented by Miss Ruth Matthews, the show featured shatery both small and large, in group and solo numbers. There was a few gaps because of illness, especially regrettable was the illness in hospital of Phyllis Young, assistant instructor and shatery were a group from the Glenora Skating Club Edmonton, whose numbers were much enjoyed. These were Terry Flint, Mrs. Stein Becker, Pat Harrison and Brian Gamik. Local soloists were Patsy Moody, Bonnie Hornbough, Maureen Madden, Ruth Matthews and Darcy Broughton. There were Oak-jobs and Penguins, Santa with his reader and elves, Indians, Eskimo, even Flowers of Hawaii, the Dawson gamblers and dance hall girls and a camping of R.C.M.P. The North Wind blew over the ice, and the Northern Lights shone, all beautifully costumed to carry out the theme During the intermission the 1966 queen, Barb Burpee, was crowned by Mr. Sim Cavanagh, and gifts were presented to the queen by the Arena and by her sponsoring club, the Rosyth P.U.A. and to the princess and runner-up, Patsy Moody, by the arena as her sponsoring club Other gifts, with thanks for much help, were to Phyllis Young and Ruth Matthews, Vera Hendricks,numerous directior, and many thanks to the mothers and others who helped in practice and organizing, scenery, lights, etc. Ken Dreyer of Camrose also received special thanks for acting as announcer and M.C

A PRAYER OF DAVID
PSALM 66;

In this wonderful reviving psalm we find an almost frustrated, panic stricken soul crying out to God in humiliation for his needs and preservation of soul; and the Psalmist begs God for mercy. And as we read on this prayer changes to praise and exaltation of God. As we trace some of the phrases in this Psalm let us profit by his humiliation, his ideology of God.

"I am poor and needy" (ver 1) This is the first rung on the ladder to Spiritual success. the Pharisee who came to God bragging on himself left the temple unjustified. The first words from our master as He gave the sermon on the mount were "Blessed are the poor in Spirit".

"Preserve my soul," (ver 2) In our part of the world there is abundance: Black piles of smoke, godly bodily preservation, education etc. But what of the soul. Preserve my soul is still a wise prayer to make if made in sincerity and acknowledgment of our frailty.

"Be merciful unto me," (ver 3) The blind man, the Publican and others got mercy when they made a plea like this.

"Rejoice the soul of thy servant," (ver 4) Happiness is what is meant. Paul said "Rejoice in the Lord always and again I say rejoice". The world needs to see joy and happiness in the Church.

"Thou art good," (ver 5) It was Moses who said "Show me thy goodness. The real goodness of God is revealed in His Grace found in His Son Jesus Christ. What it does for us we will see in the next phrase.

"Ready to forgive and plenteous in mercy," (ver 5) Plenty, not restened: Ready to forgive, not unwilling. There is no limit to His stock pile of mercy, nor is there a limit to the number of people it is extended to.

"There is none like unto thee," (ver 8) David knew of many gods that the heathen worshipped: But he came to the conclusion that there is only one real God who alone can show mercy and power.

"Teach me Thy way," (ver 11) This phrase is meaningless unless we are willing to be taught; note how he follows these words with "I will walk in thy truth." At the feet of our master we learn Truth but we must also walk therein.

"I will praise Thee," (ver 12) and in the same verse he says I will glorify thy name. Praise can come very easily and even time it could be only lip service, But compared with glorifying God's name makes it something better. Anyway he says "With all my heart".

"A God full of compassion, and gracious, long suffering, and plenteous in Mercy and truth," (ver 15) These phrases hardly need explaining, and now the final phrase.

"Helped me — Comforted me" (ver 17) This beautiful Psalm ends with "Poor and Needy" and ends with "Help and comfort".—Retired Minister Rev. W. A. Petersen, Edgewick Alberta, Nazarene Church.

ALKALI SMITH'S FAMILY

Mrs. Smith had no alternative but to stay on and try to plant the potatoes which had been the nucleus of their dreams.

Her two older children, a boy and a girl were twins of fourteen years when their father was so suddenly killed by lightening that unforgettable day last summer.

Naturally friends and neighbors continued to do all they could to help in different ways. But we certainly had to be diplomatic in giving them anything such as clothes for the youngsters etc., as the Smiths were a proud people although insanely poor.

The spring before Mr. was killed, they owned a sow which had thirteen very fine piglets. However, one of these piglets was a decided runt, so Mr. Smith, thinking it would be wise to do away with it, (as it would be getting yearly to do just that—right then and there.

Angelina or "Angie" as she was called, begged her father to give it to her. "Please Daddy, please let it "By hand". (Incidentally—Angie was one of the fourteen year old twins).

Angie was famished in her job of taking care of her charge—with the result it looked almost like a contest between Angie and Rosie. Rosie was the name of the sow.

Then one of the Smith children—one their mother for that matter had proper clothes for the coming cold weather. It was really pitiful the patched-up garments those children were But ALWAYS clean

One day, a few more days later, we dropped in ostensibly to just "Chat" but really to enquire just what those pigs brought Incidentally isn't it a fact? Human nature has never changed. we became curious about things that are definately NONE OF OUR BUSINESS.

However, Mrs. Smith's face was actually beaming, and without us even broaching the subject she said "Those pigs sure brought top price, and Angie's pig brought a premium as well". And there, in that pitifully bare little shack sat the mother surrounded by a half dozen youngsters, pouring over Eaton's catalogue.

Naturally we were more curious about what Angie planned to buy. more than the others. Poor little Angie had never had a dollar to call her own, so, when she was handed a thirty dollar cheque—ALL HER OWN, well, she just figured her cup of happiness couldn't hold another drop She looked up at us with her eyes shining, saying, "Look What do you think of them?" As long as we had known Angie and the rest of those children, we had never seen any other type of foot-wear summer and winter on their feet but "Gum rubbers", a rubber shoe fastened with a single buckle

Now was Angie's chance to have something better She had picked out a twelve dollar pair of two-inner high boots, the top half of white had and the lower a brown laced to shove the calf of her leg.

Our faces must have revealed our amazement, for Mrs. Smith very apologetically explained — "Angie has always wanted a pair like this ever since she saw the teacher wearing a pair, and I figured the way that girl works 'n never has anything nice. well, it's comin' to her".

Two or three times that winter we saw Angie and she was wearing those boots Even though the snow was real deep, and it was extra cold some days, she had on those boots with no over-shoes or rubbers.

She STILL wears her old patched Sheepskin" lined jacket and faded print dress, but oh, she seemed so proud of those boots. We never did hear what else she bought with the balance of her cheque but I'll wager she spent the most of it on the rest of the family She was that type of a person

With the help of the older children, Mrs Smith carried on the project of planting good potatoes seed and selling them to Eaton's and — in time — they were doing quite well

So, farmer friend, if there is a patch or two of alkali on your land don't despair You may yet discover the right type of spud that will do well on such land Then who knows? One of your youngsters like Angelina, may spurt a $12.00 pair of fancy boots too, for every day wear

Dayslan... Town Council Discusses Natural ... System For Town

DAYSLAND A regular Council meeting was held on February 21st for the Town of Dayland. Six Councillors were present with Mayor Pryor presiding.

The minutes of the February 7th meeting were read. In discussing the minutes it was pointed out Council had given Mr. Schattle of Municipal Engineering services definate instructions according with the water system and this should have been recorded in the minutes. It was found that the following be added to this particular section of the minutes dealing with the water construction. During the discussion of the water system with Mr. Mr. Schattle Council pointed out to him there were leaks and nothing was being done. As he was the engineer Council expected him to get on the job and put the water system into operation.

Mr. J. H. Turner and Mr. J. Dow of Palmer Engineering met with Council at this time to discuss Natural gas for Dayland. Messrs R. Weller of Peterbroke and Dr. Hrad from the Board of Trade were also present. Mr. Palmer answered questions of the Board of the Town plans whether purchased from the oil company or from a Propane Air station and the purchase the wells outright from the oil company. Councillors and members of the Board of Trade discussed by Board if a Limousine would be sufficient or if propositions further before making a decision.

Mr. Schattle of Municipal Engineering Services was called in to report on the progress of fixing the leaks in the water system in Dayland. Mr. Schattle stated that all leaks had not been found as yet. Some leaks undoubtedly resulted because of lines under road Mr. Schattle thought leaks arising out of the above should be forwarded to the attention of Steve's Construction concerning Mr. Schattle's opinion if it would install a shut off valve just east of the first manhole near the new hall to slow down the water and stop future flooding of basements. A new curb stop would also be installed at the hall.

Figures had been obtained from the Towns of Castor and Smoky Lake in regards to certain data of their gas wells which were discussed by Council.

A letter was received from the Dayland Lions Club suggesting that the following act temporary on the proposed Community Hall Board subject to the approval of Town Council and the Dayland Branch of the Canadian Legion. From Town Council, Councillors Wirth and Cranston, from the Lions Club Messrs. J. Koehli and A. Wajciechowski, and from the Legion Mr. Wm. Stevens. It was moved and carried that the proposed Hall Board as suggested by the Lions Club be accepted as a provisional board until the first annual meeting.

A letter from the Alberta Municipal Financing Corporation advised their annual meeting would be held April 4th.

The agreement with the Dayslend Drainage District re clumping of Town Sewer effluent in the drainage ditch was again discussed and it was decided that the Water and Sewer Committee should meet with the Drainage Board and have several points in the agreement clarified.

60th Year For Daysland Bank

DAYSLAND BRANCH B OF M COMPLETES SIXTY YEARS

DAYSLAND — The Daysland Branch of the Bank of Montreal completed its 60th year on Sunday, according to Verne Harney, the manager

Mr Harney said that the branch was opened on March 6th, 1906, in a small active on the second floor of the Angus Hotel. It was originally a branch of the Merchants Bank of Canada, which has long since merged with the B of M.

Nine month after opening, the bank was moved into the sample room of the hotel where it remained until completion of its wooden frame office on the east side of the main street in 1907

By 1933 however, the need for larger quarters necessitated a further move and the branch was relocated in a two-storey brick structure at the corner of Main street and Railway avenue, adjoining the present site. This old building was finally abandoned in 1963, in favour of the modern spacious office which the bank now occupies.

14 MANAGERS

The Dayland bank has had 14 managers since its establishment 60 years ago First was Mr. R. J. Dinning, who remained in charge of the office until 1908, when he was succeeded by Mr S. E. James. FOUNDED IN 1817

The Dayland B of M is part of Canada's oldest banking institution which was founded in 1817. The bank now has an extensive organization in all ten provinces — including 102 offices in Alberta — and abroad.

The B of M issued Canada's first native currency. It also founded the branch-banking system — considered to be one the finest in the world — when it opened a second office in Montreal City two weeks after its establishment in Montreal. Branches soon followed at Kingston and York (now Toronto). With the opening up of the West, the B of M established offices at outposts and trading centres, often arriving with the railroad and with the first settlers.

Today, with more than 980 branches throughout the ten provinces, the B of M also has offices in the United States, Mexico, England, France, Germany and Japan, and at Canadian Army and R.C.A.F. bases in France and Germany.

In conjunction with the Bank of London and Seuth America, the B of M in 1958 founded the Bank of London and Montreal Limited, now operating in Latin America and the Caribbean. In October, 1964, Barclays Bank D.C.O. acquired a one-third interest in BOLAM, in broadens and strengthen operations in the countries it serves.

THE LANGUAGE WAR. Although there are in fact two languages in it, Canada is not the only nation experiencing difficulties because of bilingualism and bilingual policies. In Belgium, continued riots are erupting between French-speaking and Flemish-speaking factions. Above shows police breaking up a demonstration in which 2000 Flemish students and adults marched in Louvain calling for the division of their bilingual university. Tear gas and rifle butts were used to stop the march, and 19 people were injured.

Farm Loans Are Up 30 Per Cent

Farm Credit Corp. loans to Alberta farmers are up about 30 per cent over 1964.

Since the start of the 1965-66 fiscal year on April 1, the federal lending agency has approved 2,385 loans worth approximately $36,614,000 to Alberta farmers.

The total last year at this time was about $28,000,000.

The total number of loans approved has increased only about five per cent since the FCC was established in 1959.

During its first year of operation in 1959-61, the Crown corporation approved a total of 1,217 loans worth $13,182,800 in Alberta.

Loans approved in 1961-62 totalled $18,447,800; in 1962-63, $22,854,300; 1963-64, $27,157,600 and 1964-65, $42,-512,300.

According to T. B. Heimuth, loans supervisor in the Edmonton office, 85 per cent of the money loaned to farmers last year was used to purchase land or to pay off land encumbrances.

About his per cent was used for land development including such things as clearing, breaking and levelling, and 8.5 per cent was used for farm buildings, the majority for farm homes.

LIVESTOCK PURCHASES

Livestock was purchased with 5.5 per cent of the money loaned, equipment with one per cent and about four per cent was put to miscellaneous uses, including obtaining water supplies, paying operating expenses and to take care of equipment encumbrances.

D. A. Ibbotson, assistant manager in charge of lending for Alberta, says the corporation tries to keep its productive loans.

He points out that farmers have the farm improvement loan to take care of short term items like machinery, and there is no one giving a man 20 years to pay for something that is worn out in 10 or 15.

LOAN VALUE

The Alberta branch of the FCC has made loans worth $150,000,000 to 13,200 farmers.

Nearly $8,500,000 is collected each year, says Mr. Heimuth.

He points out that one can't make the large number of loans approved by the corporation without having some bad ones.

But, he adds, the incidence of bad loans is extremely low.

George O'Brien, Alberta branch manager, adds his diversion employs only one clerk to take care of collections.

Payments can be made annually, semi-annually or on a share crop basis.

The majority of payments are made annually in the spring, with to avoid delays when the appraisal season opens in the spring.

Loans in this area amounted to almost a million dollars in 1965 and averaged approximately sixteen thousand dollars. The purchase of land clearing and breaking and the construction of new homes were the main expenditures.

THE RED X MEANS TIME TO RENEW

1908 — FIFTY-EIGHTH YEAR — 1966 SEDGEWICK, ALBERTA, THURSDAY, MARCH 17TH 1966 Volume 56 — Number 44

A RARE SIGHT—Few people ever see a horse anymore and fewer yet own a "mother". Shelly Mae Armitage has one which she is shown using during a recent snow storm. This mother has quite a history. It was built for Mr. William Mathon Sr. back in the early 1930's by Mr. MacArthur. It was used at various times by three generations of the Mathon family until it was recently given to Shelly Mae by Mr. Walter Mathon. The cutter was recently used on a T.V. program about the Fairgrass School.

Service Board Prepares For Summer's Activity

SEDGEWICK—A meeting of the Agricultural Service Board of the Municipal District of Flagstaff No 62 was held in the Board Room of the Municipal Office, Sedgewick, on Friday, March 4th, 1966 commencing at 10:00 a.m.

Present: Chairman and Councillor — E. F. Steadman; Board Member and Councillor — A. P. Blatz; Farm Member — B. F. Chiart Jr.; Farm Member — N. Nickerson; District Agriculturist — A. E. Edwards. Field Supervisor — B. M. Lee; Secretary — E. N. Bouchard.

The Minutes of the Agricultural Service Board meeting held on February 7, 1966 were read by the Secretary and adopted on motion of N Nickerson. Carried.

B.M. Lee, Agricultural Field Man, reported to the Board members on his trip to Arzprior, Ontario on an Emergency Measures Course. He felt that the Program was well conducted and well worth the time to attend the Course. The Board approved Mr. Lee's narration of the Emergency Measures Course at Arzprior, Ontario.

The Board was informed that the tractor and mower purchased by the Municipal Council to carry out the Service Board Program for 1966 was now at the Municipal Shop and could be inspected if the Board members so desired.

The Board made reference to the drainage problem on the Eric Helmberg farm which was discussed at the last meeting and were advised that the matter had been forwarded to the P.F.R.A. office at Hanna, Alta.

The District Agriculturist, A. E. Edwards, advised the Board that A.R.D.A. Grass Seeding Program for the Municipal District of Flagstaff No. 62 had received approval by the Provincial Government. The Board then discussed the ways and means of handling the Program, such as the screening of eligible applicants, procedure, advertisement, the inspection of land, maintenance and regulations which would insure that the Program be a productive one for the rest of the Program. Newsletter would be sufficient.

The news release as written by A. E. Edwards and B. M. Lee was approved for publication to the Newsletter on motion of B. Chiart Jr. with the exception of a few changes and also that the deadline be set for receiving the applications be included in one of the paragraphs.

Mr. Norm Nickerson moved that the administration procedures and regulations as set out and submitted by the Field Man and District Agriculturst be accepted in carrying out the A. R. D. A. Grass Seeding Program. Carried.

The matter of purchasing grass seed for the A. R. D. A. Program received considerable discussion by the Board members.

Mr Steadman also inquired about information which was to be published in the "Flagstaff Newsletter on a disease called "Pulpy Kidney." The Field Man advised that the local veterenarian had not supplied the information he had offered on the disease. however, an effort would be made to have an article in the next publication.

The reason to fix given at the Annual meeting of ratepayers March 5, 1966 was discussed by the Board. It was felt that the Board Members should be introduced and that the A. R. D. A. Grass Seeding Program should be mentioned if time was available.

The 1966 Weed Chemical requirements were discussed for the coming year. The Board were of the opinion that the chemical on hand after the weed spraying season should be used up in the Brush Spraying Program, if at all possible, in order to keep the carry over to a minimum. The question of requesting tenders for brush spray received considerable discussion.

Norman Nickerson moved that when more brush spray chemical was required that tenders be requested for ten (10) barrels (400 gallons) of brush spray only. Carried.

The setting of the Weed Chemical Price List for 1966 was also discussed by the Board members.

B. M. Lee, Field Man, requested approval of using the two Municipal farm tractors on the two tree planters, which are also owned by the Municipality, for the 1966 tree planting program. The Board gave their approval as they felt the program could be carried out faster and more efficiently if they did not

HOCKEY WEEKEND AT SEDGEWICK

Last weekend there were enough hockey games played at Sedgewick that people started calling it Minor Hockey Weekend.

On Saturday the Sedgewick 12 and unders played the last league game against Czar and won 11 to 7. The Mites (10 and under) were hosts to the Killam team and won by a score of 5 to 1. Then a team of night year olds and under played a similar team from Forestburg to a 1—1 tie. The last game of the day saw the Sedgewick Midgets and Bantams take on each other with the Midgets coming out on top.

T. Kennys Attend Sedgewick Night

The winter is over for Tom and Sarah Kenny of Lougheed. They spent most of it in B.C. with relatives and friends, and left Alberta on March 10th, on a bright and sunshiny day, full of pep and vigor. Tom says he had to come back to Alberta to see the sun.

While visiting Tom's niece in Trail B.C. (daughter of Kitty McKinney), she hosts Mr. and Mrs. Dick Gallesene told them they were having a Sedgewick Night that evening. Among the guests were, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Brown, son of Gordon Brown formerly of Sedgewick; Mrs. Scott McLennan of Penticton; Mr. and Mrs. Peter (pnr) Huse; Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Hamilton (nee Gladys McLennan); Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ball (nee Beatrice Wingar).

From Tom's account of the evening they had quite a time going over old days ,assisted by a 1926 copy of the Sedgewick Sentinel brought along by Per Huse, who teaches school at Trail. Local people will recall Per as quite a catcher on the Merna Ball Team some years ago.

Mr. Kenny gave the Press quite a vivid description of the winter scenery through B.C., especially in the Cariboo and the Cascade country, but somehow we got the feeling that he was on edge to get back to Lougheed.

Church Discusses Union Principles

HARDISTY—A meeting of considerable interest was held in the United Church last Wednesday evening, when members of the United and Anglican congregations gathered to discuss some of the Principles of Union, now being considered.

The panel consisted of Rev. D. Lewis of Sedgewick and Rev. G. Zwicker of Hardisty representing the United Church and Rev. M. G. McDermott of Viking and Rev. Steel of Sedgewick speaking for the Anglican Church. Members of both churches from Sedgewick, Hardisty, Hughenden, Amisk and Czar were present, about thirty in number.

Mr. Colvin Benirato of Sedgewick who had attended the Anglican Synod in Vancouver when the Principles were approved, gave a picture of the proceedings there. While the subject was too large for detailed study, it was felt that the exchange of information and ideas gave a real basis for further study.

Wrong Way Protests!

Peace demonstrations and protest marches are becoming so common today that really nobody gives them much attention any more, and while we would be the last to deny people the right to protest against injustices, we have little patience with those who fail to clearly grasp the significance of their actions. People who join in demonstrations merely because in their way of thinking this is the popular thing to do, many times fail to realize that their very actions restrict the freedom of others.

Canadian demonstrations against war in Viet Nam in which Canada is not actively involved, carry little weight simply because, they are demonstrated against only one side of the issues involved. Evil, as we see it, must be held in check, and to us Communism is an evil and vile way of life, something that must be held in check. A way of life we cannot accept, and when it encroaches and threatens we must combat it, with force if necessary. Otherwise we must stand to lose all that we hold dear.

Today the United States is the only country in the world which is standing up against this menace with any degree of force, and it ill behooves any Canadian to protest against his own protection. Canada cannot afford to hide smugly behind the Munro Doctrine.

Those with energy to burn might well direct their activities to the home front andget busy trying to correct some of the evils that exist right here. Why not protest more vigorously against the death toll on our roads? We killed 18 people in January of this year. Why not march to the Legislature in protest against the rising crime rate, sexual immorality, and the lenient views taken by Magistrates, Judges and the Attorney-General's office? Why not demand that habitual accident drivers and drunken drivers be removed from our roads. There are a hundred areas where protests can be lodged in a most vigorous manner, right here on our back step without getting involved in the direct affairs of another nation. It's good policy to keep your own doorstep clean before you try to sweep the other fellow's.

The Changing World!

We live in a rapidly changing world and former things have passed away. Many of our activities of the day bear little or no resemblance to those of former times. There was a time, not too long ago when man was close to the grass roots and had a deep knowledge of the why and the wherefore of things. Not so today when results are all that matters very much

Take education as a prime example. Necessary by changing conditions we are cramming an enormous amount of technical knowledge into the heads of students who when finished high school have an array of facts which they are unable to communicate to others. With heads crammed with knowledge, they are unable to put it down in words intelligible to the world, ending up with a jumble of misspelled, poorly arranged and wrongly divided words incapble of expressing the views of the writer. It is of little value to the executive to know facts without the basic knowledge of the language he speaks which will permit him to communicate with others. The day of the little country school is gone forever. Gone too is the basic teaching principles which turned out literate students who encountered the spelling bee and the written composition, rigidly marked and ordered re-written. Gone are the after school sessions when students re-worked mistakes and paid penalties for mischievour. We've changed but have we basically improved?

Then again, we travel faster and get further than ever before and in the doing deny ourselves the opportunity to witness the many wonders of creation. We miss the beauty of nature and the creature life because we haven't the time to stop and look. We have a destination We no longer associate with people in a trip back to our native land; we hop a plane, go to sleep and wake up as the plane lands. We've changed and in the process we know less about one another.

We've contributed many fortunes to medical science which enabled us to produce pills and shots to stave off heart troubles, and then we push ourselves at an ever-increasing rate of acceleration where our own inventions are unable to mend the worn out parts of our bodies. Yes, we are changing. But to what purpose?

Responsible Society!

The road to hell is paved with good intentions! As you sow, so also shall you reap! As you give so also shall you receive! We could quote any number of adages to apply to the reason as to why people do like they do. We could also quote as many excuses as people for for not doing what they should do. What we are getting at really is the deplorable attendance found today at meetings of importance to all citizens. Town and Village annual meetings in this neck of the woods draw all the way from five to thirty people, including those entrusted with the management of affairs. The M. D. Flagstaff drew 104, out of hundreds of ratepayers. The annual meeting of the School Division had even fewer. Why? Is our society so affluent that we don't care how we spend a million dollars? Is a hockey game, a bowling match or the TV more important than the operation of our municipal affairs? Are we so apathetic toward these matters that they fail to concern us? The excuse that we had something less important but more entertaining to do, is not good enough. History records the fall of many societies where individuals became indifferent, putting pleasure ahead of duty. History has a way of repeating herself.

by A.C.E.

Well, it seems to happens every so often. We received another letter to the Editor from a subscriber and taxpayer, who failed to sign a name to the article. Of course we won't print it until it is properly signed.

The so-called World Hockey Championship was played last week in Europe. There's one thing about this affair that has always annoyed me, besides the fact that Canada doesn't win. This is the International Ice Hockey Federation and its rules on amateur players, while in actual fact none of the top teams over in Europe are amateur. Take the Russians for example. As soon as a young player is good enough for the National team he is made a Colonel in the Red Army and sent off to Moscow to practice hockey ten months of the year. In other words he is being paid army officer wages to play hockey, and is just as much a professional as any player in the NHL. It is reported that the top player on the Swedish team is paid in excess of $20,000 a year to play hockey, and yet the European class lists as amateurs. Under the majority of our best professionals make much less. It seems that Canada is trying to put together a National team of true amateurs and is shelling by rules that no other country considers important and chooses to ignore. In actual fact it is probable that most of the Canadian team has received money for playing hockey at some time or another...so why does the C. A.H.A. carry on the farce? Why don't they forget about this amateur status which few good players over 18 qualify for anyway, and put together the best Canadian team possible outside the NHL, and go to the World Hockey Tournament to win, just like the Europeans do.

For years, conservationists in all parts of the world, have watched with interest the efforts of Canada and the U. S. to save the Whooping Cranes. Back in the early 14 of these birds were known to exist and progress over the years has been slow. These birds migrate some 2,300 miles south in the fall and then back in the spring and the hazards on the flight are many. Despite the heavy odds against their survival the number of these birds increased, especially in the last two seasons. The total has now reached a new thirty year record of 44, with eight of these being young birds hatched during 1965. Now the Canadian and U.S. Wildlife Services have come up with a plan to remove eggs from the wild nests and raise the birds in captivity. Later birds would be released into the wild flock and help swell its members. The world will be watching the success of the new venture.

Hospital Fees To Rise

Legislation making major changes in hospital and medical care in Alberta was introduced on the final day of a busy week of budget debate.

Among other things the legislation will make it more expensive to get hospital care after July 1 and will extend the range of services covered by the province's health insurance plan.

On that day Alberta residents will begin paying a deterrent fee of $2.50 a day in active treatment hospitals. They will also have to pay a charge of $5.00 on entering hospital. Health Minister Ross said the fee was being increased to bring the patients' portion of hospital expenses more into line with spiralling costs. Present fees range from $1.00 to $2.00 daily.

The revised insurance plan will make prescription drugs, dentists, chiropractic, artificial appliances and the services of optometrists, physiotherapists & psychologists insurable. These would be separate from the comprehensive physician's services now covered by the plan and might involve a small deductable on the charge for dentists.

Dr. Ross also outlined a change in government subsidies for people with low incomes. And he said he thinks the proposed new plan will result in medical insurance for about 90 per cent of Alberta's population within a year.

Last week also saw introduction of a bill that will create Alberta's 18th cabinet post, and while the Ministry of Youth will be created at this session the man who will head it won't necessarily be named before prorogation.

Premier Manning said the youth department is being established because more than half of Alberta's population is 25 or younger and because "it has become one of our greatest needs today to do everything we can to develop human resources."

These certainly weren't the only developments in a busy week in the legislature. It seemed that everyone who didn't take a turn to speak during the interminable debate was taking a crack at it now — and a few people were getting up for a second turn during the budget debate.

Among them was Rev. Robert Simpson of Calgary north who attacked proposed legislation that would reduce the majority needed on a fluoridation plebiscite to 51 per cent.

Said he: "If 51 per cent of the population of Calgary can insist that I must take my medicine whether I like it or not, then the 49 respecting human rights now before the assembly, will not have any depth of meaning for me."

Keith Errexit of St. Albert didn't take any chances by risking an attack on the provincial government or his Social Credit colleagues instead he berated the federal government for failing to establish a bank from which municipalities could borrow at low rates of interest.

Opposition leader Mike Macnagno took the first of two turns he will have in the budget debate to warn the government about possible problems in the development of the Medicurray oil sands. He said the Great Canadian Oil Sands plant is going to cost much more than expected and expressed concern for Albertans who have invested in it.

And he gently twitted the provincial treasurer, Mr. Aalborg, for that comment about a "fabulous budget for a fabulous province." According to the Lac La Biche Liberal "fabulous" means "imaginary or unreal." And that, he said is probably quite right.

Agriculture Minister Harry Strom answered earlier queries by Mr Macnagno about special assistance to Peace River farmers. He said the Alberta government will not assume what it considers the federal share of this aid. It now appears that if Ottawa doesn't pay half the bill the assistance simply won't be given The opposition had suggested that Alberta pay the whole sum required and then collect half, if possible, from Ottawa.

The Letter Box

Hardisty, March 8, 1966

Dear Editor:

Please permit me to have a little space in your worthy paper to tell a little story. A happy story or a tragic one. You be the judge. This afternoon as I glanced out the window what do I see but a man sitting in a car not 100 feet from our house. He was aiming a gun out the window at something near our house. I ran to the other window to look out, only to see our little dog get shot. Yes, Mr. Sniper, how hard you laughed when you realized you only wounded him. Now you were able to have more fun by chasing him out of town, this time with a rifle. Oh yes, we understand that after all the damage was done you realized you got the wrong dog. But did you get him? Is he lying suffering some place? As yet nobody knows.

Mr. Editor, it wasn't a very pleasant task to explain to your ten children that their faithful pet of six years had been shot by their friend the policeman. A happy ending? Yes, our two preschoolers may well have been in the yard playing. Better a dog than a child. Thanking you, I remain, yours sincerely, Marie Williams Defeating Tommy Ramsay's Northern Ontario quartet in what some spectators termed the "climax" of the Brier Competition, Skip Billy Rose and his three stalwart rock heavers, Bartley Swain, Austin Smith, and George Crooks, emerged from the gruelling test the undisputed champions of Canada, and for all intent and purposes, of the world, in the realm of curling, and thereby winning for themselves the acclaim of thousands from coast to coast. When the four Champs arrived in town aboard train No. 51, they were met by a riotous mob of pushing, heaving, laughing and shouting people, representing just about every town from Camrose to Provost. The boys were carried off in the town hall which was jammed to hear speeches. There were telegrams from curling clubs all over Alberta. The Sedgewick Curling Club presented them with certificates of Life Membership. The celebration went on well into the next day as everyone tried to shake hands and talk to the Champs.

Survival Course

OTTAWA —Just over one year ago the Department of External Affairs issued a press release. That release was the start of a series of developments that culminated in the Liberal minority government experiencing its most severe setback in the Commons. It left the government badly shaken and was a serious blow to the power and prestige of Prime Minister Pearson.

In May, 1965 External Affairs issued a statement disclosing the break-up by the RCMP of a Russian espionage ring and a trial that had been operating in Canada. The release went into much more detail than was customary for such statements dealing with security cases. It was a mistake for which the Government was to pay dearly.

The Government explained at the time that more information was being given out than usual in order to call attention to the dangers to national security that are threatening on all sides today, to focus attention on the kind of conspiracies developing and the relationship of these dangers to civil servants. As a result of the espionage activities that had been uncovered two Russians attached to the USSR embassy in Ottawa were ordered back to their homeland.

The release revealed that two Canadians were involved. One had gone straight to the RCMP when he had been approached by Russians. The second had not. But the government indicted it was taking no legal action against the second man because he was dangerously ill at the time the press release was made. The implication was that he was not expected to recover from his illness.

But recover he did. He was operated on for the removal of a cancerous lung. He survived and eventually made his identity known to Vancouver newspaperman. He is Victor Spencer, former postal clerk in Vancouver. The Government ordered a civil service inquiry and after the hearing Spencer was fired.

Later Justice Minister Cardin appeared on a CBC program and there he confirmed that Spencer was a potential Canadian named in the external affairs release. He branded Spencer as a risk to the security of the state and said he would be kept under surveillance.

There it was, all the ingredients for the NDP and the PC to seize on the case and exploit it as a prime example of the civil liberties of the little man being (Please Turn To Page Nine)

AGRICULTURAL CHEMICAL SCHOOLS

A Regional Chemical School was held in Prevost on Wed. March 9th. Farmers and chemical deal e r s from Lloydminster, Vermilion, Flagstaff and Provost and Wainwright districts attended the meeting.

W. Lobay, Supervisor of Weed Control, outlined "What's New In Agricultural Chemicals". The new chemicals such as Bromoxynil and Picloram (Tordon) were outlined. Mr. Lobay reported that the 1966 publication No. 181 on Chemical Weed Control was at the Queen's Printers now and he hoped it would be available in late April.

A. W. Goettel, Supervisor of Soil outlined the need of fertilizers and their proper uses. His discussion closely followed the information farmers receive in the Soil Analysis reports from the University Soil and Feed Testing Laboratory.

J. B. Gurba, Supervisor of Pest Control and his assistant Mr. L. K. Peterson, talked on Livestock Pests and Crop Pests and Pesticides. They stressed the importance of caution in handling & use of chemicals.

The meeting was well attended. If farmers in Flatbelt would like an afternoon meeting to discuss weed control chemicals we could arrange a meeting for March 30th. Please let Art Edwards know if you would like to attend such a meeting.

Service Board Holds Meeting

have to depend on the farmers to supply the tractors to pull the tree planters.

The 1966 Brush Spraying Program was introduced by the Field Man and he compared his opinion regarding the manner in which the Program could be carried out. As Mr. Lee had maps of roadsides sprayed going back to the year 1960, the Board approved of his suggestion that he map out a program for their approval or any changes they wished to make.

The 1966 Roadside Grass Seeding Program was discussed by the Board members. Mr. Lee advised the Board that approximately 100 miles were seeded in 1965 and he felt that there would be about the same amount in 1966. The Board gave Mr Lee approval to carry out the 1966 Roadside Seeding Program. The matter of renting out the grass seeder owned by the Municipality for use by the farmers on the A. B. D. A. Program received considerable discussion.

The question of hiring Weed Inspectors for 1966 was considered by the Board. Mr. Lee stated that most of his time is being taken up on other agricultural programs and he felt that perhaps he was not giving weed inspections as much as he should.

The [illegible] members were of the opinion that Mr. Lee knew most of the bad weed locations and that he still had the situation under hand and until a need is warranted to hire weed inspectors they would refrain from [illegible] so for the present time.

The 1966 tentative Agricultural Service Board Agreement was presented to the Board members by A. E. Edwards and B. M. Lee. Mr. Edwards and Mr. Lee explained the program and also new projects which were in effect and suggested that the Board members take the information home to consider and be prepared to complete the Agreement at the next Service Board meeting.

Considerable discussion ensued on the question of having the Service Board Minutes printed in the local newspaper as is being done by the Municipal Council.

A. P. Blatz moved that the Board recommend to the Municipal Council that the Minutes of the Agricultural Service Board be printed in the local Community Press under the supervision of the Field Man, B. M. Lee.

B. M. Lee informed the Board members of the arrangements which have been made to attend the Chemical Meeting at Provost on March 8, 1966 and requested being notified as soon as possible if any Board member or Councillor required transportation.

B. F. Chart Jr. drew the attention of the Board to the statement in the previous minutes which referred to the rotation of the farm members on the Service Board and stated that no policy had been established. Mr. Chart expressed his opinion that a policy should be established on the length of time a farm member was represented on the Board. After considerable discussion the Board members were in agreement to continue the present arrangement until such time the need warranted a change.

Moved by A. E. Edwards that the meeting adjourn and that the next meeting be held on Friday, April 1, 1966 commencing at 10:00 a.m. in the Board Room of the Municipal Office, Sedgewick. Carried.

HONORABLE ERNEST CHARLES MANNING

Ernest Charles Manning, Premier of Alberta, President of the Executive Council and Attorney General, was born at Carnduff, Saskatchewan, on September 20th, 1908. His parents, George Henry Manning and Elizabeth Mary Dickson, had emigrated to Canada from England and had settled on farm land in this section of the Province of Saskatchewan. Later moving to Rosetown where Mr. Manning received his education.

In his youth he was led to Christ and into a life of active Christian service through the radio ministry of the late William Aberhart, and when Mr Aberhart founded the Calgary Prophetic Bible Institute in 1927, he was the first student to enroll. Three years later he finished his Matriculate's first grade in nuts & became one of its lecturers.

In the depression years of the 30's, Mr. Aberhart and Mr Manning become deeply concerned with the impact of the depression, especially on young people who seemingly faced a bleak and hopeless future in their concern they became interested in the economic and monetary proposals of Mr. Jor C. H. Douglas, a British engineer who had written a number of books expounding his philosophy of, "Social Credit" Mr Aberhart and Mr Manning believed these proposals offered a practical solution to the problems of the depression.

Attempts to interest the government of the day failed and so Mr. Aberhart and Mr Manning sought the interest of the public with the result that Social Credit candidates were swept into office in the election of 1935.

Mr Manning was appointed Provincial Secretary at the age of 26 on September 3, 1935. A short time later he organized the Department of Trade and Industry, which he headed.

Mr Manning has been Premier since Mr Aberhart's death in May, 1944, and has served also as Provincial Treasurer from 1945 to 1955.

While Mr Manning has been Premier, Alberta has become one of the outstanding provinces in Canada, second to none in industrial development, health and welfare services, agriculture and education. As Provincial Treasurer he was responsible for the debt-retirement program which calls for the total repayment of the provincial debt by 1973

Premier Manning has led the Social Credit Party through the provincial general elections of 1944, 1948, 1952, 1955, 1959 and 1963. In Calgary, where he ran in 1935, and as Edmonton where he has contested the elections since that first occasion, Mr Manning has been given the highest personal endorsation by heading the polls on each occasion with an overwhelming majority in October, 1963, he assumed the portfolio of Mines and Minerals and relinquished the position in October, 1962 In August, 1955, he assumed the portfolio of Attorney General.

The Honorable Mr Manning has maintained his active Christian layman's ministry throughout his public career. His weekly radio service known as "Canada's National Back to the Bible Hour" which is broadcast over radio stations from coast to coast, is the most far-reaching ministry of its kind in Canada. Recognized by all for his integrity and concern for the material and spiritual welfare of his fellowmen, Mr. Manning is known far beyond the boundaries of his own province and country.

On May 18th, 1940, Mr Manning received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws (LL.D) from the University of Alberta.

Writes About South American Tour

Editor's Note The following is a letter from Gerald McShane, Hardisty, who is currently touring South America, along with Norman Holt Dear Art

As you probably know a number of friends were wanting Norman Holt and I to leave sunny Alberta as the weather would warm up, as it always has. Well, I hope it did.

After sending my wife and children to Los Angeles for a month to get her in a good mood, we decided to make a quick trip around South America. We purchased a $99.00 round trip ticket, for around Canada and the U.S., on a bus headed for Miami. After spending four or five days making up an itinery on the various planes, we were able to leave for Caracus, Venezuela on February 16th; then to Bartil, Argentine, Paraguay, Chile, Uruguay, Peru, Ecuter Guatemala, Merida, Miami and home.

Caracus is built on a mountain 3000 feet above sea level. The airport is on the coast, and to get to the city we travelled through two long tunnels one of which is over two miles long. It is a very old city built in a valley. The University covers a half section. The highlight of our visit was on a chair lift over two miles up to Humbolt Hotel built on a mountain overlooking the city. A wonderful view. Hope our slides turn out. Mardi Gra is now on so were able to take some pictures.

From Caracus we flew to Belem over both the Orinocu and Amazon rivers which are five miles wide in spots. Belem was discovered by Columbus and looks it. There is really the old and the new here. It's quite an experience to get off a plane at 4:30 in the morning and look for a room when you can't speak Portugese. There is always a girl or two on the street who is helpful. A person should never underestimate a woman. They always seem to be able to direct you to a good hotel. After you get your directions, the one word Manana can mean as much depending on how you say it — tired, thanks, see you tomorrow, etc. Our room there cost nine thousand Cruzeiros, so you can see we had to watch our budget. We are now two degrees past the equator. Warm but not unbearable, and not as warm as Acapulco. The sun is straight overhead so does not shine in plane windows.

On February 21st we flew by Douglas plane to Brasilia, the new Capital City of Brazil. It has all been built since 1956 on a plateau in the central part of the country. We left at nine in the morning on a very clear day and so were able to see roads farms and the contour of the country, which made the trip most interesting. Imagine serving dinners for 100 passengers out of a cubicle 6 X 6 feet, after they had load, through choppy, weather, a number of dishes and trays ready to serve. Must tell my wife when she complains of her small kitchen.

We arrived here in the evening It is beyond imagination. The street is ten or eleven miles long and you must walk at least twenty miles to see the main centres. It has an artificial lake around it The buildings are beautiful, but again many of them are only finished nor are the streets ever swept.

We will leave for Rio to-morrow and will try and write you again from Argentine or Lima, Peru

If you care to print this, it will save me answering a lot of questions trampled underfoot by a heartless and arrogant administration. There is no time, Victor Spencer become a cause celebre. The opposition howled that Spencer had been publicly branded a traitor and placed under lifelong surveillance without even having the opportunity of trial. The government protested that Spencer had publicly identified himself with his own actions. Justice Minister Cardin on the advice of his law officers and undoubtedly encouraged in his stand by the RCMP, argued vehemently against any inquiry being launched into the case. Inquiries cannot be permitted into national security cases as they would expose in the view of Canada's enemies her counter-espionage organization.

The cabinet studied the case. Prime Minister Pearson at the outset was inclined to the view that Canada's national security procedures might perhaps be due for a searching examination by a judicial committee or commission. But the majority of the cabinet was opposed to such a move and the decision was taken to stand firm against the demands of the opposition for an inquiry into the Spencer case.

The battle was joined on the floor of the House. The Conservatives and NDP dug in their heels and stalled and delayed the passage of estimates, arguing vehemently about the need for an inquiry to look into the Spencer case to ensure the former postal clerk had been fairly treated. The Prime Minister said Spencer had not complained of his treatment, on the contrary he had sent a letter to the government in which he thanked them concerned for the considerate manner in which they had handled his case.

The verbal battle dragged on. The government was getting close to the deadline when it would have exhausted its financial resources. Still the opposition refused to budge. Justice Minister Cardin, his patience exhausted, allowed an his tormentor, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and the Tories had been assailed before in the Commons. The fury he aimed at the defiant Conservative hanging on the ropes & Cardin was the hero of the Liberal backbenchers. Cardin declared firmly, emphatically and finally that he had stated the Government's position and it would not be changed.

But up rose David Lewis of the NDP. In a reasonable appeal to the Government and Prime Minister, he argued that such obstinancy bordered on stupidity, that there would be no threat to national security in granting an in-camera inquiry into the Spencer case.

His clinching argument was that he had contacted Spencer through a Vancouver lawyer and Spencer had informed Lewis he was not satisfied with his treatment, that he regarded it as unfair that he should lose his pension and insurance benefits and that he wanted an inquiry.

That did it. Prime Minister Pearson wavered. He was now concerned that perhaps an in-camera inquiry should be held to ensure that Spencer had not been unfairly treated. There were those in the Government who wanted to still stand firm against the demands of the united opposition — all four groups were now against the government. A motion of confidence in the Justice Minister was moved. A vote might have seen the defeat of the government. A minority government must give ground under such circumstances.

The Prime Minister did just that. He capitulated. He agreed to set up an inquiry in-camera. But first he would personally interpose the alleged spy to ensure that Spencer had indeed want an inquiry. The phone call was made, probably the first time in history that the head of state has telephoned a man accused of being involved in an espionage ring. But Mr. Pearson went further. He returned to his original contentions and announced the decision to establish a sweeping inquiry into the whole national security procedures in Canada.

The opposition was jubilant, it had humbled and humiliated the Government. The Liberal backbenchers and many of the Cabinet were indignant and disgusted with Mr. Pearson's capitulation. They were irate at the treatment he had accorded Mr Cardin, who was left shattered and visibly embittered. His political enemy, the Opposition Leader, tasted the fruits of victory and found them sweet. He was not magnanimous. He gloated in his triumph and whipsawed the Justice Minister while other Conservatives paced and sat in the open wounds. The Government had survived the crisis but it will never be the same.

Worms

By Bert Odland
Have a worm!
Please don't be offended. I'm speaking figuratively. You know, early birds . . . worms . . . etc.
You be the bird. I'll furnish the worms!
Here's the deal: Comes Fall, we naturally are swamped with furnace work. That's when the late birds start thinking about the heating season. But some other seasons, like now, time hangs heavy between coffee breaks.
So now we can do a top-flight furnace service or installation job. This means you won't have to wait in line next Fall.
And we will do it for less dough right now. (That's the worm, you lucky bird! And that's your incentive to act now.)
Need more incentive? Okay, how about this? . . . . I'm a Lennox dealer. Which means the top manufacturer in the heating industry is standing behind me and my products. (And not very far behind, either, because I deal directly with factory representatives.)
So, my fine feathered friend, it's worm time . . . . yours for the pitching. I'm all a-twitter here by the phone, waiting for your call. Why not get your heating system in shape now, and at a saving?

Presbyterian Assn. Meets

KILLAM—The March meeting of the Killam Presbyterian Ladies Association was held on the evening of March 10 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Grant with nine members answering roll-call with a verse of scripture.

The Devotional Period under the joint direction of Mrs. Joseph Grant and Mrs. Hilda Wasny opened with singing hymn 370 followed by prayer. The Scripture reading was read alternately from Psalms 124 followed by the topic taken from Glad Tidings entitled "When we Confront the Year Ahead". Devotions closed with singing hymn 338 and the Lord's Prayer.

The Business meeting opened with the reading of the minutes and their adoption followed by the reports from the Treasurer, Visiting Committee, Home Helpers, Welcome and Welfare, and Cheering Committee.

After a discussion it was decided to have quilt blocks, one from each member measuring 20 by 20, ready to put up and assemble this month.

Some of the members reported an enjoyable visit to Flagstaff Lodge as well as a birthday party for a member in.

Many house and hospital calls were also reported as well as cards and gifts to sick and bereaved.

It was also decided to make some preparations in the church for the Easter Services.

The meeting closed by repeating in unison the Mizpah Benediction followed by a lovely lunch served by Mrs. A. P. Grant and Mrs. Wasny assisted by the hostess.

Dayland Opens New Community Centre

DAYSLAND—Citizens of Dayland and District turned out in force on Saturday afternoon to officially open their newly completed Community Hall.

The new hall is located just to the East of the Curling Rink and the Arena in an area that is fast becoming a major recreation centre in the Town of Dayland. Constructive of the centre has just about been completed at a cost approaching $70,000. The only work remaining is on the outside of the building, and it is awaiting warmer weather.

Official opening of the new building took place at 2:00 p.m. Saturday afternoon when Mr. Jack Hillman, M.L.A., assisted by Mayor Allen Pryor cut the ribbon across the main entrance and declared the hall officially open.

Ceremonies then moved to the main part of the hall.

The centre is divided into three major parts. On the East end is a room for holding meetings and smaller gatherings which takes up about one quarter of the floor space. Next to this and occupying about the same space is the kitchen, rest rooms, a service area, and main entrance. The West half of the building is the main hall which is equipped with a stage, dressing rooms, dance floor and special lighting.

Cement block walls with open beam roof were used in construction of the building which is very tastefully decorated. Workmanship appears to have been of a very high calibre.

Mr. George Cramston acted as M. C. for the ceremonies at which the contractor Mr. W. G. Bennett turned over the key to Mayor Pryor. Mr. Sam Wirth gave a brief history of the project (from the original) idea some three years ago right up to the day tour was finished. A thank-you note was to be sent to Mr. H. Probst to thank him for taking the girls to Camrose to record their talk for the C.F.C.W. Radio contest. An upcoming work meeting was also discussed. The meeting was adjourned and God Save the Queen was sung. Strome Picnic At Peace Arch Park

Times don't change too much in some respects it would appear. From the Biblical days when the people were scattered throughout the world and the language was confounded, we can trace the same things happening today. While the confounding of languages does not apply to Canada, certainly the scattering of the inhabitants is still with us. Reunions are the longing for association with friends of the past. That this is so, is emphasized by the fact that efforts are being made in many areas to bring people who have left old stamping grounds, together periodically to renew old acquaintances.

The latest attempt in this direction has come to our attention in a letter from George A. Clark, a former resident of Strome, who now resides at 645 Cooper Road, Richmond, B.C. We have a feeling that George, while happy in his location, has a longing to get together with former acquaintances from the Strome area.

He informs us that there will be a "Strome Picnic" on July 3rd, 1966 at the Peace Arch Park picnic grounds, for a Sunday afternoon of fun and "Chit-chat". The Park is located on the border of Canada and the U.S.A., near Douglas and Blaine, ports of entry.

George envisions quite an attendance as there are many former Strome residents, both young and old, now living at Seattle, Portland, Vancouver and various places in B.C.

In Protest Of Grain Movements

An Editorial

The movement of grain from country points in the Western Provinces has been a source of annoyance for some years, in fact during back to 1953, it is doubtful if the situation was ever as bad as it has been during the 1965-66 crop year. With seven or eight months of the crop year behind us, we find that a very small percentage of the grain has been moved out from the country points. Agitation has corrected this to some degree, but the hauling points that if something concrete is not done now, the same situation could prevail next year. To avoid this, efforts are getting underway to prevail on the government to correct matters and assure that the CPR moves the grain in a steady movement throughout the crop year, and gives the public service for which it is responsible.

A local movement is underway in this connection, instigated by a group of concerned citizens, who have drawn up a resolution to be presented to the Federal Government, C.P.R. Wheat Board and others.

A Public Meeting has been called for next Monday, March 28th in the Community Hall at Sedgewick, timed for 2:00 P. M., Mr. Park Dobson of Paradise Valley will be the guest speaker, and will review the entire grain handling situation. The responsibility for transportation lies with the Federal Government, and in their hands lies the power to correct the most unsatisfactory situation.

This is an economic situation that concerns all citizens in the Western Provinces, and a large turnout is urged for this meeting sponsored by an independent group of farmers and citizens who are deeply concerned over the service currently provided by the CPR.

The tentative resolution which will be forwarded to the proper authorities reads as follows:

"WHEREAS the Northern part of the M. D. of Flagstaff No. 62 of the Province of Alberta, together with many other areas of Alberta are served by the Canadian Pacific Railway are not enjoying the same service as areas served by the CNR, in having grain moved from local elevators to grain shipping terminals; and

"WHEREAS this has been a continuing and worsening situation since the year 1953; and

"WHEREAS the situation is causing hardships to the farming and business communities of the areas concerned; now

"THEREFORE be it resolved that the responsible departments of the Government of Canada take immediate steps to rectify this deplorable and unsatisfactory situation."

Turn out to this meeting, hear a review of the transportation situation by a knowledgeable speaker. Discuss the Resolution and make your contribution to it.

Canada Is Fed Up!

The Canadian people are completely and thoroughly fed up with the childish antics of Parliament. They are deeply chagrined that the senior government could behave in such unseeming manner and embarrass the nation in the eyes of the world. So much so in fact that it is quite likely the two old line parties will be compelled to wander aimlessly for many years in the wilderness of popularity before they ever again approach near the point where they will again be entrusted with the affairs of the nation. Parliament has reached such a low ebb of decency that it is very doubtful it will ever again hold the respect of the Canadian people.

That such a situation should exist mainly because two men hold such a bitter dislike for each other that their personal animosity takes precedence over the affairs of the country, is something that people of Canada should not have to tolerate.

A part of our National Anthem goes like this: True patriot love in all they sons command. There are people who sing this with enthusiasm, with pride and with unmistakable patriotism, and endeavor to live as they sing. No less should be expected and demanded from our national leaders. And if they cannot perform this simple task they have no place in Parliament. It is time every member of the House of Commons cut the umbilical cord that ties them so strongly to party politics, and got down to the serious business of conducting the affairs of the country as grown men and national citizens.

That this can be done under present conditions is doubtful. The bitterness it too deeply rooted. But there is a way to right the ship of state and enter the calm waters while repairs are made from the damaging storm of the past few years.

It's more than likely that few people would listen to the Editor of a small town weekly much less those with 18 thousand or more reasons to remain in Ottawa, but we suggest that both Mr. Pearson and Mr. Diefenbaker resign their seats in Parliament and let things get back to normal. It is certain affairs will never be normal with their presence. We will even go further and demand their resignations forthwith for the good of Canada, and hope we don't end up in gaol as a security risk.

Rise In Food Prices!

Farmers' Union of Alberta President Paul Babey says government should launch on an immediate investigation into spiralling food prices to determine whether or not increases have been justified. He says he buses his statement on his observation that the gap between producer-consumer prices is widening, as evidenced by the announcement early this week of major increases in bread prices.

Commenting on the announcement, he says, "Canadian Bakeries are using misleading statements to justify bread price increases."

"The announced 9% boost in prices has been attributed, among other things, to 'an increase in the price of ingredients'. Since flour is the major ingredient, the statement infers that wheat prices have risen accordingly. This inference is completely false. Farmers have just received their final settlement for wheat showing an average price decline of ten cents per bushel from the previous year.

CBC Under Fire Again

The House of Commons has again been told that the Canadian people should be warned of the pro-Red infiltration in the CBC. It is a known fact that communism attempts to infiltrate our society in whatever area where it can undermine. This is done even in our educational system wherever possible, and in our religious institutions. But to have it brought before us on television, by an institution maintained by public funds is carrying the joke much too far. It is distasteful to have a distorted picture of the world put before us by our publicly-owned and taxpayer-financed CBC. Our statesmen, and most sensible people take the view that the U.S. is in Viet Nam, because without it there would be a spread of communism through out Asia and the overrunning of countries that have stood for freedom. But what about the CBC? According to some of its programming you would think the U.S. was one of the great enemies of mankind. Propaganda is spread by the malicious CBC on how terrible the American's are acting, the diabolic cruelties of American soldiers. Why? The answer is that there are people in some of the top CBC programming positions who have no inkling of life under communism and have never shed their theoretical Marxism and naively-idealistic pacifism. What these people are doing is brainwashing the Canadian people; and the Canadian children, for this pro-Red line is beamed into our classrooms as current affairs.

Uneasy Lies The Head

Rumor has it that Queen Elizabeth will abdicate the throne due to the heavy burden of family, royal activities and national obligations. Contrary to our ultra-modern concepts of labor relations the Queen puts in a 12-hour day. This can even get to royalty eventually. If union bosses ever get hold of this flagrant abuse of human rights, the world may see a Union Of International Royalty Workers wherein members will work less hours by hiring more members to do the work. A sort of a dual-occupancy of the throne. Well, it's a thought anyway.

—Fifty-Eighth Year of Service—

by A.C.E.

It looked like spring was on the way until winter suddenly returned on St. Patricks Day to show us that we weren't going to get through March all that easy. With the warm weather and a few spots of ground starting to appear, it almost seems like the time to get out my baseball glove and start loosening it up. No matter what old man winter thinks, it can't be very long now.

Talking about baseball. This summer near the end of July almost exactly one year after he fell and broke his hip and was forced to retire from baseball, Cardy Sheppard will be enshrined in baseball's Hall Of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y. He was voted in by special process which got around the normally required waiting period of five years after retirement. Casey spent 55 years as a player, coach, and manager and is now 75 years of age. It seems only right that he should get into the honor while he is still alive to enjoy it.

Heard an old married man warning a young fellow not to take the big step. He said, "When I was first married and would come from work the dog used to bark for joy and the wife met me with my slippers. Now when I come home the wife barks at me and the dog brings my slippers.

The Letter Box

The Editor:

At the annual meeting of the School Division it was revealed that the past year's operations showed a deficit of some $56,000. We also learned that new facilities are being built at Stettler at Dayaland School to accommodate additional pupils. Then we learn that students are being brought in to Central High at Sedgewick which could possibly require additional facilities in the foreseeable future. Now to me the whole thing off we are informed that a new Divisional office is in the works at the Board. Anyone who has been in the office can see that there is not much lack of room or facilities, and indeed not such that the expenditure of Sixty thousand dollars is necessary at this time. Many of us who must pay for this are living in poorer buildings. Does the Board not realize that there should be some caution used in spending the taxpayers' money? We have a deficit to recover and school facilities to build which are of far more importance. The Board would be well advised to reconsider the move to build a new office at this time, and there should be a public protest against it vigorous enough to slow the Board down.

Irate Taxpayer.

Budget Debate Ends

Much of the sound and fury wound up last week as the budget debate ended its fortnight in the legislature.

The huge budget was passed (naturally) and it's now time to go into detailed study of legislative items — financial and otherwise.

Before the heavy speech-making was ended there was a flurry of activity among opposition members. Bill Switzer (Lt.Edson) rapped the government for neglect of planning and education. He commended the government for its huge ($117,000,000) public works program but said it should have been planned more than five years ago. And he said he was shocked at an apparent shortage of superintendents for rural areas.

The opposition leader, Mike Maccagne (L-Lac La Biche), charged the government with losing the western Canadian university college through "lack of planning" and Frank Gainer (Chilliwack — Social-Cochrane) supported him.

The bitter argument was ably countered by several government members who said a decision on the college site was largely up to the federal minister of agriculture. At the time Saskatoon was chosen Harry Hays held the job. Mr. Hays, they pointed out to those who might not know, was a Liberal minister.

Government members themselves got together to come up with a new idea. They suggested that Canada change grain marketing policies to combat a growing world shortage of food and that more thought be given to the world-wide crisis in food.

Canada could help starving nations and at the same time sell more wheat on long-term credit, the members suggested.

The idea was taken one step further, and concluded with a statement by the Provincial Treasurer, Mr. Ashborg gave fairly clear support to the idea that Alberta give $5,000,000 worth to a hungry nation (as a centennial project) noting that "people in some other parts of the world live under appalling conditions."

But mainly it was a week for new legislation to hit the floor. Although many of the bills were expected, they were nonetheless interesting. And some of the action was fairly unexpected.

For one thing the legislature resolved to ask Ottawa to carry out special studies on juvenile delinquency. (They call them young offenders.) Lee Leavitt of Calgary suggested youth parties, which are now used to judge young offenders in many American cities, might be a possibility here.

The member for Okotoks-High River, P. Dinsdale, charged that there are "basic inconsistencies" in both prevention and treatment of young offenders.

Everybody agreed that young people hadn't gotten a fair shake and they must be helped and a marketing board can be established only if 51 per cent of the farmers support it. The proposal would eliminate those who "couldn't care less."

★ MACDUFF REPORT

Shocked & Shaken

OTTAWA—After the Munsinger affair, the Commons resumed its work in a shocked and chastened mood, counting the damage caused by seven days of parliamentary crisis.

But there were some plus factors, too, in the time of troubles which began with the case of George Victor Spencer and ended with the case of Gerda Munsinger.

One was that the standing and reputation of Speaker Lucien Lamoureux was enhanced by his adroitness, wisdom and skill in handling an explosive situation.

Mr. Lamoureux has more power than any speaker in the history of the Canadian House of Commons. Under new rules, his rulings are final and there is no appeal against them — short of unseating the Speaker.

Previously, speakers of the House of Commons depended from day to day on a majority of the members present. If a ruling was challenged, the speaker was required to ask the opinion of the House. Out of the vote went against him, the speaker had to accept the rebuff to his authority.

This meant — in the plebiscite debate of 1956 for example — that the real pressure of a parliamentary battle centred heavily on the Speaker. The opposition of that day — Lucien Beaudoin — had a promising career ended as a result.

The problem was sharpened by the minority parliaments Canada has had for the past four years. Normally, a Speaker can count on the government majority to back his rulings. But with no government majority, he faces the prospect of having rulings reversed. And such votes have been used to indicate the displeasure of the opposition without risking a government defeat which would bring on an election.

But now the speaker cannot be overruled and in the hand of Mr. Lamoureux the speaker power has brought a new firmness. During the Munsinger affair, he ruled out of order half a dozen opposition motions. Under the old system, there would have been an appeal from each ruling that the speaker faced none under the new rules.

Mr. Lamoureux let the discussion run on for nearly four days before he ruled that a third motion was out of order. The motion set some kind of a record for discussion concerning a single rule-book. But like Nelson's blind eye, Mr. Speaker's feat in ignoring the rulebook helped his purpose — to cool the dynamite and minimize the damage to Parliament, and fights of this kind he is supposed to protect. When it was over, the Speaker got congratulations on all sides.

There may be other good effects as well. One is that, after 20 years, Canada's security procedures will be thoroughly reexamined by three judicial inquiries — one on general procedures, one on the Spencer case, and one on the Munsinger case.

In the midst of the Spencer affair, Prime Minister Pearson indicated that one very important consideration in security is public opinion. Some tough measures can be carried out against spies in wartime. The country is in clear and present danger, men are dying on the battlefield, and the public has little sympathy for people who undermine security. But as the memory of war fades, and with it the sense of danger, the public becomes more tolerant. This was an important element in forcing the Government to hold an inquiry into the case of Victor Spencer, fired as a postal clerk for alleged connection with a Soviet spy plot.

MACDUFF OTTAWA REPORT

The Munsinger affair had fewer plus aspects. It damaged reputations — including that of Parliament — without adding anything material to the security inquiries already announced.

But there were hopes that Gerda Munsinger may have contributed something positive to Canada. The case involving her exposed the burning resentment felt by Liberals at the attacks made in recent years by the Conservative opposition. Their attacks may have been justified but the Liberals regarded them as having continued a lot of personal malice.

But now both parties have leaned into a frightening abyss and backed away They have seen that personal accusations, hurled back and forth across the floor of the Commons, can only discredit Parliament and lower the reputation of the central government in comparison with the provinces. More than that Canada's situation now means that the French-English question astonishingly arises.

Whether the result will be a clearing of the air remains to be seen The same personalities remain in Parliament — by decision of the electors last year — and they'll probably continue to invite sparks off each other. But the Commons has had a demonstration that sparks may be all right in their place but can cause destructive fire unless quenched as they fall.

THE MUSIC MADNESS

George is the Custodial Superintendent at our illiteracy factory. (It used to be called head janitor.) I congratulated him the other day. His wife had "done well." as we say, in a music theory exam.

He shook his head. He swore. Then "It'd drive you up the wall. If I ever get married again, it won't be to a musician."

There isn't much chance of the former, as he's a grandfather. But I was deeply in sympathy with his conclusion.

It was obvious that George had had to help his wife prepare for her exam. It was on the history of music. They ask you questions like, "What instrument did Sir Schoenbaphael play to the Scandinavian Symphony Orchestra on April eleventh, 1901, when Napoleon Bonaparte was staying in the city next night, with his second wife, on the way to the battle of Austerlitz?"

But this isn't the worst of it. A chap can stand a couple of weeks of helping his wife memorize such great universal truths, and weather it.

What really gets him on his knees is putting up with the old lady as the exams draw near. She'll go through examinations with the patience of ducks taking a bath. But middle-aged ladies don't, especially when they haven't written an exam in years.

About three weeks before the exam, they begin to neglect family, house and themselves. A week later, they become nervous. In the final week, they have moved from high C to tenuous. On the day of the exam, it takes tears, tea, tranquilizers, and sometimes a good shot of brandy, before they can be persuaded into the examination hall, where they sit twitching like old fighter pilots until the papers are given out.

I don't know the details, but I suspect George went through something like the above, and I echo his sentiments, loud and clear. If I ever get married again, I want a girl who thinks a sweet potato is about the finest musical instrument that ever hit the market.

Do you know what a bore is? Well, that's what music has been to my life, for the past decade.

Oh, I know. Every family has its little problem. Its skeleton in the recreation room, its dirt under the wall-to-wall. Drinking, health, poverty, divorce, insanity, stupidity, delinquents. With our family, it's music.

People think I am carried away by emotion when I start to rob at a symphony concert. They're right. But it's not the beauty of the music that makes me break down. It's the trouble it has caused, and the misery it has cost in the last 10 years.

I used to love music, in a simple joyous, uncomplicated way. I used to whistle while I worked and walked. Everything from Grosse-Krauss, through Tin Kleine Nachtmusik to Porgy and Bess. By ear. I liked Stardust and Stravinsky and I'm Down to Get You in a Tizzi, Honey.

Then the kids started taking piano lessons. And I started trying to look intelligent when people talked about sonatinas and concertos and scherzos and dynamics and all that (you should pardon the expression) jazz.

We fight about the left hand being too loud, the scream of anger other about the kids not practicing. We go into tantrums about recitals and festivals.

Ten years and more than $10,000 later, nobody in my family can play the national anthem without three weeks of preparation. The record player rocks to The Beatles and Bob Dylan. We have to snatch the harmonica and guitar away from the kids. I would like to meet Johann Sebastian Bach on a dark night and strangle him. With a Beethovan sonata. G-string Minor.

FRIDAY MARCH 25

Gerald McShane Continues His Tour

Sedgewick, Alberta

Dear Art:

Well here we are in Santiago, Chile after a real dusty ride from Buenos Aires, Argentina. To see more of the country we came across Argentina through the Andes by train and bus, and we didn't regret it — that is after a good bath The ride was terribly dusty.

I last wrote from Brasilia. We left there by a four-prop. Viscount for Rio de Janeiro over some very poor country; very dry. We stayed at Olinda Hotel at Copa Cabana Beach, the longest one about I have ever seen. The waves come in ten feet high but just carry you in, not out. We stayed two more days and then flew to Buenos Aires by Pan Am Jet. The sun is very hot, but really not as hot as Acapulco is me

The beef steak is wonderful, not really fat but very tender and juicy. They serve it with sliced potatoes that puff up like bascuits — very good

I received my first mail from home after two tries The service is very poor. And now they are on strike Everyone complains.

Four years ago the Peso was 4 to 1 U.S. dollars now it is 238. It does not pay to carry Travel Cheques in Southern countries as they pay no much more for the cash. I'm sure glad I carried some.

By accident we met a very nice business man who took us to dinner at his club and drove us around the city, and then called a lady to meet us in Mendoza on the way to Chile who drove us out to some ranches and grape plantations. Mendoza is a very beautiful city of 300,000 and streets are shaded with trees of all kinds. The trip to Mendoza from Buenos Aires takes 17 hours by train through cattle country (mostly Holstein) and some Herefords, along with a very bright cow something like a shorthorn although a different type. After 10 hours of travelling it gets very dry and only cactus grows.

Near Mendoza at the foot of the Andes Mountains they irrigate and crops of grapes are wonderful. They also grow beautiful peaches and apples. The country here reminds me to Kelowna, B.C.

After another day in Mendoza we drove by car (made in Argentina) through the mountains of Santiago, Chile. It was very interesting but I wouldn't have missed the experience. On the East side of the slope of the mountains the road is divided down was steep and through 25 tunnels. The switch back continued 25 turns. It was a real highlight of the trip. Only pictures can describe it, and I hope they turn out.

We leave Sunday for Lima, Peru, then Columbia, Panama, Guatamala, Mexico and Miami, then home by bus Must leave on a city tour now, and Norman is cussing his pencil, so Betty's letter will have to wait.—Yours, Gerald McShane

Memory Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantlon, Hardisty, Alberta)

THE MINISTER COMES TO TEA

When I was quite young—the news that the Minister was coming to our place to tea on a certain day was greeted with great enthusiasm by the whole family, especially the young "Fry"—as we knew there would be chicken—delicious pie—cakes — and possibly homemade ice—cream, as well as other toothsome treats.

Preparing for this event always started early in the morning of the day that he was expected to come. What activity! The "Parlour" was aired, swept, scrubbed and dusted, with the old family Bible always on it's rightful prominant place—on the "Center table". The rest of the house was then thoroughly gone over —even to the bed-rooms up-stairs —not that the Minister would ever be likely to go up there—but, as Mother always said—"One can never tell". What "tussle n bab-bob", everyone in the family given some job to do. The silver-ware and old china was carefully polished and set —fresh—the big linen table-cloth chucked for any wrinkle Believe me —NO ONE penched on the job to say that Mrs. Ainsley's house wasn't just as tidy—her children just as clean and well behaved AND her suppers as good—or possibly a mite better than most of the members of the Ladie's Aid.

When we children returned from school—(Earlier than usual—because school let out "BIG DAY") we were told to hurry up the chores then get dressed. By "Dressed" we knew just what was meant. We were to wash our neck, ears and especially our hands, as usually, on making her how much his water and soap we used—our hands looked "Grubby". Then we were to put on our "Sunday Best" clothes in those days most of the children possessed just two out-fits of clothes—their every-day out-fit and the "Sunday-Best." As we grew—if our every day outfit was still fairly good, it was handed down to a smaller brother or sister or cousin—as the case may be. Then we would wear our Sunday best for every day—getting a new out-fit for this year's Sunday Best Believe me—there were no arguments as to what to wear at the different "Dos"

Back to our Minister's visit. Everything was in readiness quite a while before we actually expected him to arrive But Mother—who was an inveterate "Crank" at always being on time, kept looking out the window in the direction from which he was to come—going over in the old rongs ever so often to check on how things were doing there We children, feeling uncomfortable in our stiffly starched "Pinafores" were covetously eyeing the table, hungry as always, but more so this night as we could smell the delicious aroma of food all through the house

Finally—at long last—the Minister did arrive, (and he wasn't late, either. After each one had dutifully greeted our guest Father escorted him into the parlour—while we ran hither and thither—getting into each other's way trying to help Mother catch up the food.

As we all put our heads down and folded our hands—Father asked the Minister to ask the Blessing. (We hoped THIS Minister was not as "Long-winded as the last one who prayed so long that poor Mother was sure the food would be "Stone cold—ruined—after all her work preparing it) However, we sighed—almost audibly when—after a short "Grace he said "Amen". "Amen"—we all repeated

Then Father—looking very important—although he was un-comfortable in a stiff collonid collar—and tie—picked up the carving knife and fork and asked Mr. Thompson—"Which part of the chicken is your favorite, Brother?"

One by one we were served; and, as we were satisfying "The inner man"—complete silence reigned except, maybe someone asking for the butter or home or such to be passed

Of course, Mother and Father and the Minister did ALL the talking We children didn't DARE make a PEEP; our parents held to the NOW old-fashioned idea that "Children should be seen and not heard." If we so much as ventured a comment without being spoken to direct—we heard about it after the Minister had left. I might say — right here—that the children's conversation today, (Unless they happen to be extremely shy) dominates the dinner table by not only asking questions about the subject being talked about—but even offering unasked for—and sometimes unnecessary information. And their parents —hosts on their young "Hopefuls" as if to say—"Isn't he (Or she) clever?"

After supper we helped do up the dishes while Father and the Minister returned to the parlour where they looked through the Family photo album—talked over Church business, and so on. Then the two men came out into the kitchen where Mother was "Setting" bread to be baked the next day—(No ready-made yeast cakes in those days) we children were doing home-work.

"Well, Mrs. Ainsley", the Minister said, I must thank you for that most delicious supper. You seem to have that much-coveted knack of putting up a most tasty meal. I also like to say to you and to your most worthy husband that you have a lovely family—so well—behaved. I trust one or more will, in the net

THANKS YOU

WORMS

(By Bert Odland)

Riddle for today: What is yellow, has four legs, weighs one thousand pounds and flies. Give up? (you might as well because the answer is way out in deep left field.)

Answer: Two five-hundred pound canaries.

Not enough of this warped humor. I have a genuine riddle which keeps popping up with alarming regularity. It is this: What do you take for granted every day for six, seven or eight months of the year as it steadily works for your comfort . . . then often ignore when it desperately needs some attention?

The answer, of course, is your home's heating system. Most people have their autos serviced regularly; they feed and seed their lawns; even take their wives out occasionally. But their furnaces? Ugh, Ugh. Too often the furnace just shuts off in the spring and expects three, hot, humid months of neglected, in the basement until the fall.

It, too, needs some tender loving care. Burners, blower, flue, casing and filters need attention.

It's simply a matter of an ounce of prevention.

We are well trained and experienced in furnace therapy. It will pay you to call us to get your furnace in shape for the next heating season. At your Lennox Comfort Craftsman, we can be relied upon to do the right job — no repairs or changes will be made without your full knowledge and consent. Call us.

School Board Asks For Monthly Payments

The regular meeting of the School Division was held in the office with all Board members in attendance.

Mrs. Bandman having been declared winner in the recent election and the forms pertaining to declaration of office were officially signed.

It was passed that a 1966-67 teachers' salary agreement be drawn up with the local ATA, with changes from last year's as per a previous meeting held February 15th.

First, second and third readings were given to a Resolution to build a new office building in Killam to allow for more facilities for bus storage and repairing area in the present building. The new office is to be built in another area. The offer of the Killam Legion to sell lots 31 and 32 for $2,000 was accepted and the building on these lots will be offered for sale by tender to be removed by May 1st, 1966.

Permission was granted for the grade 1 students of Killam to make a trip to the Legislative buildings in Edmonton by school bus.

Secretary was instructed to write the Minister of Education and the local M.L.A. Mr. Hillman, stressing that monthly payments be received from the Foundation Program fund in order to curtail unnecessary interest charges on operational loans.

The following appointments were made to the teaching staff of the Division, with duties to commence September 1st, 1966: Elizabeth Welsh, Linda Roth, Helen Alexander and Sheila Rawluk.

Custodians for grades 9 and 12 departmental examination papers in each area were appointed.

It was passed that high school students at Heisler be transported to Daysland School, and that additional facilities be constructed at Daysland. These would include three classrooms, 1 sanitary room, science lab, business education suite, language laboratory, shower and dressing room, staff work area, counselling room, office, addition to the shop, and conversion of two classrooms to home ec room, along with a corridor connecting the schools.

Discussion took place on the recent high school survey in the southern part of the Division. Maps are to be drawn up showing the residence and grades of all pupils attending Alliance and Galahad. A committee will then investigate all angles as to the feasibility of bussing all Galahad and Alliance high school students to Central High at Sedgewick.

A water analysis report was received for Heisler, Galahad and Alliance schools showing all water supplies as being satisfactory.

1966 — FIFTY-EIGHTH YEAR — 1966 SEDGEWICK, ALBERTA, THURSDAY, MARCH 31ST 1966 Volume 56 — Number 46

OFFICIALLY OPEN—Mr. Jack Hillman, M.L.A., cuts the ribbon to officially open the new Community Hall at Daysland. As reported in last weeks paper, the new hall is now in operation serving Daysland and district.

Meeting Protests Grain Shipping

SEDGEWICK—An editorial in the March 24th issue of the Community Press on co-operation between the C.P.R. and three of their representatives were in attendance at a meeting in Sedgewick on March 22nd.

The meeting called to protest the movement of grain from the Western Provinces in general, and the Killam area in particular, was attended by some 75 farmers and business men along with Mr. Park Dobson, the guest speaker, of Paradise Valley, and Mr. H. C. MacBeth, Supt. of the Edmonton Division of the CPR. Along with Mr. MacBeth was Mr J. M. White the Asst. Supt. and Mr. J. A. Mackie, Public Relations, of Calgary.

Mr. J. R. Hallam chaired the meeting and introduced the speaker for the evening, Mr. Dobson. He then called on Mr. Edward Fee chairman of the sponsoring committee to read the prepared resolution, to which Mr Park Dobson was to speak.

Mr. Dobson gave a very comprehensive outline of the attempt to build a railroad across Canada in days of Sir John A. MacDonald and the various problems involved in getting the project away. It was in 1878 that the public attempt to build the railway was turned over to a private group which later became known as the Canadian Pacific Railway. This firm was given 25 million dollars plus 25 million acres of land with full mineral rights, in return for constructing the railway, stipulating that the company shall maintain and run the railway from year that time forward. The purpose of the railway was to give a service to the country and to the people of Canada. Since that time, said Mr. Dobson, the CPR has been given several further grants and increases amounting to 88% of the original, but the service given has not kept pace. The original intention of these payments or subsidies was to enable the railway to maintain and improve service, and not to form subsidiary companies separated from the Railway proper. Instead, said Mr. Dobson we find the railways abandoning lines, and while hauling a greater percentage of freight at the same time giving poorer service. He felt that in accepting millions of dollars and land they also accepted the responsibility to maintain, even facilitate and give a high grade of public service.

Mr. Dobson attacked the MacPherson Commission Report in that it felt fair short of stating that the nation and the people of Canada are entitled to the service the railways are responsible for giving.

Mr MacBeth of the CPR was introduced and invited to give the railway side of the situation.

Mr. McBeth explained that some one million bushels of grain were to go out for export in the current crop year, and that only 200 million of this is handled at Vancouver. He inferred that the West Coast simply cannot handle this volume quickly and efficiently. As a result the CPR has a two week supply of filled box cars backed up closer to Calgary chased on an unloading rate of 150 cars a day. He said the same situation existed in 1958. Mr. McBeth went on to explain that the Wheat Board sets the quotas and orders the CPR where to spot cars of the needed varieties of grain. According to the speaker there is now room for 1,000,000 bushels in the elevators at Lougheed, Sedgewick and Killam.

During a question period Mr. McBeth defended the CPR but failed to explain why there were no car quotas that points on the CPR, except to indicate that there is a shortage of rolling stock.

In "off the record" discussion with reporters the Press was informed that the need is to get the grain rolling early in the crop year, as with road bans coming up soon hauling will be impossible.

The Resolution which was presented to the meeting was carried without a dissenting vote, and copies of it will be forwarded to the Federal Government, Wheat Board and other responsible groups. The sponsoring committee was requested to act as a continuing body to pursue the situation further.

M.D. Completes Adjourned Meet

SEDGEWICK — The adjourned Council meeting of March 16th was held in the Board Room, with all councillors present.

Advice was received from the Field Crops Branch that they were prepared to make a grant in two years toward the construction of a Seed Cleaning Plant at Forestburg, subject to the fact that the Assn. must establish and maintain a fund to repair and replace equipment when necessary. It stated that the M.D. would be responsible for creating and maintaining this fund which would have priority to the payments of dividends to patrons. Council will inform the Department that the M.D. is prepared to meet the requirements. A. E. Morgan and Ed Fordice were appointed a committee on this project to represent the M.D.

Winnipeg, March 21 to 23, to an annual conference of Canada's consumer-owned retail co-operatives of the prairie provinces.

More than 300 persons attended the event arranged by Federated Co-operatives Limited, the Wholesale owned by 500 retail co-ops.

Ways to render more economical services to consumers as reconsidered by a management consultant firm, and plans to form larger but fewer retail co-ops were main topics discussed.

It is proposed that the present 300 prairie retail co-ops be eventually cut to about 140. The larger associations would serve regions embracing several communities rather than individual communities. Such a plan had been approved in principle last month by delegates representing consumer-members at Federated's annual meeting.

Unenforceable Law!

For some time we have been attempting to educate industry that the man of forty years and over is not necessarily a person lost to the business world; that he still may have something useful to contribute to society. A bit of progress has been made, but even governments have not seen the light apparently. A law introduced in the Ontario Legislature would make it an offence for any employer, because of the age factor, to refuse to hire or to deny promotion or to fire a person between 40 and 65 years. What governments fail to realize is that any man gets employment and holds his job because of ability, not age. We are at the age now where we sympathize with the over 40 but would still refuse to hire such if his ability was in question, or his health a hindrance. Law cannot change the fact that there are some times where chronological age is a consideration that must be taken into account, often as much for the worker's own sake as in the employer's interests. It cannot be ignored either that an employer may feel it unwise because of age, to promote a person to a particular job It is perhaps unfortunate, but undeniable that this law will solve not a thing and will be unforceable; and an unforceable law brings all law into disrepute.

Code Protects Offender!

According to Philip J. Farmer who is assistant director of the Canadian Highway Safety Coun cil, our present legislation here in Canada actually protects the impaired driver. In making the statement Mr. Farmer referred to section 224 (4) of the Criminal Code which, he said, gives the motorist charged with driving while intoxicated or impaired, an immunity given to no other motorist charged with any other offence. He says that it discriminates in favor of the drinking driver.

There are survey results from several countries indicating the majority of road crash victims judged impaired by alcohol were problem drinkers with histories of alcoholism, family problems, emotional disturbances in general, the social drinker is not a danger on the road. The big and expensive problem is not the social drinker, and so the need is for driving a wedge between the social and the problem drinker. The Criminal Code eliminates any requirement to undergo chemical tests and prohibits mention in court of the absence of such a test or the person's refusal to take a test. The Code, thereby constitutes an unwarranted exception to the rules of evidence. It protects the guilty, but not the innocent, and interferes with law enforcement. It is in the interest of public safety that true disclosures be made of the blood alcohol level of all drivers.

There is another road menace almost as dangerous in our contention. He is the egotist — the psychological misfit in the traffic scene. This fellow is easy to spot, and easy to detect. He is the demon of driver, pedestrian and traffic officer alike. He is the driver who shows disregard for others, who is aggressive, demanding, impatient and selfish; the fugitive from the nursery. Watch this guy. He's dangerous.

We Are Robbing Youth!

We are not suggesting that nothing be done for youth and the kids be turned loose to sink or swim. What we are suggesting is that moderation is still a mighty good policy. Too many of these youth projects seem to originate in the minds of adults and do not reflect a need that the kids themselves feel. Such projects and programs accordingly become a sort of continuation of school in the minds of young folk. This does not generate much youthful enthusiasm. The kids drag their feet & parents or other adults have to push and prod the youngster to take part.

We suggest that young people should themselves come up with programs and projects that they want. They should plan & think through these proposals themselves. Then get adults to assist with suggestions as to how such projects might be launched and carried through. Certainly the young people should be made to figure out how such projects can be promoted and financed. The kids themselves should be responsible for raising a good part of the money needed. This is not a hard-hearted attitude. It is the best possible training for young people. It teaches them, by doing how to organize, promote and pay for the things they want. There are still many ways a determined youngster can make money for something he wants without asking his parents for it. But why should he undertake the mental and physical activity required if parents and governments hand him anything he mentions? Youngsters brought up under such conditions grow into adults who think that every thing they want should be provided by some branch of government. They do not even have the benefit of the communistic belief that what is wanted must be produced by work by every member of the community. Actually there is nothing so satisfying and stimulating to young people as accomplishing something themselves, by their own effort, without adult supervision or interference. — Ponoka Herald.

The real test of willpower is to have the same ailment some person is describing to you — and not mention it.

Last Saturday students from several area High Schools were guests of the Central High School UN Club at a model Security Council debate. Participating students were assigned to represent the various countries & had the responsibility of researching their countries point of view so they could accurately debate the subject. The debate was conducted under strict rules of order and procedure and many of the speeches given by these students would amaze their parents. The adult population of the area was very conspicuous by its absence and what a shame. Many people could well benefit by attending and learning the proper way to conduct and participate in an orderly meeting. Besides that they could learn about world affairs as presented by the students.

In last weeks paper there was a picture of a helicopter refueling during recent army exercises. The helicopter was only there for about twenty minutes and it was possible to get the picture only because Mr. Ralph Swetson from the Community Press was and told us about it. We thank Ralph for this. Many times it isn't possible for us to leave in a hurry, but if we don't know about these things when they happen, there's no chance at all.

A few weeks ago I mentioned that our editor had created a letter to editor and the writer didn't identify himself. This was a slight exaggeration of Our Letter Box seems to be very popular in recent days, but the letter writer didn't get the message. The press refuses to print a letter to the editor unless the writer identifies himself. In print the writer of a letter can remain anonymous but before it will be printed the writer must identify himself to our editor.

No matter how bad things are, there is always something to be thankful for. If you can't pay your bills, at least be thankful you aren't one of the creditors.

★ MACDUFF REPORT

"WHO NEEDS AN UMBRELLA WHEN IT ISN'T RAINING?"

MLA's Discuss Poor Literature

It was the week for the legislature's annual romp through the world of filthy movies, shameful television (mostly CBC) and salacious literature.

While the discussion never solves anything from one year to the next it gives all members a chance to try to outdo their associates in oratorical competition. The speeches are often marvels of descriptive, passion and superlatives.

For instance the provincial secretary, Ambrose Holowach noted: "It's a paradox that it is unlawful to bring in some vegetables, fowl and plants while literature that is tawdry and indecent with obscenities is allowed to come in."

Premier Manning added that the problem of smutty books will remain as long as the public "makes best-sellers of the dirtiest filth in print." And he took a whack at the CBC for using public money "to pay big fees to panelists and other unsavory characters."

The whole topic was brought up by Calgary's Bill Dickie (Lib.) who suggested the situation regarding salacious literature "seems to have gotten out of hand again."

It was a week of variety.

Industry and Development minister Russ Patrick said the Alberta committee studying gasoline marketing is considering a Royal Commission study on the subject from British Columbia. Among other things that report suggested the provincial government might have to take over oil company sins unless major oil companies act to redress prices. That seems like a rather extreme proposal for Alberta.

Two members — Jim Henderson (SC-Leduc) and Mike Maerogas (L-Lac La Biche) — attacked the Lands and Forests department. They said Alberta is lagging far behind in its fish and wildlife programs.

And Health Minister Dr. J. Donovan Ross hotly denied an opposition suggestion of a secret deal between the Alberta government and the medical profession over fees. The suggestion was that a fee increase was being delayed until the medicare issue cooled off.

It took Calgary Liberal Bill Dickie only 10 minutes to introduce a motion calling for an independent commission to study redistribution of Alberta's constituencies.

Bill Dickie's Waste Committee Collector will over an hour to sheet the idea down. Mr. Colborne headed the last redistribution commission in 1955. He said he wanted to make it "simply and abundantly clear" that he wasn't opposed to the idea of representation by population but that he considered it impossible. He might have stopped there but he didn't. He pointed out that the last federal redistribution (by an independent group) crunked all sorts of controversy and that it didn't achieve representation by population anyhow.

The whole thing really boiled down to the old argument that the cities have at least half Alberta's people and should have half of the Legislature's members. Some rural ridings are already too big to be handled thoroughly by one man and "rep by pop" would make those sparsely settled ridings even bigger. The odd part of it all was Mr. Maccagno's support of his colleague's motion. The Lac La Biche riding is the biggest (and one of the most unwieldy) in the province. You'd hardly expect Mr Maccagno to support any action that would make it even larger.

The plight of farmers in the Peace River country and other parts of northern Alberta seems to be creating a good deal of confusion, along with sympathy, among M.L.A.s. A while back A. O. Fiorotto (SC-Spirit River) said homesteading regulations and other factors threatened to turn parts of the region into a "rural slum."

Last week the same Mr. Fiorotto said the image of farmers in the north has been hurt by publicity given to drought and farm problems in parts of the region. He has asked government economists to report on the entire picture, noting that land values have dropped because of reported crop failures.

The "rural slum talk seems hardly designed to boost real estate sales.

French Without Tears

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson wants to make the civil service bilingual. But he wants to do it without hurting anyone. This is a typically paradoxical position, not only for the Prime Minister; but for Canada itself. Mr. Pearson's policy on bilingualism makes sense only in the way that Canada makes sense. In other words, given a country that is part American, part English, part French, part federal and part provincial, and government itself becomes a many-layered thing.

In the area of bilingualism, for example, one side of Canadian logic says that it's more efficient to carry on government in one language, rather than two. But another side of logic says that all citizens should have the right to speak in their own tongue and to be answered in either one of the two official languages. This logic of efficiency doesn't work because it doesn't meet the Canadian situation.

Being basically unilingual in English, the government can't effectively carry on its 95 per cent of Canadians whose mother tongue is French. That's a situation that has prevailed since Confederation. The only wonder is that French-Canadian political numbers have continued to consider that the federal government is their government at all as the government of English-Canadians.

Now, however, French-Canadians want a change. They want the public service to be bilingual where it counts. They want to be able to serve Canada even though their first language is French. And now they have some strong, if cautious support from the Liberal government itself. Liberal French-English questions, this one of bilingualism in the public service is explosive.

That explains why Mr. Pearson is feeling his way cautiously, one might say timidly. It's more like a year now since he outlined the Government's determination to bring a greater degree of bilingualism to the public service. Nothing has been done since, at least nothing definite. (Recently, Mr. Pearson reconfirmed that bilingualism in the public service was his Government's objective. He had previously noted that it was "an objective and an objective only". He quoted his own words from a year ago. "In working toward that objective to make services of government available in both languages and open to both English and French speaking employees," he said, "we must guard against projecting the position of people already in the public service."

That, of course, will be a neat trick if he can do it. A policy of bilingualism can hardly be effective if it doesn't put a premium on bilingualism, and if it doesn't downgrade the unilingual person.

Bilingualism has to increase, on the strains on Confederation will become intolerable. The question will be in which way as much as possible, the effects of this on unilinguals.

While it might be too gradual for some French-Canadians, the moderate approach seems the best one possible. A more experimental committee has been at work for some time, and a royal commission for a year and has prepared an exhaustive report.

There are indications of what the report contains. The limited objective will be to make the civil service bilingual, over a period of years, in Ottawa and in areas where a large number of people speak the two official languages.

There will also be an effort to find qualified bilingual persons to fill posts in the higher levels of departments, and governments agencies. A "carrot", of perhaps $500 a year, will be paid to civil servants with demonstrated proficiency in both languages. On civil service examinations for recruitment or promotion, a bonus of ten percentage points will be given to those contestants who are bilingual. At the same time bonus factor is rather small, not so large that bilingualism in itself would over-ride the merit system.

Even these small steps, however, have brought violent response. Some warn that it is not enough. Others that it is far too much. The old familiar, blind reactions are being heard - French-Canadian persecution by the English on the one side, concession to Quebec on the other.

Mr. Pearson will have to move (Please Turn To Page 9)

RED CROSS SOCIETY

Brock Theatre
VIKING, ALTA.

Every day the newspapers are full of incidents of drama, tragedy and suspense. Many of these dramas revolve around the theme of saving human life. Many times these stories have happy endings. They often happen because of the Red Cross Blood Transfusion service.

This service is just one of the many offered by this entertaining society. There's the Junior Red Cross — a vital force for healthy living and good citizenship that reaches school children. The Canadian Red Cross Society in Alberta operates a disaster service, a water safety service and a reunion and enquiry service. Members of this society lead the way in providing surgical dressings, layettes, clothing and bedding to those in need.

We're proud to salute the Canadian Red Cross Society and give grateful thanks for this organization that contributes so much to OUR ALBERTA.

PITY FOR A PRINCIPAL

This is a time of year — one of a very few — when I feel deeply sorry for high school principals. It's the time when they have to start bidding on livestock, in the form of teachers, for next fall.

Let's put you gentle reader, into the boots of one of those sterling chaps for a few minutes. And let's say you have a staff of 10 at the moment. And let's say you don't know whether you're going to have 1,300 or 1,400 students next September.

Oh, well, so far, only two people have officially resigned. Any chief could hire two teachers. Unless, of course, those extra 300 kids show up, which means two or three more. Even so, nothing to it.

Ah, but hurry a moment. You know perfectly well that one, possibly two of your teachers, preferably from among the married ladies on the staff, will become pregnant.

You are fully aware that Maidmeasels Tartuffe, of the French Department, had an unfortunate affair with young Jobbomil, the basketball coach, and that one of them will be leaving.

The grapevine has informed you that Mrs. Billings, the old faithful in the History department, has been hitting the grape pretty regularly since her husband ran off with the waitress.

Everyone knows the English department is rife with strife. Since the unfortunate demise of Mr. Wilcey, the department head, in February, of cirrhosis of the liver, four of the English teachers, all equally qualified, have been gunning for the position. No matter which gets it, all the others will quit in disgust.

You have just heard that your Home Economics teacher, the one in charge of teaching girls to cook, planned the menu for the monthly meeting of the Unfulfilled Wives Club. And everybody came down with food poisoning.

One of your junior science teachers has just blown up $600 worth of equipment and two students, during an experiment which completely justified your opinion of his knowledge of the subject.

Little Miss Muffett, the geography teacher just out of college, is having discipline problems. You discovered this when you walked past her room and saw two boys hanging out the window. Investigation revealed Miss Muffett banging upside down, a boy holding each leg. They were tossing the wind velocity, they explained, using her hair as a weather-vane.

Monday morning, you heard that the director of your Technical department was in hospital, with third degree burns, after trying to change a fuse at home.

The head of your Maths department, old Gwillimbary, refuses to teach the New Mathematics or have anything to do with it because "It's a lot of nonsense".

And on top of this, there are four teachers you'd dearly love to fire because of incompetence, emotionalism, idealism, being too fat and plain laziness.

So you have two resignations but you might wind up with 42. What do you do? If you leave it too late, all the other principals, like so many dogs after a bone, are in there first, and you wind up with a collection of clots.

If you live in too early and start hiring teachers right and left, no body will resign and you'll wind up with 12 more teachers than the Board will pay for. And no job yourself.

As a result, quite a few principals these days are trending the thin line of lunacy. They start at about 6:00 a.m. They quail when they see a teacher looking surly.

They stare with unconcealed horror at Mrs. McGillicuddy's swelling waist-line. They flinch when a teacher knocks at their door. They peer out on troubled waters, turn their backs and find that notebook has issued a main line into motion.

Hard luck, chaps; and good hunting.

SEDGEWICK COUNCIL MEETS

Regular March meeting of the Sedgewick Council was held with Mayor Culbert and all councillors present.

Minutes of the previous meeting and the February accounts were read and approved.

Minutes of the Recreation Centre Board, the Flagstaff Lodge Board, and the Natural Gas Company were read and discussed.

Some discussion took place concerning the proposed Kinsmen at the Recreation Centre.

General Account bills No. 535 to 559 and Natural Gas bills No. 125 and 126 were approved for payment.

Considerable discussion took place on Tax Arrears and the forth coming Tax Sale.

Council approved with certain conditions the sale of Lots 1 to 8, Block K, Plan BOOAR.

Approval was given to the Town Sign as submitted by the committee and it will be ordered in the near future.

Several letter of correspondence were read and discussed.

Council passed a motion that the Minister of Municipal Affairs be petitioned for the erection of the Village into a Town and that a public meeting be held for the purpose of a vote on this subject.

It was decided to publish a dog license notice, and a synopsis of Bylaw No. 6-1967 and to give notice that the same will be enforced.

SEEDING FORAGE CROPS? If farmers are considering seeding some land to hay or pasture they should take a good look at Fuhrcost Wheatgrass.
Fuhrcost Wheatgrass has been under test at the Lethbridge Research Station for some time. It performs better than most wheatgrasses under dry conditions and this thrives where moisture is plentiful.
Fuhrcost Wheatgrass produces an abundance of forage that is relished by livestock. It is suitable for both hay and pasture. Although chemical analysis are not available, it acceptance by livestock would indicate that Fuhrcost Wheatgrass retains a high feeding value well into maturity.
Early spring vigor and ease of establishment are two important advantages of this grass. It is the easiest of grasses to establish but stands are easier to destroy than brome grass. Of the commonly grown grasses it is exceeded in earliness only by Crested Wheatgrass.
Pubescent Wheatgrass seed is larger than Crested Wheat seed but smaller than Brome seed. It is available through the seed trade selling at approximately $35.00 per 100 pounds. It looks as though this grass is worth considering in either your hay or pasture mixture
CROP LOSSES — FUNGUS DISEASES: It is is estimated that there is an annual reduction of 8 to 12 per cent in yields of wheat and barley crops from Fungus diseases in Canada yearly
Common root rot can be a problem even with crop rotation because spores persist in the soil for about three years This disease is aggravated by deep seeding. It is therefore recommended that seed should be placed no deeper in the soil than is necessary to reach moisture.
To control root rot fungus it is a very good idea to treat your seed with a fungicide. Treated seed is no longer the main reason for trusting with a fungicide, root rot and seed born diseases are for more dangerous today.
In this modern age men who die with their boots on usually have one of them on the accelerator.

ARE YOU "HAS-BEEN"? YOU ARE, IF YOU CAN REMEMBER WHEN

Ladies—that is—LADIES referred to the lower extremities of their body as "LIMBS—not legs.

It was considered most un-ladylike for said lady to show even her ankles—let alone her legs half way up to her hip.

The cut of the dresses was high-necked—not bare-backed and extremely low front.

Women's dresses had "Bustles as well as hip-packs—to make one look more "Plump".

Even the poorest women's dresses were made with LONG sleeves. (Most of the dresses today have NO sleeves whatever.)

A young lady of medium—generous proportions was much more popular with opposite sex then today's mostly "slim—to—skinny" type.

MOST courting couples sat in her home visiting and looking through one of those "Stereoscope" at scenes—instead of parking out-side. (Of course there were no cars in which to park in these days—but there WAS the family "Buggy".)

A suitor—when seriously considering matrimony looked for—and generally got a GOOD cook and house-keeper—one whom he trusted to make a good home for him and their future family.

"Baby-sitters" were unheard of. If the parents wanted to go some place and the children COULDN'T go-ALL stayed home.

When those two-toned-high-pointed hood-buttoned or laced boots were a MUST in every well-dressed lady's wardrobe

In summer—all ladies wore a hat when going out—as well as carrying a "Parasol".

THINKING MEN, ARISE

By BERT ODLAND

The "thinking men" are really puffing up a storm.

Months filled with a smoking man's haze, they are happily inhaling away, tickled to death that somebody reminded them that they are thinking men and should smoke a certain brand of cigarette. Good. They are happy. So is the cigarette maker.

My appeal is to thinking men and women ...whether they smoke or not.

(And if you are a non-thinking slob, you are still welcome to sit in on the rest of this column. I don't get very deep).

Did you ever stop to think how much air conditioning costs? Did you ever weigh the benefits against the cost?

Compared to many other ways you can spend a buck, your air conditioning dollar really does a job for you. Besides keeping you cool here is what central air conditioning does for you:

Reduces humidity indoors (cools mildew, stickiness and soggy potato chips).

Cuts housecleaning time (indoor air is filtered constantly; doors and windows are kept closed).

Improves disposition (you don't have this trouble at your house, but some people get grouchy in a hot, sticky house).

Often hayfever sufferers (many report air conditioning gives relief from some allergies.

You sleep better (unless you have something on your conscience) Entertain and dress as you wish (why let the weather dictate your social life?).

Your home is more quiet (if you lock the kids out. And with the doors and windows closed, street noises are shut out) you can do some high-powered thinking undisturbed).

So, thinking men, next time you are thinking why not ponder on this central air conditioning? If you have a couple of heavy smokers in your family, you can get Lennox central air conditioning for cigarette money. Incidentally, we sell it.

MacDuff Report

far enough to satisfy his Quebec supporters, but not too far to inspire the wrath of his English-speaking supporters. It's the same old Canadian dilemma.

The danger here is that these small and useful steps may prompt an exaggerated response which could do more damage to French-English relations. As the argument develops, Canadians would do well to remember what is being proposed, and to keep it in perspective. No one is trying to force French down anyone's throat. No one is saying that the army should be completely bilingual. No one is suggesting that the clerks in the Vancouver Post Office need to be bilingual. It will probably not even be possible for many years, at least, to make bilingualism a condition of employment in areas where both languages are spoken or even to ensure that top-ranking officials are bilingual. There are simply not enough bilingual persons of quality available.

All that is asked at the moment is that when a French-speaking person wants to address his federal government, there will be someone there to understand him in words he will understand.

If English-speaking Can a d a can't accept that simple and humane condition, then French Canada would have every right to pronounce Canada a failed union.

Baptist Church

Rev. Sple preached at the Sunday [illegible] and continued his series of messages from Romans in the morning worship service. Soloists for the day were Mrs. Sple and Mrs. Lillian Bartlett. We were happy to welcome visitors to the service and among them were Mr. and Mrs. Neal McPherson and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Tatrue who were old-time members of the Killam Baptist Church.

The Building Fund thermometer has been pushed at the front of the church Donations are now being received by the Building Fund treasurer for the building of a new much needed parsonage.

C. McShane Heading Home

Miami Florida — Dear Art: Here we are with a longing for home, and regret that a very interesting trip has ended. After a bath every morning in mountain water and every evening in mountain dew, we are still feeling fine.

My last letter was from Santiago, Chile. On March 6th we left for Lima, Peru on a Peruvian plane, the 6th of seven companies we flew with. We found the temperature just right if not in the sunlight. There is a gulf stream if cold water comes up the coast and keeps it cool. We made a tour of the ruins near there also one of the city which was quite a contrast. It has the nicest and longest airport in Latin America. We made a side trip to Cuzco and the Inca Ruins which were found in 1911. The trip was several hundred miles through wonderful scenery, [illegible] and switch-backs. From there we took a bus to Lake Titicaca Ruins some 1300 feet up. My woolen underwear felt very good even though we were not far from the equator. It's hard to imagine people building so high up on a mountain We also visited the Market where everything made of Llama and Alpaca wool is sold. Very interesting. The natives are very small and very dirty.

A little side effect was that Norman lost his travellers Cheques here and also an American $100 bill, and I got a shot Penicillin for a cold from a layman. It's just not a doctor's job. A doctor charged me 30 Sales (60 cents) for testing my heart, blood pressure, and wishing me luck. It really worked. I never missed a thing.

Cyzco has an altitude of 11,000 feet and this was one of the highlights of our trip as it makes some ruins look rather small.

After flying back to Lima for a day, we went by Air France to Quito on the Equator and the to Bagota. Colombia. This was the nicest country we were in as far as scenery is concerned, very green. The rates here were reasonable and service good. In most countries soap and towels seem very scarce.

Air France was very good, and when the highest peak was reached, tipped the plane so we could take pictures; also for a slide which covered a village a couple years ago, we also had a wonderful meal.

From Bagota we flew Brasilf to Panama, Guatamala City, Merida and Miami. Guatamala City is really beautiful. Streets are lined with flowers and verything is very neat. The climate is cool as the altitude is high. Merida, Mexico is very interesting. It is the land of the Mayc Indians and they have their own distinctive white flowered dresses mostly worn by the older women.

We flew Pan-Am from Merida to Miami at 22,000 feet and were served a most delicious dinner.

Well I must bus home from here by Los Angeles and Vancouver and it will seem slow now, but will meet a lot of interesting people on the trip as we always do. —Gerald McShane.

Over 1,000 People Inspect Show Homes

SEDGEWICK—Parkland Lumber, Sedgewick based lumber suppliers and home and commercial builders, scored a real success over the week-end with an "Open House" and display of Show Homes. Over 1000 adults were shown through the three display homes during Saturday and Sunday afternoons, with many of them coming from as far East as Provost and West to Edmonton. Registrations showed many from 44 cars such as, New Norway, Vegreville, Minburn, Innisfree, Irma, Provost, Czar, Hughenden, Amisk, Rosyth, Hardisty, Lougheed, Sedgewick, Killam, Strome, Daysland, Holden, Galahad, Alliance, Camrose and other points in this part of Alberta.

The three homes on display ranged from the modest two-bedroom style, to three-bedroom type and the more luxury-style home with modern family and entertaining design. Guides accompanied the visitors on tours of the homes where up-to-date heating equipment, floor coverings and latest type of windows, doors, and appliances were on display. Representatives from the manufacturers, Armstrong Floor Coverings, Great Lakes Lumber and B.A. Paint, were in attendance to explain the latest thing in house furnishings, and finishes.

Pupils registering became eligible for door prizes, and winners in this field were Mrs. Mervel Ann of Daysland, Mrs. Eugene Hoffman, Killam; Mrs. Dyvig, Killam; Mrs. Neil Peters, Killam, Mrs. Helen Ewack, Daysland; Forbie Wong, Sedgewick; D. Faulkner, Minburn and Mrs. H. Coleman of Camrose.

Parkland Lumber Ltd. opened for business in Sedgewick just over a year ago following the completion of the Apartment Block of which they were the contractors, and in that time have established for themselves their activities in a large part of the so-called "Parkland" area of Alberta. Managed by Mr. Stan Wood and Mr. Richard McBain, the firm has laid out plans for a wide enlargement of their building activities for 1966, and an extension of their hospitality to accommodate the rising demand.

Due to the large number of people accomodated at the Open House Display, Parkland has decided to leave the houses open to interested visitors for the next two or three weeks. All you have to do is contact Parkland office and a guide will accompany you through the houses. Stan and Rick extend their appreciation to all those who visited over the week end those who assisted them with the display.

LIONS CLUB EASTER APPEAL LAGGING

Ward from the Camrose Lions Club Easter Seal Fund is that the current appeal is lagging somewhat over last year. The Club appeals to the citizens of the area to get their donations in as early as possible and assist in putting the appeal over the top.

Baby Sitting Course Successful Affair

SEDGEWICK—The Alberta Safety Council's "Baby Sitting Course" concluded March 23rd. This course, sponsored by the Kinette Club of Sedgewick, consisted of five lessons covering the ethics of baby sitting, child care, first aid, fire prevention and safety in the home.

The Kinettes were assisted in these lessons by Mrs. Hilker, Public Health Nurse, Mr. Fred McKee, Mr. Grant Cheram, Mrs. Art Edwards, and Mr. Fred Sparrow.

Twenty-four students twelve years and over, successfully completed the examination and were given cards to signify that they attended the course and passed the examination. However, possessing a card does not in any way mean that these students are recommended by the Kinette Club. The responsibility still rests with the parents of the sitter, the sitter and the employer of the sitter.

Many parents who are deeply concerned with the welfare of their children in every other way, treat the question of a sitter casually. They fail to realize that the sitter they select is every bit as responsible for the health and well being of their children while they are gone whether for thirty minutes, for an entire evening, or for a weekend. The maturity, judgment and experience of a sitter are important to the welfare and safety of the children.

Every effort wants to be a good one through its Baby Sitting Course the Alberta Safety Council hopes to promote child safety and parents peace of mind.

Mr. Stuart Cameron of Sedgewick dropped into the Press office on Tuesday to inform us he had seen a Bald Eagle in the area 16 miles South of Lougheed, on April 1st. This bird is a migrant, flying to the North, but Stuart says this is no April Fool joke for the bird had all the markings of the Bald Eagle.

2nd Annual Model Security Council In Session

SEDGEWICK — On March 28th, students from Central, Alliance, Forestburg and Camrose Composite participated in two resolution debates which high-lighted a day of intellectual stimulation. Following the opening in the morning, Mr. H. Sluve, principal of Central, welcomed the standing delegations The Assembly was then turned over to the capable hands of Council president, Mr. J. Stein, principal of the Forestburg High School.

The morning session concerned American intervention in Viet Nam and a resolution was passed calling for reconvention of the Geneva Conference and a complete withdrawal of troops. Two "Citizens of the World" (lone representatives of the public) were recognized by the Council and made a valuable contribution to the debates by stating their opposing views. The representatives dispersed for a lunch at the Anglican Parish Hall.

The meeting re-convened at 1:30 with a resolution and debate on the Rhodesian Unilateral Declaration of Independence. As a result of a critique by Mr. Stein in the morning, calibre of the afternoon debate was considerably heightened. A resolution calling for action to be taken against Rhodesia's rebel government was adopted. Later in the afternoon Mr. J.D.G. Wallace-Brash of the British Information Service, Edmonton, further enlightened the attendance by presenting the British stand on the Rhodesian situation. A lively discussion followed Mr. Wallace-Brash's lecture.

The delegates and guests were served an evening meal in the Anglican Hall. For the representatives and students of Central High, a dance with the Dynamix rounded off the evening very pleasantly.

M.D. & SCHOOL DIVISION MEET

SEDGEWICK—A special meeting of the Flagstaff M.D. of Flagstaff was held on March 30th to deal with matters arising since the last regular meeting.

Reeve Matthews read a letter he had received from the Board of the School Division inviting Reeve Davis and two other members of the Council to meet with them on March 30th to discuss the construction of a new school office building at Killam. The Reeve also advised that a group of ratepayers had requested a meeting with him at his home on March 23rd and stressed that this was not of his urging but of that of the group of ratepayers who were concerned about and opposed to the construction of a new office at this time.

After discussing this matter for some time it was agreed that the full council and the Secretary attend this meeting with the school board, and then meet immediately after in the M.D. Board Room.

An item from the County of Paintearth indicated that the County had reached an agreement with the Alberta Government Telephones to have the cable for the Alliance and Galahad areas buried in the ditch, point of the ditch at the boxed of the road shoulder as less damage is likely to occur in this method. Flagstaff will request AGT that the same procedure be followed in the M.D. Flagstaff.

Secretary read a letter he had prepared for distribution to all resident ratepayers and contract holders, asking for an opinion as to whether the Council should extend the benefits to the Municipal Medical Scheme similar to that prepared for Alberta, or vacate the field leaving ratepayers free to enter into the Alberta plan. It was passed that the letter be forwarded to all contract holders and resident ratepayers.

Councillors Blatz and Fordice reported on the Fire Conference held at Red Deer, indicating that fire protection was growing together with the type of equipment most suitable. They were of the opinion that the right type of equipment had not yet been developed, and that no unit operated by Prevent M.D. was too expensive.

Representatives from Watrous Equipment met briefly with Council and requested Council giving their firm an order for the new motor grader blade. This was set aside until the April 6th meeting.

KILLAM—The adjourned March 28th meeting of the Council of the M.D Flagstaff was continued at the Schoen Division office in Killam when the representatives with the School Board to discuss the proposed construction of a new school office at Killam. All council and board members were in attendance

Board Chairman Nielsen informed the meeting that the Board had been contemplating the erection of an office for some years in the way of additions to present facilities. He said it was felt that the present set-up was not adequate for storage and repair of buses, storage of records, and accommodation for facilities for administration. The building of a new office would allow space for the Transportation Manager and others of 68,800. He further explained that the present area for administration had recommended a new office due to the fact that four new walls would be required even if the present facilities were brought up to date. The site chosen for a new office has good resale value and the cost of replacing the loan for the new office would be $54,000.00.

Plans of renovations to the old building together with plans for the new building were examined by the Council and explained by the Architect. The latter explained that it would not be economical, in his opinion, to add space to the present office and bus storage depot.

Reeve Matthews explained that Council had been requested to form a County at the annual meeting in 1882, and that some of the Councillors were now being approached individually by some ratepayers requesting that the proposed new school office be held in abeyance pending a decision as to the formation of a County.

The Council members retired to meet in their Board Room at Sedgewick where various opinions were expressed on the information received from the School Board, and as to the merits of a County system. It was then moved that the Council recommend to the School Board that the building of the new office in Killam be postponed for a year for the purpose of giving the people of the M.D. and the School Division an opportunity to voice their opinion in this connection. The motion was passed.

Secretary was instructed to convey the motion immediately to the Secretary of the School Division by phone, with confirmation by letter later.

A return phone call from the Secretary fo the School Division advised the Council that the Board would be pleased to attend.

"That the Council of the Municipal District of Flagstaff No. 62 be informed that the School Division Board will defer further consideration of an office building in the Town of Killam until May 31st, 1966, to permit the project and its need to be explained to the ratepayers by the Board of Trustees of the Killam School Division, and that the Council of the Municipal District of Flagstaff No. 62 be further advised that if it is contemplating a change to County Government that it advise the Board of Trustees of the Killam School Division No. 62 of its intent, prior to the above date".

The meeting adjourned to meet again in the Board Room at 10:00 a.m. on April 6th.

We'd Like To Think So!

The continued agitation that has been going on for the past weeks and months for movement of grain from the Western Provinces has brought results throughout the grain growing areas of the West. The local situation has improved greatly, and we would like to think that persistent agitation has brought it about. At the meeting held last week in protest of the existing situation, there were three men from the CPR, an increase in the local quota, and the spotting of a number of box cars. All this in one day. If nothing else, it would seem that the people upstairs will pay attention if the "grousing" is long and presistent. It is too bad though that such has to be done to keep things running on an even keel.

Besides the improvement, one other thing is apparent, and it is that we have not lost the art of "buck-passing. The grower blames the Railway (their point of contact), the Railway blames the terminals, who in turn blame the railways. Unions are blamed for striking; even nature gets blamed for allowing slides in the mountains. And in the meantime the grower sits with his bins full and his pockets empty. The grower is not as concerned with who is to blame as he is to get things regulated so the situation will not occur again. So far as we are concerned it boils down to the fact that terminals, railways, government and Wheat Board have failed to keep pace with the growing economy in seeing to it that facilities have matched our progress. Any amount of excusing will fail to meet the approval of the grain grower. Action and the assurance of satisfactory grain movement is the only thing he will settle for, and it is the responsibility of the Federal Government to see to it that this takes place.

The Frog And The Lily Pad!

A frog has something about it that's beneficial to mankind. We don't know what that something is exactly, besides providing delicious tid-bits for the tables of gourmet specialists. He appears to be a pompous creature filled with his importance to the world of things about him. He seldom gets his mouth open but can make a lot of noise by sticking his chest out and blowing off hot air. He can continue his chattering unceasingly to the annoyance of other creatures and humans alike. Does this bother the frog? Not a bit. He squats on his lily-pad and carries on his nocturnal activities oblivious to his surroundings. But is the frog so different?

Sacred history informs us and chronology agrees that man was made a bit higher than the animal in intelligence, and was commanded to have dominion over the rest of creation; and this was counted as good. The result has been that man has taken this command and asserted his superior influence in certain if not disasterous fashion. Like the frog, he has become puffed up in his importance and sits on his self-fashioned lily pad, making a lot of useless noise, and accomplishing little. Completely wrapped in his own self-aggrandisement, man has forgotten that he has a purpose on this earth and a responsibility to his fellow men. This is particularly eminent in the political scene where politicians have been so long on the psychiatrist couch they have just about forgotten how to be the noble men the Creator intended them to be. It's time they got off the couch and began once again to enjoy being Canadians.

The people of Canada have reached a turning point in attitudes, and are beginning to put aside party politics in favor of men with a vision and a sense of responsibility. Men who place integrety and a sense of duty ahead of personal or party advancement. This is their attitude today, but will it remain long enough to become apparent come the next election time?

Easter Eggs

When your children search for colored eggs this Easter, they'll be renewing a custom far older than Christianity. Eggs represent the new life that returns to earth every spring — around the time of Easter. The custom of exchanging eggs as part of the celebration began in ancient times. The ancient Persians often dyed eggs in the colors of spring and gave them to their friends as gifts. Some early people believed that the earth had hatched from a giant egg. The early Christians of Asia and other eastern lands exchanged eggs at Easter. They colored the eggs red. Elaborate decoration became the rule in some Eastern European lands. The Ukranians are famous for their beautifully decorated Easter eggs. Each village makes its own design — fir trees, horses, priests' robes, flowers, bell towers, crosses, chapels, etc. Residents of Czechoslovakia, Poland, Lithuania, and other lands also are known for their highly decorated Easter eggs. In England, friends often exchanged eggs at Easter, although nowadays these usually are chocolate eggs. The Irish break the long Lenten fast by eating eggs at dawn on Easter. Germans color eggs green on "Green Thursday" — the Thursday before Easter — and carry the eggs all day for good luck. On Easter Monday the young people have an egg-rolling contest.

In Italy, a priest blesses the eggs on Easter. The eggs occupy the center of the breakfast table, with other dishes arranged around them. In The Netherlands, children go from door to door during Holy Week, collecting Easter eggs. Young and old alike play games involving eggs on Easter Monday.

In Greece, people tap red eggs together as a greeting when they meet on Easter. The first person says, "Christ is risen," and the second replies, "He is truly risen." In Bulgaria, on Easter Saturday, people exchange eggs and baked almond cakes. In Hungary, boys sprinkle girls with water on Easter Monday and receive Easter eggs in reward.

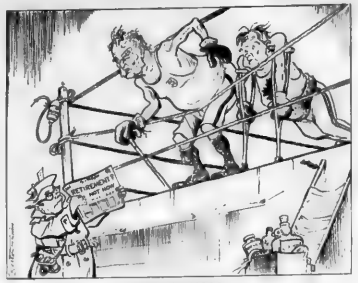
by A.C.E.

Old man winter must be getting soft. When March comes in like a lamb it is expected to go out like a lion and vice-versa, at least according to a common saying. This year March started with real nice weather and although it started to growl once the month was far from over, weather wise, then we had a right to expect and now we've slipped into April with the snow practically gone and the ground drying rapidly. If the weatherman does not slip now we'll have to give him a good conduct medal.

Prime Minister Pearson is quoted in the Financial Post as having said, "It is common and careless assumption, but a false and dangerous one, that federal expenditures are from some other source than your own pocket. that the government pays. not you."

"This is as naive as the reasoning of the patient who told his psychiatrist that he was making long distance calls to himself because that's exactly" said the doctor. 'Oh no. It doesn't cost a cent.' replied the patient. 'You see, I always reverse the charges'."



Legislature Bubbles

(By John Warren)

The legislative pot very nearly bubbled over last week. As usual most of the heat was generated by debate on one or two subjects.

And by far the hottest of these was again the matter of aid to Peace River farmers.

On Tuesday alone 14 members spoke during a two hour debate on the subject. Charges of irresponsibility, politicking, timewasting and the like flew around the house. The charges brought Premier Manning to his feet several times where he finally suggested the members "get on with the business." Socred whip Chester Sayers inverted this by demanding his right to speak. Another half-hour of debate ensued.

The whole thing was prompted by opposition questions pertaining to a CBC television program on conditions in the Peace River region.

The premier replied tautly: "If this house has to base its decisions on that type of propaganda, then democracy is in a bad way . . . . Our information was not based on the discoveries of a CBC cameraman cruising around to a few liberal farmers."

He added that the province has devised a comprehensive program to the extent of its responsibility and that it is not based on isolated cases in the region. Most northern members protested that the problem was certainly not general. All the Socred MLAs spoke in support of the government stand and called on the opposition to stop creating bad publicity for the area by constantly bringing up the issue.

At week's end the opposition showed no sign of quitting.

One of the things the legislature is supposed to do, however, is legislate. The government left no doubt about its intentions when these bills by bringing in more than 50 bills last week. 38 of them in a single day. Each must be studied in detail and we can do no more here than mention the highlights of a few of them.

How-ever, the work load makes prorogation in the Easter recess doubtful, despite the wishes of many of the members.

Here are some of the legislative items given first reading:

—An amendment to the act providing for Daylight Time has been in force for nearly 20 years. It provides that Daylight Time may be proclaimed through the provinse if a majority vote is obtained in a provincial plebiscite on the issue.

—An amendment to provide for juvenile drivers' licenses for drivers between 16 and 18. Highways Minister Gordon Taylor said it is designed to help pinpoint irresponsible young drivers and lower insurance for the safe

Letters To The Editor

To: Whom It May Concern:

As members and citizens of the Town of Hardisty, we feel have been neglected by the adult citizens. And their support is not encouraging. We have been under the impression that the chief purpose of adults is to guide the teens and help them on every favorable step on the road to becoming the citizens of tomorrow. However, if we have been misinformed, we would certainly appreciate being set straight as to what to expect of them.

As quoted by one of our adult citizens "If you don't do anything, the adults are disgusted and if you do, do something, they are also disgusted".

We feel this statement has been proven valid and has affected the success of our club, "Teen Teens". We have found that the adults are preoccupied with other interests and duties which consumes much valuable time, leaving little time to give to the Teens. Teen Town was organized with the better interests of the teens in mind, and to furnish them with some constructive activity.

The club has faltered somewhat, but the spirit of some enthusiastic teenagers has kept it from absolute disintegration. We feel if more adults took a more active interest in us, we could once again flourish and grow in numbers, which could very well prove beneficial to the town of Hardisty.

Once again, we ask to be informed of what to expect, so we do not ask too much of anyone. On behalf of Teen Town, we would like to thank Mrs. Vera Hendricks, Mr. Bill Garland and also the people who gave donations and helped make our Bonspiel a success.

In conclusion, we remind you, the leaders in our town, that in future years it will be us, the younger citizens who will carry on your duties. By helping us, you are directly helping to improve the town and make good citizens for the future.

Yours for the future and the present,

The Members of Hardisty Teen Town

Dear Sirs:

In last week's editorial "We are Robbing Youth" this paper suggests that teenagers have been catered to up to the point that they expect to get anything they want. The proposed solution is to allow them freedom to plan and execute their own projects, thus teaching them "responsibility" and "experience". We have found people reading this can only and knowingly at an adult's typical over simplification of the problem and his naive answer to it. And any teenager can tell you what some adults call overindulgence is really only an excuse for neglect, that this indulgence is to relieve adults of any responsibility to be interested in teens "youthful projects".

A case in point was the model Security Council sponsored by Central United Nations Association of Students, on March 30th. Largely unassisted, fifty students of Central, Forestburg Alliance and Camrose Composite High Schools for weeks planned their proposals, policy speeches and rebuttals on the Rhodesian unilateral declaration of independence and the war in Viet Nam. The resulting debates were of an extremely high caliber, showing an exact knowledge of details, policies and procedures.

Despite announcements of the Security Council in this newspaper and at Education Night, exactly one person from the general public came during the whole day. We were frankly shocked and awed by this monumental display of public apathy. We could only conclude that adults are either indifferent to these particular world issues or that they are unconcerned in the youth projects that they so frequently demand. And we are forced to ask: What IS becoming of the adults these days? —

Dear Sir:

Mr. Taxpayer

It is indeed time the Trustees of the Killam School Division became responsible to the taxpayer. The final straw came when the well-developed plans for a new School Division office came to the top of the table. Can the Trustees advise us:

1. Why no mention was made at the annual meeting of the need for a new divisional office?

1b. Why should plans for a new office appear in nearly completed form shortly after the annual meeting.

2. When were these plans actually started and when were these plans actually purchased?

3. Was the entire Board fully conversant with the plans as they were developed?

4. Why was the M.D. Council not advised of this development at a time when there was much display of public apathy. We could only conclude that adults are either indifferent to these particular world issues or that they are unconcerned in the youth projects that they so frequently demand. SUGAR AND SPICE
by Bill Snyder

THE SEASON FOR SNARLING

Ever have a day when you feel depressed, even surly, with no apparent reason? That's the way I am today.

Usually a sweet-tempered, lovable chap, I feel right now like kicking the crutches out from under some old gentleman trying to get across the street before the light changes.

But after a wild look around to see if there's something I could destroy without making my wife sore, like maybe a paper cup, I've discovered the source of my vile mood. There they sit, stacked about the floor of my study, those piles of trivia on which I've spent the past eight hours with no obvious change in their altitude Exam papers.

Marking exam papers is , I guess, good for the soul. It's about the only thing it is good for. It's hard on the eyes, the nerves, the holhorse and the temper.

But it has a salutory effect on the ego. It's a little like trying to pull in your stomach and finding that your chest doesn't go out any more. Or catching that first horrible glimpse of the naked bald spot which you thought was merely a thinning on top.

Yes, it's humbling. You have begun to build up — with no really good reason except that you have not been fired — the idea that you are an excellent, if not outstanding teacher.

Then you start to read what your students have "learned" from you in the past six months. Nothing. Zero. You have merely compounded their ignorance. You have only confused the simple teen-age philosophies they have acquired from television bootenanies, Mad magazine and the pashroom.

Some young and tender teachers, faced with this shattering moment, have been known to turn green, rush to the school board, offer their resignations and even, drastic case, attempt to pay back the salaries they have received since September.

For the older, tougher teachers, it is not quite such a dramatic experience. Oh, they may sweat a bit, tear their hair a bit, and frath slightly at the mouth. But they do not offer to return their salaries. The last known case of this, among older teachers, was in 1774.

The more experienced teachers accept this disillusionment as they do the changing of the seasons. They know that by some magic of alchemy of spring, Easter holidays, parental pressure, and three months of unrelenting labor on their own parts, it will be all sorted out by June, and most of the kids will advance a grade.

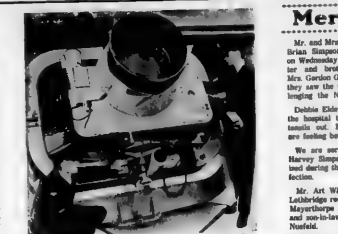
And it must be admitted that marking exams is not unmitigated misery It has its moments. On several occasions, responding to pools of maniacal laughter from my study, my wife has dashed up the stairs, ready to call the boys in the white coats.

There's the student who tries the shot-gun approach. Scatter your guess as widely as possible, and you're bound to hit something right. One such, in a recent history exam, identified John D Rockefeller thus: "He was a Prime Minister of England and very important in the labor movement." The rumble heard at the time was John D. trying to argue his way back to this world so he could strangle the kid.

Sometimes it's not funny. On a recent exam, junior students were asked to pick the right verb from this sentence: "They have (drunk, drank) all the water." A little blonde girl with troubled eyes chose "drunk" because, as she explained later, "Drunk is not a verb. It's a noun." She had good reason for her answer. Her father is one.

And then, of course, amid the welter of confusion, comes the sudden stab of pure, refreshing delight, the discovery of an original, perceptive mind, trying to make sense out of all this nonsense. It's like finding a cold place of pound in a swamp, a cool spring in the desert.

That's the moment when the poor old teacher is hooked once again by that most irritating of maladies, faith in the future of the human race. And heavy-eyed, but with a lighter heart, he bows his head once more over the wasteland of words, looking for the diamond in the coal-mine.



EYE ON SPACE. This giant camera, operated by the RCAF at Cold Lake, Alta., provides information on satellites sent up to the North American Air Defence Command's space defence center. It obtains accurate positions of satellites, and can photograph light reflected from an object the size of a basketball out to 30,000 miles in space.

Weekly Devotional

Man is created of God with an inborn desire to worship. This desire is richly rewarded when directed to worship of God. Many people attend church services for the purpose of public worship of God. Others enjoy what is called family devotions with their children at home. Still others experience rich blessings when they worship God privately in their own "inner closet." However, to receive the most benefit in worship of God we must come to His prescription or formula as an heir to John 4:23—24. The Samaritan woman argued that the proper place of worship was the important thing. Her ancestors taught her to worship God in the mountain of Samaria. She had also heard that the Jews insisted that God must be worshipped in Jerusalem.

The Lord Jesus understood her heart and mind, and affirmed that the quality of worship is more important than the place of worship. Worship is to be in public, at home, in private. His prescription for benefits from worship is simply to worship God in spirit and in truth. Now the words "in spirit" indicate a highdevel spirit in action. The Apostle Paul declares that we know a man by the spirit of man which is in him. Because we are human beings, we are well acquainted with many physical or aspects of human nature. Paul goes on to say that in the same manner, no man knows the things of God except by the Spirit of God. To worship God at all, we must first become partakers of divine nature, says Peter. We must be born of another nature apart from human nature, before we can experience a kindred relationship with God. John declares that as many as received Christ, to them gave the power to become sons of God, even to them that believe on His name, which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but born of God. Personal acceptance of Christ as Saviour and Lord produces a new creation, a human being filled with divine nature.

Then He also said we must worship God in truth. God will not accept flattery, excuses, or anything but truth. Truth spoken from the heart will bring God's response from His heart. Prayer or worship in public is as often a religious display of words and "shoots" be attempts, when all God wants is the real truth straight from your heart. Submitted by Rev. Willard Sjole Interim Pastor Killam Baptist Church

Shirts

Shirts for women and girls include separate shirts, those that are part of a suit and the shirt part of a dress.

— Slender, short figures can effectively wear shirts which are gathered, pleated, flared or straight. However, when selecting full skirts, look for one that hangs on vertical lines and has no bunchiness at the waist. When belts are worn with a shirt, keep them narrow and inconspicuous.

—Tall, slender people can wear almost any type of skirt including those that are circular or draped. Belts may be decorative, wide or contrasting.

— Heavier figures or those with full legs look best in skirts that are slightly flared or those which have gores, a single box pleat, diagonal lines, a side drape or a flat-over closing. Belts should be thin, simple and of medium width.

Before buying a separate skirt or one that is part of a suit or dress, consider the underclothing, shoes and hosiery you expect to wear with it. Select your size according to waist measurement or dress size. Try the skirt on. There should be enough fullness to prevent strain, wrinkles and discomfort. Check appearance from all angles in a full length mirror. Pay particular attention to the following.

—Waistline. Does it fit the figure snugly and hold the skirt in place? To keep the original shape and size of the waistline look for: (1) seam stretchable backing or inner belting in waistband of a skirt, (2) tape attached to waistband seam in a dress.

Hipline. Is it smooth and comfortable, especially at the fullest part?

— Back of skirt. Does it hang straight with no cupping under at the seat? If lining is used, it is firm enough to withstand strain and to prevent wrinkling and stretching?

—Lower edge. Is it an even distance from the floor and a becoming length?

Shorts, Slacks, Pedal Pushers, Jeans

Shorts, slacks, pedal pushers and jeans may be worn for sports, housework or lounging. They are sized by regular dress size or waist measurement and are available in proportioned lengths. Some are sold as separates; others, as part of a complete outfit. Shorts vary in length from thigh to knee. Slacks and jeans end and the ankle or just above; pedal pushers come to just below the knee. Some styles have pleats at the waistline to allow room for sitting. Legs may be straight or tapered to a close, trim fit. Look for well-tailored garments. Try them on before buying and carefully appraise your appearance before a full length mirror. Pay particular attention to side seams and crotch. Garments should fit smoothly at waist and hips but should not be tight. They should be a flattering length and have ample room in the crotch and backfrise (seam along center back from crotch to waistline) for comfort when sitting.

Blouses and Sweaters

Well-selected blouses and sweaters add color, interest and variety to any wardrobe. Choose them in fabrics, colours and styles that are becoming to you and that combine well with clothes you already own or are planning to buy. The points below can be applied to a blouse, sweater or the bodice of a dress.

— To give the illusion of height and slenderness, look for (1) U— or V— shaped necklines which keep the eye moving upward; (2) narrow, flat collars that follow the neckline; (3) diagonal lines; (4) close-fitting, 3/4 or full length sleeves.

— To shorten the figure or to make it appear heavier, choose (1) round or square necklines; (2) scarves draped high about the neck; (3) close or high collars; (4) wide, full or short sleeves; (5) deep armholes; (6) conspicuous cuffs; (7) horizontal yokes and insets; (8) patch pockets.

Blouses and sweaters are sized according to bust measurement or dress size. To determine proper fit, check to see that:

— Neckline fits smoothly with no binding or sagging.

— Shoulders are wide enough to let sleeves fall easily, but not so wide that shoulder seams drop down on the arms.

— Back and chest have smooth, easy fit to provide "give" through shoulders and to eliminate any gapping or pulling at front.

— Sleeve length is becoming or adjustable, as in rolling or pushing sleeves. When arm is bent, sleeve should not strain across top or elbow but neither should it appear too loose or baggy. Armholes should be comfortable, loose and nonbinding, but not so deep they create ripples under the arms. Set-in sleeves are best suited to fabrics that raglan sleeves usually have a bulkier armhole and are most comfortable when worn without a jacket.

— Length is sufficient so that garment will stay in place as you reach, bend or sit.

The Bible Today

People were not featured at the opening of the Bible Printing Plant of the Indonesian Bible Society last month A special edition of the Epistle to the Philipians in a new translation of the new Indonesian was the feature of the opening ceremonies.

As a rule, Bible Societies do not have their own printing presses. The Indonesian plant was made necessary because of the ban on the import of books in Indonesian languages. The existing presses of the country were so busy that it was impossible to guarantee sufficient Scriptures for the six-million strong Christian church in Indonesia.

The new printing plant, supported by gifts from Canada and other countries, is at present gaining experience by printing Scripture portions and New Testaments. Whole Bibles will begin production in 1968, and by 1970, it is expected that 300, 000 Bibles will be produced that year.

The first translation of a portion of the Bible into an Indonesian language was made in 1612. Bible Scriptures are available in 26 languages of that country The Netherlands Bible Society was mainly responsible for the work of Scripture translation and production until the birth of the National Society twelve years ago.

Memory Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantlon, Hardisty, Alberta)

SACRIFICE! What nostalgic sentiments that word conjures up in our mind as we re-call the last World War — it's tremendous sacrifice in human lives which it involved.

During the last war we were called upon to cut down on our usual amount of tea, coffee, sugar, butter, meat—and even—afterwards the last—potatoes.

Most of us were GLAD for the chance to do something concrete to help to win the war. The rationing of these commodities was to conserve and entered a "Sacrifice to the majesty of us. Frankly—I believe about ninety-nine percent of the folks who stayed home welcomed this chance of doing their bit to end this awful carnage of inhuman living.

So, we tightened our belts—and made do with less—hoping that by so doing it would help this war to soon come to an end. Most of us did not even consider this a sacrifice—like giving up of a few items of food—when our men and boys were sacrificing their lives and limbs that their loved ones here at home might enjoy peace and plenty.

As Easter time draws near—let us think of the biggest sacrifice ever offered to man—God's sacrifice of His only begotten Son. Man didn't TAKE the life of our Lord—HE GAVE IT—FREELY—as a sacrifice—that we might have abundant life. And He gave it for His ENEMIES as well as His friends.

And, as God in His wisdom raised His Son to Eternal life—just so will He do for us. "Sacrifice" means "Giving up". Our Minister stated recently—that sacrifice "Transforms" —changes. When one has had to sacrifice a loved one in death—there is a process of transformation takes place in the lives of those who are left behind—a noticable change in their out-ward look on life. NOW they have something to look forward to—the great re-union in the skies. Sacrifice? Yes, it may have seemed at the time that we just could NOT give up our loved one. So must our Heavenly Father —

HOW MUCH IS "A LOT"?

By Bert Odland

A man with a red neckite came into the shop the other day. He described his home to me and asked for a rough estimate on what it would cost to have it air conditioned.

I gave him a rough estimate based on his description of the house. (Actually, I would make a thorough survey before coming up with any recommendation or firm quotation.)

He blinked a couple of times at the price. "That's quite a lot isn't it?" said Red Neckite. "That depends on what you consider to be a lot," I countered, trying not to sound smart alecky. It would be a lot to spend on a boat, a second hand car or a day at the races," I went on. But it's not a lot to spend for something that is as long lasting and beneficial as central air conditioning."

Red Neckite mulled while I explained the benefits . . . the comfort, health, cleanliness, the permanent value it adds to his property. Then I compared those values against the fleeting values of other purchases that people make without giving them a second thought. Easy financing was also explained . . . low cost home improvement financing. It was one of my better sales stories.

"You mentioned that it would be a lot to spend on a boat," said Red Neckite. "What's wrong with spending money on boats and motors?" "Nothing," I answered. "Except that money would be much more wisely spent on central air conditioning which will give more day by day enjoyment and lasting value."

You know, I would have made that sale except for one thing. How was I to know that Red Neckite sold boats.

Oh, well, I've learn't another old. I'll be more discreet if you'll drop in or call us for the facts on Lennox Central Air Conditioning.

FARM ECONOMIST: The late winter issue of the Alberta Farm Economist is now available. This issue covers the highlights of the forecast for livestock production, the world wheat situation and cattle outlook. Pick up your copy at the Extension Office in Sedgewick.

VARIETIES OF GRAIN: The 1966 Edition of "Varieties of Grain for Alberta" is available now. This publication is prepared by the Alberta Varietal Advisory Committee and it contains complete information on all characteristics of all the commonly grown cereal varieties.

The different varieties are rated as to their relative yield compared to other varieties of the same grain. Each variety has its own special characteristics and as near as possible the strong and weak points of each are indicated so a farmer can make his choice of the most desirable variety of grain for his location.

BEEF CATTLE PROSPECTS: Canadian cattle prices in 1966 are expected to average at least as high as these of last year. Exact prices, however, will be dictated by feeder cattle and beef as well as the weights at which fed cattle are marketed in Canada and the United States.

According to R. E. English, Agricultural Statistician with the Alberta Farm Economics Branch, Canadian exports of slaughter and feeder cattle to the United States almost tripled last year compared with 1964. Feeder cattle exports increased from 209,027 to 596,000.

Net exports of beef totalled 68 million pounds last year compared to net imports of 13 million pounds the year before. Mr. English points out that there were the important factors which contributed to last year's improved cattle situation.

Present rising prices for fed cattle are increasing feeder profits and will ultimately result in keener competition for replacement animals, says Mr English. Estimates of beef cattle numbers in Canada on December 1st support the assumption that there are fewer cattle in Canadian feedlots than there were a year ago.

The price of feeders in relations to the price of finished cattle is improving. According to Mr. English, good returns to cow-calf operators provide an incentive for expanding the beef herd. The North American cattle industry is now entering the build-up phase of the cattle cycle.

Mr. English reports that net marketings of Canadian cattle through grading points and directly to the export market last year totalled 3,102,742. This figure represents a 23 per cent increase over the previous year. The number of steers and heifers sold for slaughter increased 2 per cent and 33 per cent respectively. Cow slaughterings increased 34 per cent.

The volume of beef produced in inspected plants during 1965 was up 10 per cent and domestic disappearance increased 6 per cent. A buoyant economy and an increasing population, says Mr. English, will further increase beef requirements in 1966.

We were reminded to plan to attend the Ladies Spring Rally in Wetaskiwin at the end of April when it is expected that Mrs. E. C. Manning will be the guest speaker. Much business was discussed including plans for a "Carnival" on Saturday night in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sorenson and family who will be moving to Calgary soon.

DON'T OVERWATER YOUR HOUSE PLANTS!

Most problems experienced with house plants at this time of year are due to overwatering, says Mr. P. J. McCalla, Supervisor of Horticulture with the Alberta Government.

He points out that many people erroneously believe that providing the plants with more water will overcome problems which are actually caused by low humidity, excess heat and lack of light during the winter months.

Mr. McCalla advises watering the house plant about once and certainly no more than twice a week. He says the best way to water them is to put the plant pots in a pan of water and let the water percolate up through the soil until it reaches the surface.

Potting flowering plants in a southern window may help to make them more healthy, but drafty windows should always be avoided. Supplementing the natural light may also help. Foliage plants will do well under fluorescent lighting but flowering plants need both fluorescent and incandescent light. The recommended temperature for house plants is about 70 degrees in the day time & about 60 degrees at night.

Flagstaff Historical Society Organized

SEDGEWICK — The organizational meeting of the executive of the Historical Society was held on

MRS. WEBER TO REPRESENT W. A.

SEDGEWICK — St. John's W. A. met in the church hall on Tuesday, April 5th with Mrs. Richmond in the chair and 11 members present. The members prayer was said and the roll taken and minutes read.

The report on the bake sale was given. The president reported that the sign was damaged in the storm last summer, and had been mended by Mr. Ron Bergseth and replaced. Mrs. Richmond had served lunch to the Mission Council which had met in the church hall that week. Letter was received from the Deanery announcing the annual meeting at Tofield on May 25th.

The annual Diocesan meeting of the W. A. will take place in Edmonton on April 18th, 19 and 20th and Mrs. Weber will represent the W.A.

Tentative plans were made for serving meat to the bowling league on April 20th.

The Ministerial dinner will be on April 14th and Mrs. Richmond and Mrs. Pereira will convene.

Two lilies are to be ordered for Easter to be given to the sick after the Easter service.

The treasurer's report was received and bills ordered paid.

On completion of the business the meeting adjourned and the members went over to the United Church where an Easter program and lunch and a social hour was enjoyed with members of the U. E. W.

April 8th, at which time Mr. Tom Bruce was elected as chairman. Mrs. J. Hallum as Vice Chairman, and A. W. Eastly, Sec.-Treas.

All seven members of the executive were in attendance.

After considerable discussion on the subject of membership, it was decided to charge a membership in the Society of $2.00, which fee gives the member full privilegee.

Mr. J. Kvill gave a detailed outline on drawing up a constitution and the aims and objectives of such a Society. He, along with the Secretary were appointed to proceed with drawing up a constitution for presentation at the next meeting.

The name for the society was entered into at some length with the final choice of Flagstaff Historical Society. The log hall which will be moved into town shortly and used as a museum will be known as the ...g Hall Museum.

It was decided to write to various organizations, outlining the function of the Society, and solicit financial assistance in getting the museum into operation.

The Society aims to cover the area of the Flagstaff Municipality, and invites all people interested to become members. Memberships are to be available soon from any member of the executive, Tom Bruce, Mrs. J. Hallum, A. W. Eastly, Mrs. H. W. Smith, Morris Simpson, John Kvill and Leif Ceback.

The Log Hall is nearly ready for moving, and a site for its location has been chosen. It is anticipated that it will be ready for display, along with historical items, by the first of July.

THE HANGMAN REMAINS. The shadow of the noose continues to loom over Canada's penal system, following a rejection by the House of Commons, 143 to 112, of a resolution to abolish capital punishment. Asked to comment on how the decision affects 72 men awaiting execution, Mr. Pearson, an abolitionist, replied, 'My responsibility was to provide Parliament with an opportunity to come to a decision. The Government accepts the decision and will operate under the law." Pearson's Cabinet commuted every death sentence, a total of 36, since coming to power in 1963.—TMS Photo

CPR Claims Credit For Moving More Grain

CALGARY — As a result of the recent protest meeting held in this area against the slow movement of grain, particularly wheat, the Community Press has received the following communication from Mr. A. Merkle, Public Relations Representative of the CPR. Mr. Merkel claims that the CPR has moved out more wheat than it has been given credit for, and the Press believes that in fairness the released figures should be published:

"The Canadian Pacific moved 9,464 carloads of grain, 16,338,000 bushels, from Alberta into British Columbia during the month of March, a 20 percent increase over the heaviest grain shipment month previously on record, it was shown in figures which became available today.

"The figures for January, 1964, the former record month were 6,827 carloads carrying 12,854,000 bushels. In March, 1964, the record year for Canadian wheat movement, the comparable figure was 9,580 cars, or 11,660,000 bushels.

"While Canadian Pacific was piling up record figures for deliveries of export grain into Vancouver last month, the terminal elevators were establishing a similar record for unloading CPR cars, reaching an all-time high of 8,189 cars, or 16,378,000 bushels.

"Based on a 23-day working month, the unloading figures averaged 356 carloads of Canadian Pacific grain compared with a previous record average of about 275 cars. The Canadian Pacific delivery figures, worked out on a 31-day month, averaged 272 cars daily and included an all-time record day, Sunday, March 13th, when 631 cars with 1,322,000 bushels, were moved into British Columbia through the Kicking Horse and Crowsnest Passes.

"In addition to the 9,464 cars delivered into British Columbia during March, Canadian Pacific had an additional 1,708 carloads in Alberta March 31 awaiting westward movement".

To Hang Or Not To Hang!

With ten members either absent or abstaining from voting, the House of Commons declared itself in a free vote, of retaining the hanging method of eliminating certain categories of lawbreakers. By voting 148 to 112 the House indicated that opinions were fairly evenly divided. Judging by the debates in the House feeling also ran fairly high. Nothing of this of course has much to do with the merits of retaining or abolishing the hanging of certain classes of criminals.

Those who adhere to the theory of "Is it not written that whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed," have little more to shore up their argument than those who believe in the theory of an eye for an eye, and the fact that opinions vary widely only leads to the conclusion that neither has a real solid basis for argument. The crux of the matter is whether man has any right to take the life of another under any circumstance. But murderers we have had with us since time began and shall have until time is no more. But because this is so, does not give man the right to do likewise in the name of law and order. On the other hand how do you go about controlling the inhumane acts of the human race? The subject is a thorny one which even Parliament has not yet solved.

But aside from all this the fact remains that convicted murderers have for the past number of years not paid the supreme penalty by having sentences commuted. So we see no need to hold to the law if it is to be disregarded in the future. Distasteful as it may be, there is little sense in a judge ordering a man to be hung by the neck until dead, only to have someone more in authority countermand the order. We should either impose the death penalty where indicated or do away with hanging altogether. Authorities face a difficult choice.

Who Put The Bite On Your Purse?

That time is here again when a parade of sham salesmen will circulate the country with bargains of every description goods at below wholesale, and any variety of get-rich-quick schemes. Once again we feel it a duty to warn you of these unreliable people whose only concern is to make a quick sale and disappear from the scene.

We recently heard of a worker who is obliged to pay $64 a month for the next five years for an array of goods he was informed were free; of a woman who was hoodwinked into signing promissory notes to a salesman to the sum of $3,840, and was unaware of what she was doing. It could happen to you. It's happening to people all across Canada. These sam salesmen are experts, and often represent themselves as something they are not. They assure you that your signature is just a formality, but remember that every time you sign your signature you are signing away part of your savings, perhaps all of it.

Always be sure of identification. Phone the office he says he represents, or hold off and write. If you are a woman wait and check with your husband. Tell the salesman you will do some checking and he should call back later. Chances are you will never see him again. In any case never sign your name to any document until you are absolutely certain of what you are doing.

Battle River Sounds Good!

In the Federal re-distribution of seats some changes are going to occur, and whatever the changes are there is going to be some who are not going to like it. It was ever thus. Locally, it appears that our constituency may in future be known as the Battle River Constituency, eliminating the word Camrose from designation. As was to be expected the City of Camrose is opposed to the change and has communicated with our M. P. Mr. Cliff Smallwood, who in turn has replied that he favors the retention of the name Camrose. A very natural reaction from both ends. Camrose wants there "Town" mentioned and Mr. Smallwood is politician enough to go along with it. The reason advanced for the retention is that Camrose is the only city in the area, which in fact, is reason of little consequence. The rest of us may live in smaller communities but our towns are just as important to us. It is only reasonable to suggest that the constituency designation contain the name of no particular community within its bounds. Battle River Constituency fits the situation very nicely.

Near The Peak!

Canada's cost of living went up faster last year than in any of the last 10 years, says an article in the April 16 issue of Maclean's Magazine.

Maclean's asked W. Allan Beckett, former federal government economist when and where inflation will end and why the 1966 dollar is worth only 82 cents compared with the 1956 dollar.

Beckett blames the rapid growth in our economy for the inflationary tendencies. There has been more money available to spend on goods and services but almost inevitably the supply of those goods and services has not grown as rapidly as the money available to spend on them. So prices go up.

On the other hand, he says, such things as TV sets, radios, refrigerators and toasters are all cheaper in terms of actual dollars and cents. And other goods — cars, packaged foods and some clothing — may now cost more but they've also greatly improved in quality over the years.

Beckett believes Canada now is near the peak of the present fast price increases. He notes that there has always been a degree of price stability in North America that cannot be matched by any other part of the world.

by A.C.E.

We spent the Easter Weekend visiting friends and relatives in Edmonton and since it was almost a year since the last time I was there, the many changes in the appearance of the city amazed me. Especially in the outskirts of the city where a fellow doesn't normally have occasion to go. Many of the old landmarks that I was in the habit of using as guides are being replaced and the roads and streets are continually changing. One thing I wish they would change is their early closing law On Sunday it is nearly impossible to find a restaurant that is open. The city folk probably know right where to go, but what about the tourist? One other thing that was annoying on the trip was being stopped by a red light on a main Alberta highway, just because it goes through Camrose. It would certainly be much better for the traveller if the highway had by-passed the community which would speed your journey.

"ANYTHING TO DECLARE?"

Mr. Gordon Returns

OTTAWA — Walter Gordon, the former Minister of Finance, who resigned from the Cabinet over the last general election, remains politically ambitious. There are persistent reports that he is planning to make a run for the national leadership of the Liberal party.

If he does, and there is reason to believe that he will, he will give a good account of himself because there is still a segment of the Party that leans towards Mr. Gordon and the policies he represents.

Meantime there is no vacancy. Prime Minister L. B. Pearson made it clear recently at the Quebec City founding convention of the Federal Quebec Liberal Federation, that he is prepared to carry on as leader of the party. He said he was resolved to continue his work; to carry on for as long as he has strength and vigor and the Party wants him.

That seemed to pretty effectively rule out any early leadership convention. There is a majority group within the Party that would like to see Mr. Pearson step down this summer turning the October conference of the Party into a leadership convention. Put it is a small minority. By far the great majority wants him to continue at the helm through the centennial year.

There is possibility that he might indicate at the summer of 1967 and he had decided the time had come to go into retirement. That would mean a leadership convention in the Fall of the next year or the Spring of 1968.

Four of his cabinet colleagues, aware that Mr Pearson has no intension of carrying on for another four or five years, have quietly let it be known that, "Barbis is willin' " They include External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp Trade and Commerce Minister Robert Winters and Defence Minister Paul Hellyer.

All four were seriously considering making the trip to Quebec City for the founding convention of the new federal section of the Party.

Their plans become public knowledge and at a caucus of the Liberal M. P.'s just ahead of the Quebec meeting, Mr. Pearson was pressured. The Liberal backbenchers suggested it was embarrassing to Mr. Pearsons and presumptions of the aspirants to be appearing to set off a pre-leadership convention campaign in Quebec

The four members of the cabinet took the hint and dropped plans to make the trip to the French speaking capital. Mr. Pearson went alone and got a tremendous ovation at the dinner meeting he addressed when he said he had no intension of stepping down for some time to come. He joked with the press about the noticeable absences of the more ambitious members of the Cabinet.

But overlooked in the speculative stories that appeared as a result was the name of Mr. Gordon. He is planning his return to power within the Liberal party hierarchy.

He has written another book. It is to be entitled: "The Choice for Canada— Independence of Colonial Status." It will be on the bookstands in May. Mr. Gordon hopes it stir up a controversy in the country and particularly within the ranks of the Liberal party over what policy that Party should follow in the years ahead. The book pronounces that he will have a strong appeal to the left wing elements within the Liberal parties and to nationalists. Mr. Gordon more than once in recent times has expressed concern to a few of his former colleagues that he is afraid the Liberal party is reverting to its more moderate or middle of road position.

Using his book as a springboard and capitalizing on the debate that is expected to stir up within the Liberal party Mr. Gordon will undoubtedly use a leading role in the discussions on policy at the Liberal conference. That conference has been called for Oct. 9 to 12 in Ottawa. It is expected to be attended by two thousand delegates from all across Canada.

Mr. Gordon, according to close associates, hopes to be in a position to exert a strong influence on the policy discussions in that conference. He percipitated the controversy in February within the Liberal caucus at Ottawa over the question of whether to lift the six per cent interest ceiling on chartered bank lending.

The former finance minister spoke out at the caucus against any proposal to lift the six per cent limit. In this position he had the support of a large group within the caucus who are worried that if the Party agrees to removal of the six per cent limit it will be immediately labelled the party of "big business" by the Conservatives and the New Democratic Party.

A cabinet committee is hoping to work out a compromise. The solution it hopes to come up with would give the banks more flexibility in fixing interest rates without removing the ceiling entirely.

Mr. Gordon's ability to exercise influence within the Party has not been destroyed by his departure.

Taxes To Go Up?

The betting now is that the M.L.A.s will be back to pick up their cheques and go home on April 14 and 15. Last week gave them lots to think about during the Easter break.

The major story was undoubtedly provided by the government's study committee on public expenditure and revenue. In a 146-page report that was two-and-a-half years in the making, the committee recommended (and not entirely optimistic) look at Alberta's fiscal future.

It suggested that taxes and fees on fuel oil, gasoline and car licences be raised after any year in which there is a "significant budget deficit." Consideration of a sales tax was recommended if such additional revenue is not enough to cover half of the proposed deficit in any year.

Outside the house Provincial Treasurer Anders Aalborg noted that the large $60,000,000 deficit predicted for this fiscal year could be termed "significant." The implication is that the tab for licences, fees and taxes will go up next year unless oil and gas again provide unexpected revenues.

The committee left no doubt that it felt Albertans can pay more for public services — and it suggested increased government participation in many of services, including the foundation program for education.

It also gave the government a pat on the back for an oil and gas policy that has encouraged development of the industry and provided the province with a share of government revenue over nearly two decades.

Premier Manning also outlined for Alberta to drop all estate taxes. He said it would probably involve some kind of deal with Ottawa which now receives 25 per cent of the money collected from estates. By abandoning the tax Mr. Manning hopes to persuade people with money to invest to come to Alberta. Other taxes and ever-all industrial growth would more than offset the $3,000,000 annual estate tax loss.

The committee studying electoral boundaries came up with a complicated scheme that will give Calgary and Edmonton each two more seat. However it didn't shuffle any other ridings so that the result will be to increase the number of members to 65 — which it was before the last redistribution.

Included in their recommendations was one that provides for Indians on reserves to be added to voter lists in several ridings. Of the 28,000 Indians on reserves in Alberta, 9,600 who are over 19 years of age will be eligible to vote.

The house also voted to ask

ture from the Cabinet late last year. He was one of Mr. Pearson's closest friends and presented his resignation to the Prime Minister on the ground that he had given the party leader bad advice in persuading Mr. Pearson that the time was ripe to hold a federal election. There have been suggestions that Mr. Gordon was persuaded to resign so to find that his offer to resign was taken up by the Prime Minister Should Mr. Gordon this Fall make a determined drive to re-establish himself in a position of power and influence within the Liberal party it could bring on a crisis that might seriously divide the Party. He managed and controlled the Ontario wing of the Liberals for some time. There are several in that province who would really around him. But whether he could win support elsewhere in the country is doubtful.

If the party — when Mr. Pearson finally decided to step down — picked Mr. Gordon as leader there are many within the present cabinet who would also quit politics. It could be extremely divisive, but it would probably go down to defeat in the next general election and it might take it years to return from the wilderness of opposition.

GREEN ACRES

By A. E. EDWARDS Dist. Agriculturist Sedgewick, Alberta

THE MODERN APPROACH: Alberta farmers should be commended for the adjustments they have made during the last 15 years to changing agricultural conditions.

This statement was made by Jerry Jones, Supervisor of Farm Management with the provincial Farm Economics Branch, who went on to point out that a continuation of the farm cost squeeze will demand still more adjustments.

Mr. Jones says that decisions which were fairly simple only a short time ago, now require much more rigorous analysis. Each farm must be examined piece by piece and enterprise by enterprise to find the "blocks" that are holding up the income producing potential of the farm.

Business analysis and partial budgeting, says Mr. Jones, are the keys to unlocking farm resources. These tools which are far more effective than the trial and error methods, are needed to dispose of trouble spots in the farm business.

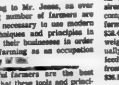
Land, capital, labour, equipment and management must be put to work in the right places and in the right proportions to reduce uneconomic tasks and unkown if a reasonably high standard of living, security, recreation and enjoyment are to be maintained.

According to Mr. Jones, an ever increasing number of farmers are finding it necessary to use modern tools, techniques and principles in managing their businesses in order to enjoy farming as an occupation and a way of life.

Successful farmers are the best evidence that these tools and principles really work. Skill in their use can be obtained by participating in Farm Accounting Club, a Farm and Home Crop or a Farm Management Association.

Contact your local district agriculturist, home economist or regional farm economist for information on these programs which are designed to make Alberta Farms the best places to work and live.

ROP PROGRESS SUPERIOR: Alberta cattlemen who want to choose a sire or replacement females for their herds will find performance testing records a great help in making this selection. The records show growth and feed conversion rates, both of which are highly heritable characteristics.



Children often poke small objects such as buttons, nuts or pieces of toys into their ears or noses. Probing for these can cause damage — removing such objects is a doctor's job.

Claims Summer Fallow Unnecesary

Summer fallowing is an unnecessary and wasteful habit contended D. J. Pittman of the Lethbridge Research Station. It isn't necessary on the black soils, and years of crop record indicate it is seldom necessary on the dark brown soils.

He says ninety-seven crop years of data have shown that if there is 27 inches of moist soil under the stubble at seeding time, there is a better than 80-90 chance of obtaining at least 12.5 bushels per acre on that land if it is recropped.

A plot was established at the Lethbridge Research Station in 1954 on which a crop is seeded every year there is 27 inches of moist soils; otherwise the plot is fallowed.

Only once since then has the plot been summer fallowed, says Mr. Pittman. One year there was a crop failure. The average yield of the plot for all years is 16.1 bushels per acre. A fallow-wheat rotation at the same spot has averaged 13 bushels per acre of rotation.

Most people say they summer fallow for greater yields, says Mr. Pittman. Results indicate that while yields of wheat on fallow are usually higher than those on stubble land, the average yield per acre of rotation is not as high.

Moisture conservation is another reason given for summer fallowing. Research on the prairies has shown that about 70 per cent of the moisture conserved during the fallow period is saved in the August to April period immediately following harvest of the last crop. Unless certain perennial weeds necessitate fallow, it becomes nothing more than an unnecessary added cost for the farmer and an exercise period for his machinery, says Mr. Pittman.

While it is recognized that plant foods in the soil become more available to the plant with the passage of time, says Mr. Pittman, summer fallowing is a costly way of releasing these nutrients to a growing crop. This can usually be done more economically by adding commercial fertilizer.

There are many arguments in favor of reducing fallow, he says. Eliminate fallow and you almost eliminate soil drifting. It reduces the expense, time and labor required for the fallow operation and could very much today to leave a little when it can grow a crop, he argues.

Accurate records on yields and costs of production, and the amount of moisture in the soil are the determining factors, he says. Summer fallow cannot be eliminated completely, but it can certainly be reduced in most areas. It may mean a greater use of straw choppers and change in tillage implements, but "Listen!"; some meditations on the problems presented by seeding stubble hurt.

MRS. HUSTON TALKS TO DAYSLAND U.C.W.

DAYSLAND—The U.C.W. meeting was held in the United Church hall Thursday evening with 17 present and four visitors. President Mrs. Hamilton conducted the meeting. Miss Laura Graham read the Secretary's report in her absence. The Devotional was given by Mrs. Orr. Mrs. Jones showed a film on Judgement and Consecration. The guest speaker was Mrs. Hume from Camrose who showed slides and gave a very interesting talk on her trip to visit her daughter, Dr. Helen Hume, in Nepal. She also visited Hong Kong and explained how our money that we give to Missions go to help the poor in China. She became acquainted with a fifteen year old girl that the United Church are helping through school for without help she would not be able to.

The President thanked all those who helped in clean the church.

Miss Graham reported four get well cards sent during March. Members reported over forty calls made on the sick. Mrs. Hume Scheidt on the visiting committee reported she had made 31 visits and 8 hospital calls.

Mrs. Hanrahan and Mrs. Gerhart offered to act on the visiting committee for April.

In the absence of the Manse committee Mrs. Martin gave the financial report stating that some painting had been done and the Chesterfield and chairs had been reupholstered.

A motion was made to have an exchange sale at our next meeting with articles to the value of 75c. The date of the Fun and Talent program had to be changed to April 28th. Mrs. Hatchel asked for more volunteers to help with the programme and asked that some of the ladies help to put on a skit or musical number.

Lunch was served by hostess Mrs. N. Hatch, and helpers Mrs. Gerhart and Mrs. L. Hamilton.

Card of Thanks

I wish to extend my sincere thanks and appreciation to all my friends and relatives for the lovely flowers, cards, letters, treats etc. received during my illness. Also a special thanks to Dr. Patel and the Wonderful nursing staff of Killam Gen. Hospital. —Helen White. 48-1-p

FUN IN A BIG FAMILY

As the family grew in number and the acreage of our farm land increased—making it necessary that more help was required out-side, I felt that I, too, needed help in the [illegible].

Therefore, I was fortunate in procuring the services of a very competent middle-aged woman whose home was in town. She was in her forties—and, from all accounts had had a rather hard life here-to-fore.

However, I was glad to get her, and we got on together fine. If, at any time I had to be away from home for more than a day—I felt perfectly satisfied to leave my family in her care. She was a bit "Tough" as far as her language went, (Especially if and when she became provoked), but she was an dependable otherwise that I readily over-looked that.

On Saturday I found it imperative that I be gone the whole day—(I was on the school board and there was a big meeting in town that day); the family had had an early supper planning, as usual on a Saturday to go to town for the evening Both of our older kids could drive a car by this time.

Although we never asked our hired women to milk a cow—as the three older lads did that job-she decided to help that evening as they could get into town a bit earlier. Of course, with no fridge—we kept the cream in the cellar. So, after putting it in the cooling pans—she had set the pan on the cool earthen cellar floor as always—intending to dump it into the cream can when it had sufficiently cooled. But WHY she put it as close to the cellar steps I'll never know—as we always put it away over from the steps—JUST IN CASE of an accident.

After they had all sat down to supper—they thought they would like dill pickles with their other food—so Darrel, (Always the willing one to do anything) jumped up from the table—opened the cellar door—ran down the steps—and PLUNK—went one foot smack into that pan of cooling cream. Can you imagine what Mrs. Sheridan would say? I guess she was extra tired after helping with the milking — on top of the Saturday housework. Anyway, the youngsters told me afterward—that her vocabulary lached no spice—to say the least.

After the mess was cleaned up and Darrel had changed his footwear—and they were all sitting down to a very be-lated supper—no one saying a word—when Mrs. Sheridan—glaring at Darrel, said "alright, Darrel, you little devil — ask the Blessing". Snickers went around the table — and, by the time the Blessing was said—everything was on an even keel again.

BUCKETFUL OF CURIOSITY. These two little kittens kept getting under foot as the master did his spring plantings in the front garden, and finally they were sentenced to bucket confinement. Still, you can't keep a kitten from looking.—TNS Photo

Forestburg Students To Build School

FORESTBURG—We in the Western World are enjoying unprecedented affluency while India and other nations live in extreme poverty. Canadians enjoy the second highest standard of living in the world and have an annual per capita of almost $2,000 as compared to India's per capita of some $65. Moreover the gap between the rich and the poor nations is constantly widening. The rich nations are becoming exceedingly richer, while the poor nations, because the rising population hinders industrialization are becoming increasingly poorer.

Conservative estimates predict that fifteen million people will die of starvation in India next year. Besides these, several more millions will lead a life of meager existence living only to work so that they may have enough food to keep on working. On the other side of the globe we sit, complacent and unwilling to make even the smallest sacrifice so that they may live a better life. What can be done to remedy such a situation?

I believe the solution to this problem lies in education. Education will bring to these people the knowledge and skills necessary for raising the standard of living by increasing industrial and agricultural production and learning to control the population explosion. We are aware of these problems and we are concerned.

Therefore, the Forestburg High School Students' Union has decided to build a school in one of the most impoverished areas of India. This requires a reasonably large sum of money which we, the students of this area, intend to raise. Other schools in the surrounding district have been approached to give support. This money for our WAR ON POVERTY AND ILLITERACY CAMPAIGN will supply only the materials needed — the Indian people will provided the land on which the school is to built and the labor necessary to build it.

If we achieve our goal, we will have made a very small step in the right direction. We must realize that this is not enough — that we must continue to fight poverty and illiteracy in all areas. We hope that some of us will remember this commitment when we have finished our education and enter adult society.

Since contributions from our rather small student body alone will not be sufficient, we have planned to:

HOLIDAY HOOTENANNY — April 14th — 8:00 p.m. — Forestburg Auditorium; WORK DAY — April 16 — 9:00 am. to 6:00 p.m. — all odd jobs done by students. HUNGER SUPPER — April 20th — 7:00 p.m. — Dr. Bently, Dean of Agriculture, University of Alberta will be guest speaker — Forestburg Auditorium. FASHION SHOW — May 27 — Forestburg Auditorium.

The public is invited to attend these activities to help alleviate poverty and illiteracy in one impoverished area of the world.

PLEASE HELP US HELP THE LESS FORTUNATE.

END OF THE SEASON. The snows of winter have begun to melt, and it's almost time for the ski to be put away. This picture dramatically shows how the season came to an abrupt and early end for one skier, however. The skier broke her leg, and came home with a pair of crutches as additional equipment.

SUGAR AND SPICE
by Bill Smiley

SIGN OF SPRING

Ah, Spring,
You glorious thing,
You make me want to sing
Of marriages
And baby carriages;
And make me want to laugh
At a new calf;
And make me yearn for a bout
With a trout,
And make me joy in squirrels,
And pretty girls
Their poise
With boys
When the blood runs
And the fairways beckon
And the flowers reckon
It's time they put their dopey
Out of the mangey flower beds.

Well, that's about enough of that. Hope none of my students read it In my day, I've written some pretty nasty pieces about spring, but she's bounced back every year. That bit of doggerel may finish her off for good.

And what a pity that would be. Winter puts the iron in our souls But the slanting yellow rays of heat, the joyous chuckle of freed water, the voluptuous stench of rotten earth emerging from the shrouds of death turn that iron, by some magic, into pure gold

I can be as grouchy as a hot-check girl about spring. But today I wandered under the eaves and felt the fey, glimmering coal of my spirit fanned into something approaching a blaze.

There was the picnic table, bloody but unbowed, after six months under the snow. There was the barbecue outfit, in three scattered pieces, excellent beckoner to all passing red steaks of July. There was the lawnmowers, reminder of days when you wear nothing but shorts, sweat gloriously, and stop for a beer every 15 minutes.

Perhaps I should put them away in the fall But when the ice age has left, and I go out and see them there, it's like meeting old friends. Rusty and ravaged, but familiar and frail.

Signs of spring every where. Shiny black squirrels, moved out of my attic, seeking scorns they missed last fall. Lady next door, who has four little sons, hanging out washing with a fifth inamiment.

Endless chant of kids skipping. Manic blow of impatient steamers in the bay, waiting for break-up. Fire sirens saluting the annual epidemic of grass fires.

Bitter lines around mouths turning to smiles. Overcoats and boots hurled into closets. Patio pots broken out. Teen-agers standing on corners, bunting like young calves. Women's hats — goofy, exotic, irreverent, awful. Old ladies tippytoeing about, first time and alone this November. Kids up to their ears in mumps.

Anglers and golfers bragging, speculating about the great new season Housewives, coolness, shouting greetings to neighbors. Teachers cursing as they mark Easter exams.

Perhaps you can, but I can't imagine living in a country where the cycle of the seasons is almost unnoticeable I like to be where the action is I like spring to come like a shot of adrenalin, not a lukewarm cup of tea

It is little wonder that myth and legend, poetry and painting and music, and in mediaeval religion, celebrate the theme of regeneration in the spring. If there is such a thing as the indestructable spirit of man, which I firmly believe, it would be impossible without spring.

Think of it A year in which the days did not lengthen, the sun did not warm, the green did not appear, the grass did not grow, did not appear, the and did not expand. We would be living up at the ends of docks, clambering for six-cleaners, and packing the subway stations for boring-under-trains-purposes, by the first of June.

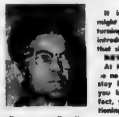
History Lesson



It is fun to speculate how history might have been changed at crucial turning points had one more factor been introduced. Here are a few examples that skipped through my skull recently.

HAROLD'S ENGAGEMENT

At Munich: "Look, Adolph, there will be no appeasement. I'm prepared to stay here all year, if necessary, until you back down on your demands. In fact, your Lebensraum sir could do Hanning is so delightful that I might stay all year regardless."

VALLEY FORGE — "General Washington, sir, Now would be an excellent time to attack the Redcoats. The surprise would be terrific . . . they think we are freezing to death here in the valley. Look sir they have their coats wrapped around their feet because you had the foresight to install Lennox central warm air heating. We'll win the war by spring."

PILGRIM FROM EGYPT: "You changed my mind, Abdul," says the Pharaoh, "stop beating up on the Israelites. I've lost my grouch since Lennox air conditioning brought relief from those murderous Egyptian summers. In fact, I think I'll even give 'em the right to vote."

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS: "The heck with Queen Isabella, man, let's stay here in the new world. They'll never find us. This is the first time ashore that I've been comfortable and had relief from my hay fever . . . This Lennox All-Season air conditioning with electronic filtering beats anything they have in Spain.

YOU: "I'm paying for comfort whether I get it or not. So why not get it? I'm going to see Odlands right away.

Raptist Church

The quarterly business meeting followed the regular Wednesday night Bible study and prayer service with reports given from the different departments of the church. Some advance as well as some decline was reported.

The Young People Group presented an Easter Pageant "The Light of the Cross" on the evening of Good Friday. Special musical numbers which included solos, a duet, men's quartet, choir numbers and an instrumental rendered to present the story of the cross and the resurrection of Christ.

A "farewell" was held in the church auditorium on Saturday night in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sorensen and family who will be leaving our midst. Lunch was served, followed by a program with Hertley Heartberg acting as M.C. Reminiscent and farewell speeches were given as well as special musical numbers and a reading. Richard and Hazel were presented with a gift from the church and Valarie and Beverly were presented with gifts from the Sunday School Department. We wish them God's blessing as they accept this new challenge.

The Easter Sunday services were a real blessing, as Rev. Siple presented the Easter message. Special music was provided by the choir, and an instrumental and solo were enjoyed in the evening evangelistic service.

WEEKLY DEVOTION

Recently I have been reading Thomas Merton's "No man is an basic truths of man's spiritual life. ntic truths of man's spiritual life. One of his chapters deals with the subject of prayer — an activity which I feel causes confusion and wondering in the minds of many. What should we pray about? and How can I best pray?

There are, he says, many levels of attention to prayer. "First of all there is purely exterior attention. We say prayers with our lips, but our hearts are not following what we are saying. We think we would like to mean what we are saying. But if we do not mean it any better than this, we will seldom really pray. If we are quite content to pray without paying attention to our prayer to God, it shows we have not much idea of who God is, and limi ve ale not really appreciate the grace and the privilege of being able to speak to him in prayer. For prayer is a gift of God, a gift which is by no means given to all men. Perhaps it is given to few because so few desire it, and of those who have received it so few have received it with gratitude."

How easy it is to forget this great truth, that prayer is a privilege, and is just go through the motions when we have to. We may pray hard enough and with our minds concentrated upon what we are saying when things are going badly for us and we "call upon the Lord" as men have done throughout the ages for God's help, but the correct and constant use of formal and private prayers will keep us close to Him and better able to resist the temptations that so easily beset us.—Rev. A.Steele, Sedgewick.

Council Working On Rural Road Planning

SEDGEWICK — The adjourned meeting of March 28th was resumed in the board room on April 6th with all councillors and the secretary in attendance.

Mr. Weir of the Consulting Engineers and Mr. George Loft of the Town Planners, were in attendance to discuss the Rural Road Planning. Maps of the divisions in the M.D. were distributed to each councillor with the request that they mark thereon known and probable locations of gravel and sand deposits, trouble spots or prominent road problems; also roads that should be incorporated into the secondary road system to best serve the needs of each division. When this is completed it is expected that work on the project will get under way. It is anticipated that a meeting of the Local Central Road Board in this will be called for June or early July.

In response to a letter from advisers in Bashaw along with one from the Department of Health stated that approval had been given for a one-half acre addition to the Morris Cemetery, subject to the approval of the Council of M.D. Flagstaff. This approval was given by the Council.

Representative from Strout, Robbins and Morrow indicated that his company was having difficulty securing an overburden permit to haul the 20 Caterpillar Tractor from Wetaskiwin to Sedgewick.

The council adjourned to meet on the Flagstaff Farm Purchase Advisory Board to hear the application of Colin Collins of Killam, to purchase the N.W. of 26-44-13, containing 160 acres. The application was approved.

A delegation from Dunsdale, Bellshill and Farrowtown was present to discuss the construction and operation of a proposed Seed Cleaning Plant at Forestburg. A list of those having bought shares in the plant was submitted, and stated that to date some $15 thousand had been collected, and land selected for the site of the plant. This was not approved by the council. The M.D. will assist the project with $30,000 provided a like amount is raised by the Association, and the agreement to this effect was signed.

The 1966 road construction program was discussed with T.C. Graham, the road foreman, along with the working conditions for the employees. He requested that his machinery being used on road construction be paid for at government rates. The time and location of commencement on the road program for the year was left with Mr. Graham.

It was agreed that the gravel crushing machine be first moved to the pit on the Leslie Ball farm, and then there go to the pit at Kelsey.

Constable Vanderwoude gave his police report for the month of March, which was accepted by the council.

The financial assistance program for the year 1966-67 was received from the Alberta Civil Defence Northern Zone, and discussed and approved. The Reeve was authorized to sign the program as requested.

The matter of the divisional boundaries of the Province for the purpose of electing directors to the Alberta Association of Municipal Districts was discussed. The step indicated that Flagstaff would be included in the Red Deer area. Secretary was instructed to inform the Association that Flagstaff preferred to remain in the Edmonton area as it was nearer to transport facilities when attending meetings in Edmonton.

Information was reviewed on the insurance covered by the Municipality, as was culvert prices.

Notice was received from the Town of Daysland regarding a special frontage assessment, and that the amount chargeable to the M.D. on the site of the motor grader shed was $15 per year for 20 years. They also informed that a court of revision would sit on May 11th to hear appeals in this connection.

THE RISING RED RIVER. The swollen Red River has spilled over miles of farmland in Manitoba and flooded low-lying sections of town, sending several thousand people in the Red River Valley fleeing from their homes. Above is a scene at Morris, with a car partially submerged by the icy waters of the rising river.

RECEIVE GIFT—Mrs. Gordon Brodie and Mrs. Ray Manning accept a gift of $100 from Mrs. Doris Evinson. The gift given to the Hospital Auxiliary represented the profits from the recently held Fashion Show.

Daysland Council Sets Court Dates

DAYSLAND—The Fire Chief and Councillor G. Cramics, who attended the Annual Convention of the Alberta Fire Protection Association in Red Deer, gave a report of that Convention. Topics discussed were rural fire trucks, how they were manned, housed, who pays for housing them, servicing costs and costs of fire calls into the country.

The Mayor appointed a Councillor to check into the cost of purchasing a time clock that would activate the siren at the fire hall after the conversion to the new telephone dialing system is complete.

Further information was received from the Oil and Gas Conservation Board in Calgary in regards to gas wells in the Daysland area and different proposals received for the construction of a gas system. These were discussed at some length by council.

By Law No. 6180 was passed providing for the collection of water rates in the Town of Daysland.

Resolution No. 138 was passed setting May 16th at 7:00 p.m. as the date and time for a court of Revision to hear appeals of business assessment for 1966.

FIRE DESTROYS FARM HOME

HARDISTY—Fire destroyed the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Beebe on Saturday morning of last week. The cause of the fire has not been determined.

The fire engine from Hardisty was called out, and willing neighbors did all possible, but with the high wind the flames soon took over, and most of the contents of the house were saved.

Mr. and Mrs. Beebe, who now live in Edmonton, had spent Easter week on the farm with their son Jim.

Two Cars Stolen From Hardisty Firm

HARDISTY—Crime struck in Hardisty on Friday night last when two cars were stolen from Hardisty Motor Sales.

The office of Hardisty Motors was broken into and the keys to most of the new cars taken, along with a shot gun belonging to Cecil Rempel. The thieves then attempted to get gas at the B.A. Station, but filled one car with diesel fuel, latter abandoning the task. However they got away with the other car.

Petty thefts were also reported during the week to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Rempel.

St. Paul's Church Trustees Elected

HARDISTY — The meeting of the Trustee Board of St. Paul's United Church, Hardisty, was a bit historic locally, as it was the first in 32 years. When Miss Gladys W. Shilvock was elected chairman, it may have become historic to the church at large, as in his 49 years of preaching Rev. W. G. Switzer had never known of a woman to be elected as Chairman of Trustees.

Appointed as Sec-Treas. was B. Rempel. The five Trustees met on the 5th day of April.

Stanley Ganier of Hardisty was elected chairman of the building committee of St. Paul's Church and Mrs. Harold Moody, secretary, on the same evening.

YOUNG SOCREDS PRESENT PINS

SEDGEWICK— The Sedgewick-Coronation Young Social Creditors met at their home on Thursday, March 17th for the April meeting.

The play "Cyclone Sally" put on by the group, proved very successful, with a total attendance of all showings being about 675. It was decided to hold a social at the Morris School on Tuesday, April 26th and invite all those who had helped with the play.

Social Credit Pins are to be presented to the actors. All those who took pictures of the play are asked to bring them for viewing. Bob Foggo was appointed to arrange entertainment for the evening.

Discussion took place on a candidate for S. C. Queen at the annual Provincial Y.S.C. Sports Day at Medicine Hat in July. Shirley Brandinger will be the candidate.

Plans To Work In Africa

Miss Yvonne Walmsley, one of two Education Assistants of the U. of A. is to spend two months in Africa this summer, working and living with African people.

OPERATION CROSSROADS AFRICA was organized in 1957 and since then about two thousand students from the United States and Canada have participated. The United Church Board of Mission has undertaken the organization of the project in Canada. This year with 16 Canadians going, they are sending the greatest number that they have ever been able to send. It is strictly a volunteer and private organization. The students are very carefully chosen from all across Canada. The students receive no remuneration and must pay 30% of the expenses entailed.

CROSSROADS works in co-operation with the governments at the African countries, send e.g the groups where the government requests.

QUOTATION FROM YVONNE'S LETTER/

"I think that the important thing by far myself — but also for these CROSSROADS is its particular aims. It is not sending 320 young people over from Canada and the United States to do " great things" for Africa and the African people. Obviously in eight weeks this would be an absurd expectation. Rather I view this as a learning experience — particularly for myself — but also for these Africans with whom we will be in contact. To them I will be an individual, as opposed to the white man, or Western mass, or "the haves". With me lies the responsibility to establish a meaningful relationship with them, to search discover all that I can about the village the area and the country where I'll be for eight short weeks. I want to discover and explore their "being".

Call Back Yesterday!

The above heading and the following comments are from the publication "Industry" which we read some time ago, under the caption, "Inflation At Work."

"The standard definition of inflation is a rise in the money supply relative to the stock of things which can be bought. The automatic result is a rise in prices. Therefore it is equally right to say that inflation is another name for a reduced standard of living. People in this country where a better than usual living standard is the rule, don't like the standard to drop off, so the emphasis has been placed on increasing money wages. This spreads a lot more dollars around, and within a short time people with extra dollars face an increase in prices. This in turn causes a chorus of sighs about the good old days when "a dollar was really a dollar."

"Let's face the facts. The greenback that man has in his pocket today is still a dollar. He can still get 100 cents for it at any bank, not just 60c as you might suppose when you hear it called "A 60c dollar." The reason the dollar is weak is because the man with the dollar won't do as much for it as he once did. This being true how can he expect it to do as much for him?

"No cheating or bargaining or smartness will ever get a single one of our wants out of nature's store house at half price. Our physical strength depends upon working our muscles. Our mental strength depends upon working our brains. If we want more, we must work more. As a nation we cannot buy and consume twice as much as our grandfathers did unless we produce twice as much goods."

What's the solution? You can't completely defeat inflation in times like these, yet you can minimize it, by a combination of increased manpower, machine efficiency and the will to work; longer hours if necessary, but certainly a full day's work for a full day's pay. The accent should be on work, for cut down work and we'll soon have a 15c dollar. Cut it further and we may not have a dollar at all.

Things are beginning to open up in the nation's preparations for the celebration of 100 years of statehood. Centennial projects are taking shape at an accelerated pace with many communities across Canada competing with each other in a friendly way to see which can come up with the most and the best ideas. This is certainly a good omen and would indicate that Canadians are not as indifferent as many of us have been led to believe.

But there may be another and lesser celebration which might well be called the pre-Centennial Achievement. It is being quite freely predicted that Canada will this summer reach a total population of twenty million, and since the present count is about 19.8 million, it could be that we may achieve this figure sometime this year. Notwithstanding this though, there is an area of doubt that this will be accomplished. Immigration, although up by 30 percent in 1964, still produced under 147,000 (which cancelled out the national loss from deaths), and our loss through emigration of 75,000 leaves us with only a net balance of 70,000. It has taken 35 years for Canada's population to double from the 10 million we had in 1930; it took us from 1930 to 1951 to add four million, including the 300,000 we gained from New Foundland as the tenth province. This is not too impressive an achievement, and now with it becoming quite apparent that immigration laws will become more stringent, our annual loss by emigration could surpass our entries to the country.

The national birth rate has fallen year by year since 1957 from 28.2 per 1000 of population to 21.4 in 1965 (the lowest since 1939). In 1965 there were 419,000 births, 33,000 fewer than in 1964, and 147,000 deaths. Now that the "Pill" has entered the scene, we are informed that the birth rate has again dropped by from 6 to 7 percent. It is further predicted that as improvement in pills comes about and their popularity increases, the birth-rate could dovetail to an all time low. We don't have too far to go to arrive at the stage where the birthrate is non-existent. A horrible thought.

Automation Not An Enemy!

Talking to an engineer from the city some months ago, the writer was told that if the trend toward automation was not stopped the unemployment situation in Canada would become so dangerous that it could lead to a civil war. Our contention was that no such situation would come about as automation would not become the enemy we supposed. The situation existing today goes to prove that this is correct. We hear very little today from the alarmists who were so busy telling us the facts of life. Small wonder. Unemployment today is virtually non-existent in most industrial areas, and is presently at its lowest point in ten years nearly everywhere. The big problem today is one of a labor shortage. Canada today has the fastest growing labor force in the Western world. When you stop to realize that the national labor force is increasing by 200,000 and more annually, you get some idea of how many new jobs have to be found, and in a time of great technological advance. Yet this is what the nation is doing, and the jeremiahs who were predicting disaster, are confounded. Almost a million jobs have been found for Canadians since 1960, not by government edict or direction, but by the forces of private and competitive enterprise in an expanding market economy; in a time of significant improvement in industrial productivity, with the accompanying elimination of a number of occupations which have become redundant.

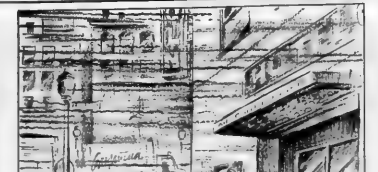
by A.C.E.

How much is a pinch hitter worth to a baseball team? In the case of Mickey Mantle this New Yankees say $100,000 a year. Of course he will be much more than just that because some fans turn out to see him than the rest of the team combined. He's the big local attraction for five years now he has played with legs that would keep most men in bed and opposition teams knew that because of his great arm, they didn't dare try for extra bases. Now this has been taken away from him since a mid winter operation of his shoulder and it is said that he can barely throw across the infield. Despite all this there is still no other player in the major leagues that is considered to be better bitter than he. In fact he is still so good with a bat that the Yankees are willing to pay the huge salary just to have him when they need him and maybe with a little luck his arm will improve enough so he can play regularly again.



"LET'S STEP INSIDE FOR A BREATH OF FRESH AIR."

Car Insurance Rates

Every session produces a certain number of surprises and this one has been no exception. But, like a well-written suspense-drama, the house kept the best to the last. For those who expected the automobile insurance committee to come in with one of those bland "there's nothing to be concerned about" type of reports, the document fell like a bombshell.

It was a stinging indictment of the insurance industry and got the support of the government and the legislature on most counts. The most startling recommendation (on which the government has already said it will move) is that the government lay charges against the Canadian Underwriters Association for violation of the Combines Act.

The report charged that the association has effectively eliminated competition by use of the so-called "green book." This sets out premium rates for insurance, supposedly based on through statistical information. The committee says the statistics and information are inadequate, both juggled at a subsequent high cost to the drivers.

The all-party committee also suggested establishment of a province-wide fire or arson division to examine closely the workings of the auto insurance industry in the coming year.

It urged compulsory safety features in car design, and government inspection and standards for auto body repair shops with the committee suggesting that the public is frequently getting bilked in many areas of the car business.

The arrant amateur was also criticized. In an effort to reduce the number of accidents the committee called for automatic five-year suspension for drivers with two major convictions. The members suggested a third conviction should bring full suspension and life-time suspension of driving privileges.

The whole thing provided a great deal of food for thought, and for action.

The insurance report wasn't the only news gem revealed in the dying hours of the session.

Legislation that would make drastic changes in the administration of the Edmonton and Calgary universities was virtually ignored until someone found it contained a section dealing with use of animals for scientific experiments. Dogs left unclaimed at the local pound will be made available to the university researchers. All this, naturally, raised a storm of protest on the ground of cruelty. Figures were produced to show that 1,200 dogs and 300 cats wind up at the U. of A. vivarium each year. The public outcry is bound to be far louder (and longer) than that in the legislature.

The legislature also gave a approval to sets governing commercial sport on Sunday afternoons and allowing daylight saving if it gets majority support in a province-wide plebiscite.

The Sunday sport legislation would allow people to charge admission for games, concerts and recreational facilities between 1:30 p.m. and 6:00 p.m. Horses and dog racing, boxing, wrestling and "similar contests" will not be allowed.

One of the most intriguing moves of the entire session was made by Donald Fleming of Calgary, but it fell flat for lack of a seconder.

Obviously convinced that the cities are still getting a raw deal on representation in the house, Mr. Fleming suggested a novel way of giving them a louder voice. He asked the government to study the possibility of giving each member a vote for each 4,000 voters in his riding. By mere coincidence Mr. Fleming would have been one of three members (including the Premier) who would get six votes each under the scheme.

The session had some good fights, a number of rather silly arguments, but whether it got through a total of 140 new pieces of legislation. Only floorlinion remain to be dealt with at weeks end.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Mr Eastly:

Read your article on to hang or not to hang.

Supposing a judge sentences a man to hang and ninety nine per cent of the people think otherwise.

—An Interested citizen.

Dear Sir—

THE BOARD OF THE KILLAM SCHOOL DIVISION has been aware for some time that another present high in Killam is much too small for the dual purpose it serves — namely Tranzalpine and administration.

Originally, the building when purchased by the Board in 1950, was a gaining five or seven divisional owned buses were operating in the division and some local services at the time were minimal. Since then the divisional owned bus fleet has more than doubled, the supply and storage of equipment related to education has tripled, employees in the building have doubled, yet during this time no additional space has been added. A virtual squeeze is on with the office portion bearing the brunt of the situation.

Problems faced are:

1. TRANSPORTATION SECTION used for bus storage and repairs much too small. Since moving into the present building, the number of buses owned and operated by the division has more than doubled. There is no well defined repair area. Buses are shunted continually for access to the area presently used for both major and minor repairs. The conditions under which the mechanic must work are unsatisfactory. The opening and closing of doors create a work area that is continually cold and drafty. Buses are not stored during July and August as most of the area is then used for text books, school supplies, furniture storage etc.

2. BUILDING MAINTENANCE AND REPAIR FACILITIES — Building maintenance man recently hired. This requires that adequate space and the proper equipment be provided for this phase of school operations. Maintenance is the one phase of school operations which will properly protect the 4½ million large investment in buildings (over $ 1/2 million dollars) and its investment in furniture and equipment. The general repairman is presently working inside extremely cramped conditions in a small room with an area of 320 sq. ft. — much too small for the minimum power equipment, let alone work area and storage of materials in the trade.

3. INSTRUCTION AND OTHER SUPPLIES — Present area used is much too small to provide properly the storage and processing of the following: (a) text book rental plan — more than ten thousand books turned over yearly and processed through the office; (b) Janitors supplies — tendered yearly and distributed from the office; (c) Instructional supplies — tons of paper, scribblers, duplicating supplies etc continually in and out of the office storage; (d) Instructional equipment — stored temporarily

4. HEALTH HAZARDS — Air for office heating drawn from bus repair area contaminated and area extremely hot in summer and cold in winter.

A decision was made early this year to engage professional help for guidance in solving the problem. A survey was made by Mr. Groves of the firm of Anderson, Groves and Hodgson. Architects who made recommendations that eventually led the Board to passing By-Law No. 12 for building an office on a new site in Killam.

Mr. Groves, in his report and preliminary rough sketch plans to the Board recommended that by locating a new office, elsewhere, adequate space could be provided in the present building for bus storage, a proper area for bus repairs, and also provide a good sized workshop for the General Maintenance Repairman and his equipment at a cost of approximately $3600. Since 4 new units were required even if an office addition were added to the present building. Mr. Groves suggested locating on a site in the chosen elsewhere, where a new office building would have a good re-sale value, should the area ever consider the county form of government.

Bill-Law No. XII as passed by the Killam School Division and approved by the Local Authority Board provides for borrowing $50,000 on the security of the Killam School Division repayable in 25 years.

The average cost of repayment per year will be almost 1/4 mill (60c per 1/4 section or 75c on an average urban home) and would be less in dollars ($4000) than the yearly rental of a similar building.

The project has been deferred until May 31, 1966 to give all ratepayers of the Killam School Division and Flagstaff M.D. a chance to make up their minds on the form of local government they they wish from here on.

Ted Eckland is relieving all but Post Office.

Mr. Harry Erickson of Killam had the misfortune of having a cow fall on him, breaking his leg.

An Assect to the Lougheed U. G.G. Elevator which will hold 40,000 bushels has just been completed.

No less than four threshing rigs are at work in the vicinity of Sedgewick the first of the week. The grain in the stack as well as that in stook is in very fine condition and threshes out well.

His Honor Lieut-Gov. Bowen presented Billy Rose and his risk with individual engraved silver medals at the banquet held in their honor at the Mac in Edmonton. The dinner was attended by over 400 people representing some twenty curling clubs.

Freddie Van Hees tipped his truck into the ditch just outside Killam and it was most embarrasing because the school bus was right behind him and the whole schoolie piled out just craving for some excitement and there were plenty. Everybody safe and sound, but very, very angry.

A plane piloted by Maurice Fallen, son of W. F. Fallow, Minister of Public Works for Alberta, landed at Bashaw Spitfare on Sunday. A second passenger was Elmer Brown, a Garageowner at Killam.

Mr. Gillespie, principal of Daysland school attended the meeting. He spoke regarding the new bussing change program and asked for a representative to act as a committee to assist in this matter. Comrade O. Malone volunteered to act.

The decision was made to donate the Legion piano, chairs, and kitchenware to the new hall.

It was agreed that the Legion sponsor the Pony League baseball team for another year. S. Stevens, R. Richardson and R. McTavish are in charge.

Mr and Mrs. John Josephisen and Sharon spent the Easter week end visiting with relatives in Calgary.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Knudsen left on April 11th for a holiday to Eastern Canada.

The Lions Club are busy making final preparation for their Annual Bonspiel 20's on April 22nd and 23rd.

In the meantime, increase federal aid by 100 percent on a one-year basis.

Later this year, the provinces will be seeking to have this upcoming grant of $340 million a year made permanent and to add to it the capital grants also proposed in the Bladen report.

But this is only part of the story. Only 13 out of every 100 young Canadians get to university, 46 finish high school and drop out before high school graduation but most of them complete their secondary schooling. If Federal help is confine this higher education only a minority will benefit.

The Economical Council of Canada, in its second annual review, has come out in favour of a federal push on the education front, maintaining that no spending would yield more permanent benefits, in cold cash and not counting the benefits to the human mind and spirit.

If investment in education gets "the very highest rank in the scale of priorities" the Economic Council recommended, it seems almost certain to involve greater Federal participation. Ottawa and Ottawa gets deeper into the education field, it finds the climate is changing. The provincial 'no trespassing" signs are being replaced with welcome mats.

The change is most striking in Quebec where until recent years, even the idea of a Federal Department of Education was regarded with unmitigated horror. There's still a good deal of that attitude but there are French-Canadian voices urging a Federal Education Department as a positive advantage for Quebec.

Such a department might help to advance education in French for the minorities in the other provinces. And this in turn could aid the labor mobility sought by Ottawa by making French-Canadians less likely to resist transfer to other provinces.

In the English-speaking provinces, especially in such organizations as the Canadian Teachers' Federation, there are hopes that a Federal Education Department could bring faster action toward standardization of curricula. This would ease the pill felt by pupils moving from one province to another.

A Federal Education Department may still be far in the future. Ottawa hasn't even an official with the job of following education trends, so careful is the Federal Government of provincial sensitivities.

But there may be an omen for the future in the recent statement by Prime Minister Pearson on bilingualism in the Federal Civil Service He said the Federal Government would talk with Ontario and Quebec about the early establishment in Ottawa of a high school where the language of instruction would be French, to provide for the needs of parents who want their children to be taught in that language.

Ottawa, in spite of the fact that it is the national capital, is firmly located on Ontario soil and is subject to all the school laws and policies of the provincial government at Queen's Park. The small initiative of the Federal government in the education field may be a portent of things to come.

* MACDUFF REPORT

OTTAWA — After 99 years of standing mostly on the sidelines, the Federal Government is taking an increasing interest in Canada's school systems. A Federal Department of Education may even be possible in the future as Ottawa and the provinces get deeper into the partnership forced by ever increasing school expenditures.

When the British North America Act, Canada's constitution was written and passed nearly 99 years ago, education was a matter for local school boards. The cost was met by taxes on property.

There were sharp differences between the school systems in various provinces and there was not much movement of people from one province to another. So the provinces were put firmly in control of schools and since then, they have kept "no interference" signs posted against federal intrusions, especially Quebec.

But the cost of financing the schools long ago outran the revenue which could be squeezed out of property taxes and provinces have had to meet the differences with grants. This in turn, as school costs kept soaring, put heavy pressure on provincial tax resources. Education is the major item of expenditure in the provincial budget. In Manitoba, for example, the provincial government will spend more on education this year than it spent on everything 10 years ago.

There have been increasing demands on Ottawa to help shore the cost. Last year's Bladen Committee report on higher education recommended a vast expansion of federal aid. The response of the Pearson Government has been to propose a federal-provincial conference and,

Our Alberta Heritage

WESTERN CANADIAN PIONEER MUSEUM

1911 Franklin

History of pioneer transportation captured in this unique collection

An enterprising father and son team, Ted and Stan Reynolds, have created one of the most unusual museums in our province. Here are authentic stage coaches and old time carriages, such as the famous buggies that provided courting transport when "horse power" meant just that. Four hundred steam and internal combustion engines, stationary and traction models in brushy valley design, are prominent in the collection. You'll see pioneer cars dating "way back to 1899 including the 1904 Cadillac and Olds 1 cylinder runabouts, 1908 Baker and 1911 Hupp Yeats electric cars, 1911 Franklin air cooled, 1916 Viewtre cylinder National, Cord front wheel drive and the Brooks steam car. There's even a Gypsy Moth biplane, a horse drawn hearse, and a 1912 aerial ladder fire truck. The Western Canadian Pioneer Museum in Wetaskiwin is more than a historical storehouse. It represents a tremendous outlay of interest, time and effort by two progressive Albertans, in creating a permanent tribute to the pioneer history of our Alberta.

Next time you're travelling highway No. 2, stop and visit the Western Canadian Pioneer Museum at Wetaskiwin. It's open every day from 9 to 5. Admission is free.

First Centennial Report

Report No. 1

When I took over the job of organizing Canada's biggest celebration in history I ran into a number of pessimists, even a few cynics.

This is the sort of line they gave me: "Canadians aren't nutsy patriots. You'll have a tough job stirring up much flag waving for 1967."

Well, some of their facts were correct but the spirit in which those four pessimists presented their views to me was not what I accept as Canadian. I have travelled long and far enough in this country to know that Canadians really have strong positive feelings about their country.

I could agree with some of the statements by my pessimistic friends if they were in a different context. Canadians are not given to wild demonstrations of patriotism in their own country. Such things can embarrass us. I believe our kind of nationalism is more thoughtful than emotional and that is why I believe so fervently that our Centennial will be a successful and meaningful event in our history.

Yes we may have difficulty at times in deciding what we are, what we are for and what we are against in the world. But we know what home is and though we may be embarrassed to express it, we love our land. Perhaps I discovered this through travel abroad when I met Canadians far from home. When we are world travelling we are more apt to open up and reveal to other people our inner thoughts about our country. One particular instance comes to my mind. I was breakfasting at a small hotel in London, England, a few years ago and became engaged in conversation with a young man across the table from me. He was a Canadian working at an airline office in London. With no prodding from me he poured out all his thoughts about home and about Canada.

"I'm not a nationalist," he said. "In fact I'm against nationalism. It causes a lot of trouble in the world. That's why I like my country We're not aggressive nationalists. But really, mister," he said, "it's hard to describe my feelings about my country." He thought his feeling for his homeland was not just the house he was born in back in back in Ontario, nor was it necessarily his home town. It was the lake country where he used to go on canoe trips in the summer, the big rushing rivers and the roads that go forever.

"I always felt if I couldn't find a job in Canada I could always go to the north country and trap and hunt — something one couldn't do over here —and at least make a living," he said. He admitted it was just a "fancy of the mind" — probably he'd starve — but Canada always gave him a feeling of security, he said. "I always felt that the Rockies or the Gaspe wilderness were mine, even though I didn't go there every weekend. (I only saw the Rockies once)"

The young man went on, exposing his mind and being very sentimental and patriotic. I thought to myself he probably would be far too inhibited and embarrassed to talk like that back home.

From now to 1967 Canadians, as individuals and in groups, large and small, are finding ways to express their true feelings about Canada. I'll tell you more about these in future reports.

WAVY LAKE BEEF CLUB

STROME— The Wavy Lake Beef Club held its April meeting at the home of Mr and Mrs. Lerwen. It commenced with a roll call giving the ration and amount of feed fed per day. After a short discussion it was decided that the club sell satisfy refreshers for farm machinery at a nominal price of $3.00. (If any one is interested, contact Mr. Smithgood of Strome, Alberta.) The usual demonstrations and reports were presented and the meeting ended with lunch.

The annual public speaking event held in the Strome United Church School and Dennis Eshpster proved to be worthy of representing the club in the flagstaff M.D.

IT'S A LITTLE BIT ...

Spring is not a season. It's a state of mind. It's a feeling, especially up in Italy, it was, "Oh, Te Ile In Engiand, Now That April's There." To Hartzell, it was a feeling of spring, and ladies in long nightgowns, scattering petals as they danced. To Beethoven, it was Italic grandeiling to the notes of the shepherd's pipe.

But in these parts, it's a time of agony and ecstacy, depending on what age you are, and what you are up to.

Ecstacy for little kids. Off with the snowboots, and snowsuits hurled into a corner. Out into the wonderful world. Even so long ago they can scarcely remember: wading puddles, building sinky rafts, shooting marbles; skipping; picking pussywillows. And lovely, brown, soft, silky, shaggy, slimey mud everywhere. Heaven.

It's ecstacy for the young in love. For the first time in five months they can hold hands, bare-handed, as the way home from school. They can hang around the girl's back door, or the corner, for an hour, talking inanities, joyous in the certainty they won't soon be dumb.

Could anybody be happier, and cockier, than the young mothers in spring? Trim and taut, last fall, they wheel their prams down the street on the first sunny day, three shrunat, pushing honest taxpayers into the gutter, as they display with stunned pride the miracles they've produced during the winter. They are women this spring.

For our senior citizens, spring brings another kind of happiness, a quiet, deep one. They have been doing both chuals all winter. They have suffered loneliness and pain and discomfort. But the balmy days of spring warms their old bones and their old bones. It's a promise of life, renewed, which they need badly.

I think farmers and sailors are happy in the spring. For the farmer, it means another eight months of back-breaking labor with small return For the latter, it means back to work often dull, often dirty, and the loneliness of absence from families. But both are ready for it, after being underfoot all winter. It reassures purpose in life. A man who isn't working is only half a man.

For the housewife, spring is combination of happy and sad and the ecstacy. There's the agony of choosing the right paint and wallpaper, the ecstacy of attacking the house like the Assyrian coming down on the fold.

Gardeners are happy. Gloves on, they go out in the back yard and joyously muck about. They spend over the first crocus, inhale with delight the rotting stench of long-buried earth, plot glorious gardens in the mind's eye.

Golfers are giddy with gladness. The last streaks of snow are still under the pines. The course is muddy, the wind chilling. But the first day the flags are up, they're out there. You can't keep them away when they will slice not, nor will they hook. They feel it in their bones.

Anglers are happy. Every countryside, looking for new beaver dams, checking last year's choice spots. Opening day is still not here, but they're dreaming of that first speckled beauty, caught on the first cast.

Merchants are optimistic. People are coming into the store for something besides keeping warm. Building booms, and the carpenter, electrician, plumber, brickiayer feel a surge of hope after a slow winter.

Where's the agony, then, if everybody is so happy about spring? We've run almost the whole gamut, and nobody is suffering.

What about the university student? There are loads of thousands of them. They are there chewing their nails, pulling out their beautiful hair in handfuls, sweating cold with fear. Outside beckon the sun and soft wind. Inside beckon bleareyed grind, despair, guilt.

And what about the ordinary, middle-aged couple like me? Bursitis behaving badly in the cruel winds of April. Income tax looming like an iceberg. Home needs painting. Backyard looks like an exhibition of Pop art. Car on its last legs. Christmas presents not yet paid for. Hairline receding rapidly. Harder and harder to get out of bed in the morning. Kids getting more difficult.

For us, spring is for the birds. And you should hear the little stinkers, about five a.m., just when we are finally falling into a sound sleep.

Killam Students To Present 3-Act Play

KILLAM—What is more spine tingling than a spooky old mansion thats been shut up for a long time? Especially when two refined maiden ladies and their attractive nieces & dumb-dora maid decide to rent the place unaware that anything mysterious is going on.

Sound interesting? A group of young Separate High-School students and Director Dennis Remillard think so. They plan to put the 3-act Mystery-Comedy — "Aunt Cathie's Cat" on in the Killam Elks Hall on April 29th, at 8:30 p.m. It should prove to be interesting since some of the actors are those who acted in "Mystery in the Library" two years ago.

Advance tickets will be sold.

Verta Overman Married In Inglewood, California

The Alberton Baptist Chapel, Inglewood, California, was the scene of a lovely double-ring ceremony, on April 7, 1966. Vows were repeated before Rev W Dorsey, as the bride, Verta Maybelle Overman, daughter of Mr Orey Overman of Hardisty, Alberta, Canada and the groom, Otis Daniel Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs Ivey Williams of Millen, Georgia were united in marriage.

The chapel was beautified by flowers and the altar was adorned with lighted candlesabra, gracefully touched with sprigs of fern and flower. Upon entering the chapel the organist sang "Together Life's Pathway We Tread", and as the couple kneeled, "O Perfect Love" was sung The bride gives away by Robert Buckley, M.D., wore a kneelength white gown of Chantilly lace over satin, lily-point sleeves, and a chapel length veil which surrounded her crown of pearls, and carried a cascade of sweetheart roses over a white Bible.

The bride attended by Mrs. Karen Macamor, of Santa Monica, California wore a soft pink linen dress trimmed of white lace, and carried a cascade of pink and white carnations.

The groom chose a blue-grey suit, with a white rose for his lapel, and was attended by Mr. Lonnie Roberts. of Gardena, California. Attending usher was Mr. Thomas Macamor.

Following the ceremony, a small reception was held, then the happy couple journeyed to the Sequoia Mountains, for a brief honeymoon: whereupon they will return to Los Angeles for temporary settlement.

PEOPLE

"It takes all kinds of people to make up the world," is a time-worn phrase one hears so often Frankly, I like the idea Life cannot become monotonous from day to day, as we meet and visit with the different people along the way, because they ARE different.

Take for example that dear old couple down the block. As one talks to them one cannot help but mark the inward peace, the serenity that shines from their face as we visit with them. They give the impression that now their course is ended, the race has been run, their given tasks are finished, they are awaiting and ready for their inevitable call. In other words they are looking forward to that "Rest That Remaineth" for them Their life has not been a bed of roses by any means. Together they faced the joys and sorrows, the years of penury and plenty, the pleasures and worries of raising a big family, and now they have almost reached the end of the way. The Harbour Lights shine through the deepening shadows. They are ready to leave this world of toil and tears for the "Place that was prepared for them" on high.

So as they await that distant call; the call that will come to all of us eventually, they are so happy that the joy shines from their faces May God bless such.

Then in contrast, we meet the man or woman whom one can see at a glance is worried and harrassed on every side by the cares of this life. Possibly they are sick in body or mind; maybe a loved one is incurably ill. It could be financial worries. They are in "Seven Corners" not knowing where to turn. The payments on the car or home are due, they do not know where the money for the childrens' education is coming from. They can't sleep at night, thus are rubbed of their much needed rest. All this is bound to show in the face of such people. Instead of peace and happiness, there is care and frustration and their life is just one big unhappy and fretful existence.

Then there are our average young folks, living from day to day in a happy, carefree world of their own. They might have an odd worry, like perhaps they may not get in that basket ball tournament or a special musical or such. Whatever circumstances these young folk find themselves in, it is just momentary. They forget it as something else interesting take its place This is as it should be However one can't help but notice the happy, expectant and care-free expression on the faces of these young folks, the parents of tomorrow

Have you ever looked into the face of a condemned man or woman and seen the fear, the dread of the future, the shame, all mingled together showing on the face of such an individual?

It is not necessary to speak to one of these poor, mixed-up and wayward folks to know just what they are like inside, their mis-spent life tells the story in their face.

So we find that it does take all kinds of people to make up the world, and as we weigh this fact in our mind, we are amazed at the different types of people there are in the world We wonder in what category we would be placed — happy and contented and uncomplaining, or resentful, unpleasant, disagreeable, worried about the future? Whatever out-look we may have on life I realize, I remember, as Paul tells us, "We are written epistles, read and known by all men". It is rather a sobering thought is it not?

No Bathrooms?

By Bert Odland

On the fingers of one hand, while wearing boxing gloves, you can count the number of new homes with bathrooms. Yet I'll wager that many of us years "modern" individuals can remember living in homes without bathrooms. Remember those frigid trips "out back"? Or the Saturday nite baths in the tub hub next to the coal range in the kitchen?

The lack of bathrooms created some colorful memories, but did little for comfortable living.

How many homes have 1 1/2, 2 or more bathrooms. You would not think of building a home without one. Among other reasons, it would be a poor investment . . . hurt the resale of the house.

Here's another tip along the same line: a home not equipped, or at least planned, for central air conditioning will soon be in the same category as a home without a bathroom. How many means will pass before the public will demand central air conditioning just as they have demanded central heating and bathrooms.

Well, then, this calls for action. Whether remodeling or building, don't settle for a heating system that is not designed for the easy addition of summer air conditioning. For one thing, such a heating system gives you the most comfort, most economical operation and is generally less expensive to install than other types of central heating.

Our Lennox forced air heating is designed with air conditioning in mind. Install it when the heating goes in, or add it later. It brings your property right up-to-date. Comfort likewise. See me about easy terms.

M.D. Flagstaff April Meeting

SEDGEWICK — The regular monthly meeting of the council of the Municipal District of Flagstaff was held April 13th at the Board Room in Sedgewick, with all councillors present, Minutes and financial statement were presented and passed.

Councillor Blatz reported that he had discussed with Mr. Bunner the owner of land for possible annexation by the M.D. from the Town of Daysland. He said the owner was favorable to the annexation. It was passed that application be made to the Minister of Municipal Affairs to have the S.W. of 16-45-16 annexed to the District.

Letter from Alberta Telephones informed that for all future jobs it was the intention to bury cable in the low point of the ditch wherever it was possible to do so.

The Council acknowledged for a short time to meet as the Farm Purchase Advisory Committee, to hear the application of Ralph Sorenson of Killam to purchase a half interest in the S.W. 9-44-15 containing 163 acres.

Letter from the Hon. Gordon Taylor stated that 18 roads would be paved in provincial parks during a five year period, and that Big Knife Park was not among these sightseen.

Letter from the County of Paintearth informed that the council there was interested in paying a portion of fire fighting equipment for the Alliance and Galahad area. Information regarding the volume of hauling over the road from Colleries at Forestburg was received and passed on to the Consulting Engineers for study in the Rural Road program.

Mr. Paul Babey, PUA president requested by letter consideration of a grant to a fund to carry on legal action by farmers against oil companies regarding air pollution.

Messrs Thomas Cheesbrough, Russel Trustee, and Secretary E. Borth were present to interview Council. Prior to their being received, Reeve Matthews informed council that he had received a petition requesting a public meeting to explain and discuss the County System. The petition requested that the Hon. A. J. Hooke be asked to attend this meeting, and Mr. Matthews said he had asked the secretary to write to Mr. Hooke in this regard.

Mr. Clouston said he and Mr. Borth were present to discuss assessments that were being made. He informed the council that under the Foundation Program of the government, in order to arrive at full grants for pupils and teachers, the proper ratio of teacher-pupils must be maintained.

Mr. Clouston said that in many respects the operating deficit of $56,000 incurred by the Division in 1965 had been caused by the fact that the Merna School had been allowed to operate due to public opinion in that area, and against his better judgement of the Board.

The Board has made arrangements, as of September 1966, to have Heisler high school students attend the Daysland School, and high school pupils from Alliance and Galahad attend the Sedgewick High School. This would see the improving the teacher-pupil ratio and would require fewer teachers.

To date approval had been granted by the Buildings Branch for additional rooms at Daysland which means the Department will pay the cost. He went on to explain that the average per pupil cost of educating high school students in Alberta was $501; while at Galahad in 1965 the average was $780 and at Sedgewick $365.

He went on to state that the Board of Trustees was opposed to the formation of a County and was of the opinion that they could operate more economically as experience had proven that operating expenses for Counties were higher than for school divisions. He suggested that the M. D. Flagstaff hold a plebiscite on the formation of a County rather than to hold a public meeting as suggested.

Mr. Matthews replied that in view of the petition to hold a public meeting and the Municipal Districts Act, the council had no alternative but to hold a public meeting as petitioned for.

Mr. Borth stated that in his opinion, opposition to the building of a

Census Commission For 1966 Appointed

OTTAWA — Dick Gillespie, Hardisty; Ed Noga, Camrose and Stan Perks, Round Hill, have been appointed local Commissioners for the Census of Population and the Farm Census, which begins June 1st 1966 across Canada. They will administer the 1966-67 census districts.

Following announcement of their appointments, the above men stated that their Census districts will be divided into sub-districts, employing a staff of 65 census takers .Persons interested in employment as a Census taker are invited to contact the Commissioners at their offices located at Hardisty, Camrose and Round Hill

Everybody will have the opportunity to "Be Counted for Canada" when Census takers call at every home in Canada starting on June 1 They will be taking the Population Census which consists of just five questions, and the Farm Census which will also be simple but with more questions listed. They will also record all business establishments to develop a master list for the Census of Merchandising which will be completed by mail after the end of the 1966 fiscal year.

One aspect of the Census stressed by the Commissioners as they make preparations to administer the Census locally was the need for public co-operation. They pointed out that today in most countries of the world a census was carried out at intervals to take stock of human resources and to use as a basis for public and private planning.

They urged everyone in the district to co-operate because "in the long run" everybody stands to benefit' they said.

CONCENTRATION. In the spring a young man's fancy turns to . . . playing marbles. Playing marbles is a serious business, and the boy in this game, played in a schoolyard or recess, is reflected in the sun-glasses of this young enthusiast.

AS THE LAND AWAKENS. Far beyond a farmer's field, the spring sun awakens the land surrounding a shallow pool. The warming waters quench the thirst of bushes and trees, and before long they burst into the greenery that is spring.

Estate Taxes!

Premier Manning Of Alberta has announced that this province will apply to the federal government to permit the rebate of the provincial portion of all estate taxes involved in the estates of bona fide residents of Alberta. The Alberta government says that the imposition of the estate tax is discriminatory and is a form of double taxation. It is pointed out also that millions of dollars are lost to the Canadian economy when individuals establish domicile outside Canada where estate taxes are not imposed.

Large numbers of estates are brought within the application of the tax, particularly when pensions are capitalized. Frequently survivors suffer hardship. It should be possible to arrange the country's affairs so that men and women who work hard to save for their old age and for their survivors are not penalized.

The Canadian Flag!

The Canadian Legion in session, has at last recognized the Canadian Maple Leaf Flag as the official flag of Canada. That they have done this is an indication of recognition of the embarrassing and ridiculous situation they were in. Being a body represented as the CANADIAN Legion, while refusing to officially recognize a CANADIAN flag, put the organization in such a confusing position that local Branches were bombarding head office with requests to reverse their stand. This has been done and it can only result in strengthening not only the Legion's position, but the entire unity of Canada. While we understand the sentimental position the Legion first adopted, we do not hesitate to commend it for the new attitude. Canada has enough of problems both national and international without internal strife over something that should never have been a problem at the outset.

There's Always A Ruckus!

We as a people seem so determined to protect our individual freedom that we lose sight of the rights of others. Take as a concrete example, for instance, the squall that is being raised over breathelizer tests for those who are suspected of driving while drinking. Opponents bewail the fact that freedom is lost, freedom to drink and drive, while failing to consider that the non-drinker and careful driver has a right to some degree of protection while on the highway. Nobody has yet expounded satisfactorily what right a drunken or impaired driver has to endanger the lives of innocent people by reason of slowed-down reflexes caused by intoxicating drink. According to well documented statistics, alcohol is a very significant factor in at least half of all the fatal motor vehicle accidents, and organizations the world over are doing a vast amount of work to discover some means of bringing this particular cause under control.

Highway deaths and injuries today constitute an epidemic of such proportions that huge sums of public funds and the time of thousands of workers are being used up to little purpose. When we talk so glibly of freedom and privilege, it should be no longer necessary to remind that with these comes responsibility, not only to yourself but more particularly to others. Many men and women in our society become almost hysterical at the thought of impregnating our drinking water with a proven safe medicant to aleviate tooth decay in children, yet think little of pouring 26 ounces of alcoholic poison down their own throats in the name of privilege, and then go out on the highways to commit murder in the name of freedom. Breathelizer tests should be compulsory, and suspension of driver licenses should be mandatory on conviction. There is no other way to put a stop to murder on the highway caused by alcohol.

Alcohol Is Not The Only Villain!

While it is perfectly sensible to blame alcohol for a great share of our highway deaths & injuries, she is not the only villain on the scene. In fact there are so many aspects to the situation that any reasonable alleviation of the situation will be long in coming. There is the driver who operates a car in poor mechanical condition, without proper lights and brakes. That is why compulsory inspection will become a law in the foreseeable future, with faulty cars being removed from the roads. Then there is the speed demon and the road hog, the drivers who almost find it impossible to purchase a car with enough speed potential to satisfy their mania for getting someplace faster than anybody else. Along with this type of driver goes the one who believes that the purchase of his license also gives him possession of the road. It's easy to be courteous while driving with a minimum of practice. Car manufacturers cannot escape responsibility in this area either, and must be required to incorporate more safety features in cars and put less stress on beauty and speed. Their argument that the buyers will not go for this is not a proven fact. All proven scientically safety features must become a requirement on all cars made in or imported to Canada. Law officers must clamp down on offenders, and magistrates and judges must administer penalties that hurt for infractions, especially on repeaters. If we do not do these things then we must make up our minds to be content with increasing murder on the highways. Governments have a responsibility to see that these things are done now.

A student from the local school contributed the following information which he had apparently just learned and says everyone should know. "A fly can swim upside down because there is a little pad on the end of each foot which is hollow in the center. This makes a suction cup when the fly's foot is pressed against the surface. Also a fly can see in every direction because each eye consists of thousands of very small eyes." I don't know how true I believe that Education had advanced far beyond what they taught in my day but it sounds new as though they still give neat little facts, like why a fly can walk on the ceiling.

Any of you good people who haven't called in your income tax forms, there is now about two days left to get under the wire. After the end of April you will have to pay a penalty. The tax payers are the only people who get to work for the government who don't have to join the civil service.

There is a lot of talk about what is wrong with the young generation these days but when you really consider the matter you find that there isn't anything wrong with them that previous generations didn't outgrow.

THE SMILING BUDDHA

Legislative Session Ends

Rather a peculiar wind-up to a long and fruitful session of the legislature.

The "experts" were fooled by fluoridation and a couple of controversial changes in the City Act which forced a final day of sittings last week, despite earlier opinions that the whole thing would wind up before the weekend.

It might have gone on even longer if the die-hard anti-fluoridationists has been given their way. Mrs. Cornelia Wood of Stony Plain gave three speeches

Quebec Election

OTTAWA—The Quebec election of June 5 should be of far more than passing interest to the rest of Canada. There has seldom been an election with more significance for the future shape not only of Quebec, but of Canada itself.

What the voters of Quebec are being asked to decide, in general terms, it just how much autonomy their province should have, the choices being offered them range from a stronger Quebec, within Confederation, to outright independence.

In these terms, therefore, the "moderate" approach in that of Premier Lesage and his Liberals, though moderation is perhaps the last thing Mr. Lesage might be accused of by many English-speaking Canadians.

In calling the election, Mr. Lesage said he wanted a renewed mandate for participation in the Federal Provincial tax sharing negotiations, which will be the most important political event of the fall and winter.

Quebec's success in these negotiations will determine, more than any other factor, how much further relationship with other provinces will change.

No election ever produces unequivocal answers to pressing questions, but they frequently clarify issues and attitudes. If the Quebec election does that, it will indeed perform a great service.

Quebec's drive for autonomy and self-expression has produced many extreme side effects and much confusion within and without the Province. No major political party, not even the governing Liberals, has been able to give clear expression to its political goals, or to its concept of Quebec's place in Confederation.

Even the Separatists, who one might think would be united in the simple desire to secede from Canada, have split into rival groups.

Out of the confusion, however, is emerging some kind of consensus, which is probably best expressed by the Liberals, who had a large majority in the last legislature, and seem destined to win another victory.

The approach of Mr. Lesage is a pragmatic one, but it is based on a concern for a strong Quebec, with a strong Canada necessarily taking second place in the scheme of things.

In other words, there is little comfort anywhere for those who foolishly expect that Quebec might somehow forget its aspirations and settle down to behave like a good and obedient little province.

That kind of comfort, perhaps fortunately, is not to be found anywhere in modern Quebec.

The one common ingredient of all major parties in the election is a desire for more sovereignty in the Province.

The Liberals, perhaps perpaps, do not try to express this on concrete terms, but see it in concrete action. Mr. Lesage contents himself with promoting "a strong Quebec, stronger than ever", and has been avoiding his recent flirtations with ambiguous political concepts such as a "particular status" for Quebec.

There are at least five other parties fighting this election. With the exception of the rather odd Quebec Conservative party, which purports to represent English-speaking Quebec, they all seek greater autonomy than the Liberals do.

Next in importance to the Liberals is the National Union Party which held 26 of the 95 seats in the last Legislature. (The Liberals held 63, there was one independent, and three vacancies on dissolution).

Changes in the electoral law have increased the number of seats in the Legislature, and there may be as many as 108 candidates seeking election.

The National Union, under Daniel Johnson, will have a full slate of candidates. After flirting with separatism, Mr. Johnson finally rejected it in favour of "more sovereignty" for Quebec. This appears to mean a form of association that would make he independent in everything but name, and perhaps eventually in that too.

One other party is expected to field a nearly complete slate. It is le Ralliement National, a merger of right wing separatists and of the provincial wing of Social Credit Rally.

Le Ralliement National, while not advocating separatism, does advocate associate statehood, which must be deemed to be just about the same thing.

This strange marriage will try to capitalize on rural and labour unrest, hoping to reignite some of the fires lit by Real Caouette's Creditistes in recent Federal elections.

on the subject and appeared quite willing to give more. However, the issue was finally dealt with rather quickly on Monday, either because the premier and other MLAs had enough of it or because Health Minister Dr. Ross introduced an amendment that partly appeased opponents of fluoridation.

Everyone expected a fight on the bill which would reduce the majority required for a fluoridation plebiscite to 51 per cent from the 65 and two-thirds which it has been for years. Dr. Ross' amendment at the last minute would provide for free distribution of fluoride on a doctor's or dentist's prescription. With few exceptions the medical people are eager to provide such prescriptions, so it seems that everyone who wants fluorides will be able to get them without poling the chemical in the community water supply.

Opponents of community fluoridation [illegible] were bored away from the debate by the belief that, if fluorides are available free to those who want them, not many will vote in favor of fluoridation in local plebiscites. Others say the "foot-in-the-door" will simply arouse more interest and make votes on the issue almost certain to pass.

The entire session lasted a rather long 41 days. However, it was worth it. Some of the debates were rather foolish and short-sighted, but some of them always are. A few matters might have been dealt with more determinedly, but a few might be every year. But on subjects like Sunday sport, daylight saving, car insurance and civil rights the legislature was remarkably quick and forthright.

For the statisticians: — the legislature dealt with 145 bills; passed 125 from the government side; 18 private members' bills; and withdrew two private bills and three others — including the City Act changes that were objected to so strenuously.

Redistribution to give the two largest cities Calgary and Edmonton — another seat each, was accomplished, raising the total in the house to 65 for the next election. Just when that will be is anyone's guess but Mr. Manning admitted at a post-session news conference that he could see no reason why an election shouldn't be held in 1967. He said elections were disruptive at any time, and it probably doesn't matter whether they occur during the Centennial activities or not.

Mr. Manning himself termed the new Universities Act, the revised Child Welfare Act and provision of a $33 tax discount for home owners the most significant pieces of legislation passed during the session.

He said the three acts reached a "far-reaching aggregate" of Albertans who would benefit from them.

The Universities Act provides for autonomous universities at Edmonton and Calgary, similar status for future universities, and makes certain changes in university administration.

The revised Child Welfare Act removes many of the religious restrictions that had hindered the adoption of some children; and gives municipal tax discounts to taxpayers living in their own homes are expected to amount to $15,000,000 this year.

Mr. Manning said the Alberta Human Rights Act, passed during the session, was "no cure-all for discrimination" but he said it would set up machinery to deal with complaints about discrimination.

He added that the government intends to make a thorough study of its numerous boards and tribunals. Maybe next session will be more as good as this one.

Centennial Commission Makes Discoveries

Report No. 2

(By John W. Fisher)

A few weeks ago I made a statement during a luncheon address that we at the Centennial Commission in Ottawa are so busy we don't have time for coffee breaks.

The next day I was passing an open door in our office building and was jolted by a scene which belied my remark of the day before. Two Commission staff members were in spirited conversation — over coffee! Only the fact that the time was 3:15 p.m. (after office hours) softened the shock to the sensibilities of a stern administrator.

I was invited into the session. The two young staffers were Marcel X. a French Canadian and John Y. an English Canadian, who had come to Ottawa a couple of months earlier to work on Centennial projects.

"We have made some interesting rediscoveries about the Fathers of Confederation," remarked Marcel X. "For example, I did not know that D'Arcy McGee was for a time a separatist. And neither John nor I remembered from history lessons at school that Sir Georges-Etienne Cartier had been exiled for being a rebel with Papineau."

A number of the Fathers of Confederation did in fact have bitter words uttered about them regional interst and worries about provincial rights, all of which they eventually subordinated to the ideals hoped for in federation. In fact some of these men were abandoned by their constituents at home for being too "pro" confederation. Joseph Howe of Nova Scotia, one of the most talented writers of the confederation period, fumed against confederation yet he joined Sir John A's first government Nov. 16, 1869. (How ironical that on our Centennial train we will show his printing press which he used to whip confederation!

I believe that involvement in the 1967 celebrations will give Canadians, through their rediscoveries of history, a better understanding of themselves and their place in their country and in the world. We Canadians in 1967 should be in a mood to look at history calmly and objectively and I believe that when we do this we will be helping to create in ourselves a tolerant attitude which will enhance our appreciation of some of today's problems of nationhood.

The coffee break turned out to be something of value after all. I think that discussions of this sort, particularly among students who, with their teachers and professors will be drawn to them during our Centennial Year, are good for Canada.

The Centennial Commission is actively engaged with Canada's universities on a Centennial program to stimulate the sort of discussion I heard at the coffee break. During the universities program a series of historical seminars will study select topics of Canadian life and history, emphasis on topics which are controversial. In addition notable lecturers and artists will make visits to campuses and two touring Centennial plays, one English and one French, to be performed by student actors from across the country. There will be other learned conferences and seminars all of which will encourage our young people to take advantage of lessons learned in the past to chart the future for Canada.

The Province's largest separatist organization, Le Ressemblement pour l'Independence National (RIN) is expected to have about 80 candidates. It will also have the purest program — independence, complete and final, for Quebec.

RIN President Pierre Bourgault, who will be a candidate in the new Duplessis riding, doesn't expect to win any seats. He expects a large Liberal majority, with resulting governmental errors and arrogance.

And that, he says, "will set us up" for the election of 1970. That seems an optimistic view if the RIN fails to win any seats this time, it must be interpreted as a severe setback for the whole movement. It can only mean that the people of Quebec prefer the less drastic reforms represensi by the older parties.

The RIN will likely never get a better chance than it has this time. The racial ago has been lowered to 18, and if it is true that the separatist appeal is greatest to the young, these thousands of new voters should make their influence felt.

The Quebec Socialist Party, finally, with only a handful of candidate, will try to appeal to labour groups with a mixture of social reform and a large measure of independence for Quebec.

What is clear from all this is that Quebec voters on June 5 are being asked to choose among various degrees of sovereignty for Quebec Some of these forms may be capatible with a united, if different, Canada. Others are definitely incompatible with that.

At the moment it apperas that the only compatible form is that offered by the Liberals A victory for Premier Lesage, as theory and determined as he is, will unquestionably therefore be in the best interests of Canada.

IF YOU WANT A LAUGH

For teachers on the verge of suicide, puzzled parents, and anyone else who, worn by winter, needs an injection of warmth and humor, I have a spring tonic. Buy a copy of "Up The Down Staircase", plonk back 95 cents, and read it. I came across it on the weekend and changed my mind about quitting the teaching profession.

It's called a novel, but isn't. It's a record of the first term of a young, pretty high school teacher in a huge New York secondary school.

It's tender and touching and utterly hilarious. And beneath the fun is a shocked and often bitter indictment of what the educational system is doing, or failing to do, for the vast mass of teenagers. As educators and others have pointed out, the cream of the crop will rise to the top. The bottom ten per cent is having millions of dollars spent to help them. It's the great mob in the middle that gets the dirty end of the stick.

Conditions in the school described are much worse than those in the average Canadian high school, but the parallels are there.

Avalanches of paper, most of it unnecessary. Crowded conditions necessary. Crowded conditions everywhere. The administration thinks discipline more important than learning. The librarian doesn't like the library used because the kids don't put the books back on the shelves straight. The nurse isn't allowed to diagnose even an aspirin. And the counsellor tries to analyze all the kids with phoney Freud.

And the teachers are there the workhorses, the whiners, the beaten those who don't like kids, and those who, in spite of it all, know they're doing the most important job in the world.

But it is not basically a bitter book. And most of the humor comes from these fascinating animals, the kids themselves.

The teacher asks the kids to tell briefly why we study ancient myths and the Odyssey.

One answer: "I'm sure there are many reasons why we study these things, but I missed it due to absenteeism."

Another: "Because everybody in high school at one time or another has to read it, and now it's our turn."

Another: "We read it because it's a classical."

The young teacher has a "suggestion box" where her students were allowed to drop ideas, anonymously. Some were scurrilous . . . some threatening, some funny.

Sample: "My mother has been living with me for 15 years but she still insists on cross examining me."

"Don't worry, we're behind you 65 per cent."

"I just lost and stay there. Signed, Patient."

"Having sprained my ankle, the nurse gave me a cup of tea. Is that supposed to help my ankle, Athalete."

This is the first class I enjoyed failing because of looking at you."

What emerges from the book? Several things. First and most important, the yearning of the young for some contact with some one who treats them as people. This is the age-old individual demand for respect and mutual trust.

Second, the requisites of a good teacher: physical toughness; understanding; mental and emotional vitality: a genuine liking for fellow humans, especially kids; and, of course, knowledge to teach: you can't fool kids with games and gimmicks.

Third, the massive, frustrating task of educating the masses. The money; the time; the chalk, paper, steel and stone; the teachers: only the best is the min, but it's too late then with virtually almost the best.

Ah, well, read the book. It'll do you good. Last quotation: "A flower is a carbon to the teacher bud on the bulletin board. It wuns!"

Teacher: "There are two words in the English language you must never use. They are "swell" and "lousy."

"Of course I know what the strike zone is. It's the same thing as the home run zone!"

NEWLY WEDS HONORED AT ROSYTH

ROSYTH — Rosyth Community Hall was turned into a bower of flowers as friends and relatives gathered to honor Mr. Mrs. David Burpee (nee Janet Mirabelle) whose marriage took place in Calgary on April 1st. Mr. F. Rice, acting as M.C. for the evening, welcomed the guests to the Rosyth Community. A short program of music and recitation entertained the gathering.

Seated at the bride's table with friend and bridal, and assisting in the opening of gifts, were Mrs. Muirhead, Mr. and Mrs. H. Burpee, Beth Burpee and Mrs. Powell. The young couple graciously thanked everyone, and invited all to stay for the dance which followed. A lovely lunch was served at midnight with bride and groom serving wedding cake, chocolates and cigarettes.

The bride wore a white dacron wool sheath with carriage of red roses. Her mother was in a navy 2-piece suit, white Mrs. Burpee chose a pink blue. Both were corsages of pink roses.

Trustee Clouston Speaks To Home and School Assn.

HARDISTY— After Thomas Clouston of Lougheed finished eating his evening meal, he noticed that a cold North wind was driving the thermometer down toward the zero mark. He thought, "this would be a good night to read a book or watch T.V. What's on tonight? Oh I see the Oscar Awards. Might be interesting." Then the oldest member of the Killam School Division who has warmed more chairs at school meetings than the space goalie of the Maple Leafs, glanced at the calendar and saw that it was April 14th. He remembered that he had promised to be guest speaker at a regular meeting of the Hardisty Home and School.

President Robert Wood needed only a few seconds to introduce this veteran T. Clouston, who soon warms up to his favorite subject, "Education". As he spoke the reaction of the people of Hardisty was the same as that of the English in Goldsmith's Deserted Village — "And still they gazed, and still the wonder grew, that one small head could hold all that he knew." Although loaded with answers as an honors student in his final exams, T. Clouston chose to write out the simple virtues of Obedience, Honesty, Learning, Brotherly Love and Trust in God.

Questions and animated discussion followed and Mr. Clouston did not even receive a formal vote of thanks. But as this writer saw and heard it, it was the most natural and sincere tribute a speaker could grant an audience. For just as an interesting evening at the home of a friend ends in such animated discussion that you have to thank your host, so ended the Home and School meeting. As I left the Allen Johnstone School door, I heard, "My that was an interesting talk."

A resolution was passed asking for shower facilities for players after taking part in athletics. One member stated that the petition for Educational Research now being promoted by Home and Schools may cost $1,500,000.00. This would be enough to build Gymnasiums in thirty towns at a cost of $50,000.00 each.

On motion of Mrs. Maryon Drager, proceeds from the whist drive will go to buy a T.V. set for educational purposes.

Mr. Arnold Jacobson on behalf of the staff, reported a round of successful activities of pupils and teachers.

SHOWER HELD FOR FIRE VICTIM

HARDISTY — On April 21st, a kitchen shower was held at home of Roland Van Dewark for Jon Beebe, who lost his home and possessions in a recent fire. Mrs. Beebe and sister Helene assisted Jon in opening the useful assortment of gifts.

After the speeches of appreciation a Bible was presented to Jon by Mrs. Maggie Van Dewark on behalf of the United Church Women. A parting gift of a birthday book was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Beebe by Homer Ehn on behalf of the St. Paul's United Church.

Rev. Zwicker gave a brief address, wishing Jon well, and also Mr. and Mrs. Beebe happiness in their new Edmonton home. A gift from the Sunshine Club was given to Mrs. Beebe to replace the one presented the week before and lost in the fire. The 40 guests enjoyed a tasty lunch and social visit.

SUMMER FALLOW POLLY

Mr. H. J. Pittman of the Lethbridge Research Station contends that summer fallowing is an unnecessary and wasteful habit. The Research Station established a plot in 1914 that has been seeded every year that there has been 27" of moist soil under the stubble at seeding time; otherwise the plot was fallowed. The plot was fallowed 1 year and had a crop failure one year. This plot has averaged a yield of 16.1 bushels per acre. A fallow-wheat rotation plot near by was averaged 13 bushels per acre.

From observation of the results of the Crop Analysis Reports received from 13 farms in the M.D. of Flagstaff, the more intensively farmed land is returning the greatest returns. Farmers should be aiming at rotations with not more than 1/4 to 1/3 of the land summer fallowed each year in the Brown Soil Zone. Farmers in the Black Soil zone should be moving toward a continuous cropping program for greatest returns.

The additional plant nutrients needed by a stubbled-in crop can more economically be added by the use of commercial fertilizers than by the practice of summer fallow.

WIREWORM CONTROL SEED TREATMENT

Recent surveys have shown that at least 25 million acres of crop land in the Prairie Provinces carry a heavy enough population of wireworms to make seed treatment necessary and profitable.

General Recommendations. Wireworm seed treatment chemicals are recommended for use with wheat, oats, barley and rye. They should not be used on flax or rape as wireworms do not attack these crops. Wireworm seed dressings are especially recommended for use with wheat planted on summerfallow and with seed that is to be used for the first crop of grain in fields that have been under grass for several years. These are the crops and fields where wireworm damage is most serious and where seed treatment results in a marked increase in yield. Protect your crops from wireworms in 1966. It pays.

Memory Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantlon, Hardisty, Alberta)

FRIENDSHIP

Recently I read a quotation which appealed to me as I mulled over in my mind the good fortune of having so many friends. The quotation read as follows —

"There is no man so poor that he is not rich if he has a friend: And no man so rich that he is not poor without a friend."

My Mother used to say—"One can do without one's relatives—but NOT without one's neighbors". I would like to add—"AND FRIENDS".

Real lasting friendship is like Love —it abides with one through joys and sorrows—through peace—time and through adversity — rejoices when you rejoice — weeps when you weep.

Alas — I've noticed that to HAVE a friend—one must BE a friend, first to himself by having high ideals and living up to them. Truly, a real friend is like a "shelter of a rock in a weary land". An un-known author once wrote the following—

"If you wish as a friend—you will find a friend.
Wherever you choose to fare;
If you go with mirth to a fair, strange land
You will find that mirth is there.
For the strangest part of this queer old world is that like will join with like;
And who walks with LOVE for his fellow man
An answering love will strike."
"If you walk with hower, then hatest men will meet you along the way
But if you are false, you will find men false

Wherever you chance to stray.
For good breeds good and bad breeds bad;
We are met by the traits we show.
Love will find a FRIEND at the stranger's door,
Where hate will find a foe".

To prove one's friendship — one does not necessarily have to perform great deeds of bravery or make long journeys of love much be may think of that person It is the small, un-obstrutive things you may do for that person—even a smile or an honest hand—clasp that speaks louder than words—THAT would mean so much to that person.

So, as I continue along life's way —I find that when good friends walk beside me— "On the trails that I must keep—my burdens seem less heavy, and the hills are not so steep.

True — we often can — and do make new friends, but, like an old shoe — from which we derive so much comfort — so we love the OLD friends better — sometimes — than the new

Also — if we help each other bear their burdens — share their sorrows and joys — "Clasp their hand with an honest grasp" — our own way becomes brighter — our own burdens lighter.

After all — the real joys in this life are thinking — and having true friends.

CANADIAN KNOW-HOW. Canadian mineralogical expert Donald Robertson, second from right, was selected by the U-N Special Fund to aid in a geological survey of the Argentina Andes, in search of minerals which could bring prosperity to the predominantly agricultural area. Robertson directs workers classifying rocks extracted at a drilling site. The U-N allocated more than $1 million to the project, and the Argentine government contributed almost as much.

WEEKLY DEVOTION

A Different Kind Of Yankee

When I was a boy people were reading about the adventures of a Yankee salesman, Sam Slick, who sold everything from thread to clocks Many Nova Scotians couldn't bring themselves to part with enough money for a clock But Sam a born salesman, would leave the clock saying "I pick it up the next time I'm around" By that time the clock had become one of the family Haliburton's Yankee was full of many droll sayings

In "The Fellowship of Prayer" (85 pages), a far more sophisticated, more palatable and refreshing kind of Yankee, Harland G Lewis, Pastor of the United Church of Christ, Farmington, Connecticut offers penetrating comments and choice quotations for lost or any fools.' M L King

'Let us not look back in anger, Or forward in fear, but around in awareness' J Thurber.

Grant to us, Lord, we beseech Thee, the pardon of our sins and the increase of our religion, that thou may multiply thy gifts upon us make us more ready to obey thy commandments. Amen (The Fellowship Of Prayer" 1000 H G Lewis 10c from a United Church Minister or order from Literature Depot, c o Alberta College, Edmonton.

A general strike is a strike against the public, not a strike against an employer

Today's meditation by this Connecticut Yankee is "NOW" 1 John 3 17 But if anyone has the world's goods and sees his brother in need, yet closes his heart against him, how does God's love abide in him? "We cannot find life apart from our neighbor, nor can we keep life to ourselves lest we lose it." The greatest love is visible in the one who accepted death rather than close his heart An open heart in a closed door society may mean death. Witness Dachau . . . Manistapps. Death came to those who refused to hate, when the situation said 'hate'

A sample of Dr Leyis' quotations are 'Strange how we trust the powers that rule and not the powers that bless' C Fry

'Where openness obtains, humanity begins to occur. To the extent that we move out of ourselves, not refusing to know others or being afraid to be known by them, our existence is human' K Barth "Divine Providence is leading us to a new order of human relations' Pope John 23d.

'We must learn to live together as brothers, or we shall perish as

DRY CLEANING!

Garments that require dry cleaning may be sent to a professional dry cleaner or may be cleaned in a coin-operated dry cleaning machine. The professional dry cleaner possesses the knowledge, skill and equipment for effective spot removal, cleaning and pressing. Some professional cleaners alter and repair garments as well as clean them. They may also offer pick up and delivery service.

The coin-operated dry cleaning machines are more economical than professional cleaning and they clean clothing effectively. Some "coin-op" establishments are staffed by trained personnel and offer low cost pressing services and assistance in removing spots and stains before clothes are cleaned. You may even be able to leave garments to be cleaned, pressed and ready for "pick up" at a specific time. Many garments cleaned in a coin operated machine need only touch-up pressing unless they were badly wrinkled before cleaning.

You may wish to use professional dry cleaners for clothing that requires removal of stains and spots which cannot be handled by amateurs — for garments that require a professional press — for delicate fabrics such as satins, crepes, taffetas, chiffons. The "coin-op" may be satisfactory and more economical for over-all cleaning of soiled garments with out stains or spots — of garments line do not need professional pressing — of items you wish to clean before off season storage.

Whether you need clothing to a professional cleaner or use a coin-operated machine:

Clean garments before they are heavily soiled or before stains become set.

Alert the professional cleaner to the cause of any unusual spot or stain. At a coin-operated cleaning shop, ask the attendant's advice on removing stains.

Empty pockets, remove unclean-able trimmings and fasten closures before cleaning clothing.

Shake and hang garments as immediately after using a coin-operated machine. Sometimes it is desirable to let clothes air before wearing.

Devotional Message from the Flagstaff and Districts Ministerial by Rev. W. D. Arnett — pastor of the Lakeland United Missionary Church.

This is a day when many new versions of the Bible are being produced. It is claimed that no many passages are difficult for the average reader to understand. I, for one, will welcome any version of the sacred Scriptures that is so written that the truth will be more self-evident and lucid. However, on the other hand, I will not countenance any version, though it bears the marks of scholarship, that destroys or departs from the original message God left for mankind.

The version I am most interested in is, of course, the one translated into human lives. The Apostle Paul, in writing to the Corinthian church said, "Ye are our epistles written in our hearts, known and read of all men. For as much as ye are manifestly declared to be the epistles of Christ ministered by us, written not with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God; not in tables of stone, but in fleshly tables of the heart."

The Word of God deals with many subjects vital to everyday Christian living. The passing of time does not wear away their relevance, but rather enriches them. The Bible speaks much about love — love towards God, towards one's neighbors, towards one's enemies. It thrills us to read about it. However, a more thrilling experience is to see it shown in lives of those around us, commanded to discussion and ensuing to God; in friendship, fellowship, and helpfulness with one's neighbors; in forgiveness and deep concern for the welfare of one's enemies.

The same is true with regard to honesty. "Speak every man truth with his neighbor." "Lie not." Certainly, he will not pull the "fast one." He will not misrepresent the goods or the facts. He will be truthful in all things.

Much more could be written on other subjects dealt with in the Bible. The great need of our day is not more versions written with pen and ink on paper, but rather more versions translated into human lives, lived — rather than written.

new office in Killam from areas of the M D had resulted in the request for a County System. Mr. Clouston added in his opinion the conditions and atmosphere existing in the office presently occupied by the School Division was not conducive to obtaining well qualified teachers.

The matter was further discussed by the Council after the delegates left and it was agreed that the public meeting should be postponed until after the School Division had publicized their reasons to give rate payers information. It was moved that this meeting be held if possible the latter part of the first week in May in the evening at 8:00 p.m.

Representatives from various equipment companies were interviewed by the council during the day.

By-Law 352 was passed authorizing the purchase of land sufficient to allow for a 99 foot and 132 foot allowance north of and through the N.E. 33, North and through N.W. 23 and through N.E. 34 etc., at the rate of three times the average assessment of the land per acre.

By-law 353 was passed authorizing the same procedure north of Secs. 21 and 22-40-12, and Secs. 26, 25, 30, 36, 35 and 36-40-13, etc.

Quotations were received from various firms for motor grader sheds, and a committee was formed to inspect sites for sheds, homes for motor graders and buildings suitable for motor grader sheds.

A summary of the 1965 gravel crushing operations and costs, was studied and reviewed by the council. Mr. Wm. Lewis, dragline operator, attended the meeting. Mr. Rost will be leaving this summer and council was interested as to whether Mr. Lewis would be interested in taking over as foreman,which would require a replacement for him as the dragline.

The minutes of the annual ratepayers meeting held on March 8th were read and approved. Out of these minutes, discussion took place on; Signing of roads, Fire equipment for towns and villages for rural fire fighting. These two items were tabled.

OH, BROTHER

By Bert Odland

It's hard for me to admit this, but not everybody and his brother are corny about Lennox Air Conditioning.

There's because many of the brothers are no longer with us. They have been killed off on Western TV shows. The slaughter has been appalling. I can't remember a single western wherein somebody didn't squint up his already squinty eyes and drawl, "He shot m'brother."

Of course, the survivors are wildly enthusiastic about Lennox; here is how I imagine an interview with one of them:

"Well, Bruno, I'm sure you appreciate coming back to your Lennox central air conditioning after a hot, dusty, noisy day out shooting at rustlers. The quiet coolness must feel wonderful. Lennox is the most quiet air conditioning equipment ever made. Don't you agree?"

"Yup."

"It's the large unrestricted coils, the properly sized cabinet and the floating blower that give low air resistance and quietness. Right?"

"Yup."

"And because of all this, you enjoy an excellent ratio of cooling output to power consumption."

"Huh."

"It costs less to run than any other, Bruno."

"Oh, yup."

"Too bad those rustlers plugged your brother. He would have enjoyed this Lennox air conditioning."

"Knowin' him, I reckon he'd get more enjoyment out of it where he is right now."

Well, Lennox hasn't cracked that market yet. But they have dealers everywhere else. I'm the one in these parts. Bring in your cooling and heating problems.

EYE APPEAL. It would seem that with the modern men in Canada, eyes are no longer just to look with, but are to be looked at. Baptist Church

This week we wish to submit the words of a hymn which is one of the favourites of the congregation.

I want a principle within
Of watchful, godly fear,
A sensibility of sin,
A pain to feel it near.
Help me the first approach to feel
Of pride or wrong desire;
To catch the earliest motion of my will,
And quench the kindling fire.
From Thee that I no more may stray.
No more Thy goodness grieve,
Grant me the filial awe, I pray,
The tender conscience give.
Quick as the apple of an eye,
O God, my conscience make!
Awake my soul when sin is nigh,
And keep it still awake.
Almighty God of truth and love,
To me Thy power impart;
The burden from my soul remove,
The hardness from my heart.
O may the least omission pain
My reawakened soul,
And drive me to that grace again,
Which makes the wounded whole.

1966 Road Program For Flagstaff Ready

SEDGEWICK — The adjourned April 13th meeting of the Council of the M.D Flagstaff was held in the Board Room on April 26th with all councillors and the secretary in attendance

Mr Bousard, district engineer and his assistant from the Department of Highways, met with council to discuss the 1966 regular road work program in the Municipal District. Mr. Bousard asked if council would consider spraying the brush and weeds on provincial highways within the District. Council felt that this could be worked with the year's program. He also stated that the Department is considering placing trees from 100 to 150 feet back from road allowances to act as a permanent snow fence. Council felt that many advantages could be derived from such a program if the farmers could be persuaded to co-operate in the scheme.

The 1966 road program as submitted by councillors was checked by the engineers, who indicated that it appeared to be in order, and that upon receipt of the program the articles of agreement would be prepared and returned for the proper signatures.

Form 27, Schedule A, required by the M.D. Act, setting out the 1966 road program in the M.D., was finalized. It was also passed that the contingency road be continued in 1966 from where the work left off in 1965.

Mr. Whitehead, shop foreman, met with council and advised that Alberta Government Telephones had requested the use of municipal equipment to unload supplies for them at Loughead as no other equipment was available. Council granted the permission provided the work was done at government rates covering the rental of equipment. He also discussed the damage done to culverts in the District by Alberta Telephones in their cable laying program. It was passed that an M.D. employee along with a Telephone official look over the area where cable was laid, to arrive at an assessment of culvert damage done. Mr. Whitehead was instructed to bring all snow blowers, plows and dirt graders into the district material yard at Sedgewick to be prepared for sale to local farmers if they wished to purchase any of the same.

The minutes of the Safety Committee meeting held in April were read and accepted.

Approval was given for the transfer of paid 16 the North-East of 30-43-5 to Allied Land Services, and Town Planning Board is to be notified of this.

The Department of Municipal Affairs advised the council that the amount of municipal assistance grant for the year 1966 had been set at $221 948.27, an increase of $77, 941.61 over 1965.

Rec. Centre Report Shows Good Year

SEDGEWICK — President John Patten presented an encouraging report to the annual meeting of the Recreation Board on Friday night. The thirty odd persons in attendance were presented with a financial operational report which showed a net profit for the year of just over $1000.

The meeting, chaired by A. W. Eastly, heard reports from the various groups whose activities take place at the Centre, all showing an active season with net profits.

President Patten outlined the overall activities at the Centre, including the installation of natural gas heating, improvements in the kitchen area and bowling lanes, additions to P.A. system. He particularly paid tribute to the Kinsmen Club for their work in making and maintaining ice on the rink during the winter, the Ladies Curling Club in operating the kitchen, those clubs and helped to operate the Centre through a very successful season

Plans for the current year include a grassing program on the remainder of the grounds, improved race track facilities and parking areas, as well as maintenance work on the buildings and grounds.

The skating Club in reporting for the season, presented the Board with a donation of $20.

The two retiring members of the Board, Jim Davison and Tom Sparrow, were re-nominated.

LADY CURLERS HAD SUCCESSFUL SEASON

SEDGEWICK— The Sedgewick Ladies' Curling Club, which recently completed a very successful season, is appreciative of the co-operation received not only from members of the club but from others as well. Realizing that the success of the club hinges on assistance from many, the club thanks those who helped out by donating time and baking to the Rec Centre kitchen, and to Ken Jacobsen and Gordon Simpson who helped in many ways during the winter.

SEEDING OPERATIONS IN FULL SWING

With the weather having settled down to traditional fine Alberta conditions, farmers are getting all out to plant the new crop. Some are working in shifts even at this early stage, with nearly all putting in time up to dark.

Soil conditions are good, although surface moisture is lacking in many areas. Sub-soil moisture is said to be better than average. Acreage, at present indications, will be up for wheat, with less coarse grains being planted due to satisfactory feed conditions prevailing.

Capital Punishment!

A couple of weeks ago the Press published a letter from An Interested Citizen in which he said, "Supposing a judge sentences a man to hang and 99 percent of the people think otherwise." The obvious answer is that what this percentage of people might think has nothing to do with the carrying out of the law as it is constituted, except that a loud public voice may influence the carrying out of the verdict. The criminal code is laid out by those responsible for establishing law and order in our society, as paid representatives of the people, and there must be some basis for such a code. It would certainly not be in the best interests of anyone to have laws enforced to the whims of every individual citizen. On the other hand if the voice of 99 percent of the people was raised in protest over the hanging situation there is little doubt but what there would be a change made and hanging would be abolished. That such a majority would ever be proven if very doubtful outside of a nationwide plebiscite on the question. At the moment it is indicated that the majority of people favor retention of the death penalty. It has been shown that a majority of M.P.'s. do so. Even people ardently in favor of abolition of capital punishment might be expected to change their minds after a close friend or relative has been senselessly murdered.

While the argument goes on there is still the question as to whether the law should remain on the statute books in view of the fact that almost all death penalties have been commuted to life imprisonment. Hanging is only carried out in cases of first degree murder, but even this is meaningless if not carried out. And so the abolitionists have a sound talking point in doing away with the death penalty.

Youngsters Swing A Telling Punch!

The following is an editorial from the Ponoka Herald of April 19th which we are re-printing in its entirety. It is a follow-up of an editorial we produced here a short some ago, and which sparked a letter to the editor from the United Nations Club of Central High School

During the past month, the Sedgwick Community Press carried part of the Ponoka Herald editorial "Are We Robbing Youth?" The April 7 issue of this lively Sedgewick paper carried a letter to the editor from a large number of young people who had, of their own accord, launched a project of their own devised along one of the general lines suggested in the Herald editorial.

The adults of the area let these youngsters down badly and the kids are deeply disappointed and hurt. They appear to have every right to be.

Following is the pertinent part of the young people's letter to the Sedgewick Community press, which carried it on the editorial page.

"Any teenager can tell you what some adults call overindulgence is really only an excuse for neglect, that this indulgence is to relieve adults of any responsibility to be interested in these youthful projects'.

"A case in point was the model Security Council sponsored by Central United Nations Associations of Students, on March 29. Largely unassisted, 50 students of Central, Forestburg, Alliance and Camrose Composite High Schools for weeks planned their proposals, policy speeches and rebuttals on the Rhodesian unilateral declaration of independence and the war in Viet Nam. The resulting debates were of an extremely high calibre, showing an exact knowledge of details, policies and procedures.

"Despite announcements of the Security Council in this newspaper and at Education Night, exactly one person from the general public came during the whole day.

"We were frankly shocked and awed by this monumental display of public apathy. We could only conclude that adults are either indifferent to these particular world issues or that they are unconcerned in the youth projects that they so frequently demand. And we are forced to ask: What is becoming of the adults these days?—

by A.C.E.

Back in March when we were basking in the warm weather, at least warm for that time of year, a lady from down near Alliance was in the office and said she wished the weather man would stick in winter until it was time for spring to arrive. Her opinion was that we would probably suffer for it later on. Well she was not too far off as this certainly hasn't been one of the nicer springs on record. Last week it got down right wintery with the ground covered with snow and a chilly wind blowing. In fact the temperature approached the zero mark. So far we haven't had any really warm weather. This was pointed out the other day when I learned that the M.D. of Flagstaff road crew had a 'it mored out to start the summer's program because the frost still wasn't out of the ground. And what about the farmers? The closer spring comes the itchery their feet get until finally they can't stand it any longer and the first half decent day that comes along they are out on the tractor working up the ground just to get the feel of it. One farmer told me he almost froze to death, hadn't been so cold all winter. At any rate it's now May and seeding time is fast approaching, let's hope the weather warms up.

The Letter Box

Editor,
The Community Press,
Sedgewick, Alberta.
Dear Sir:

In the last issue, April 28, 1965, of the Community Press there is an account of the meeting of the M.D. of Flagstaff. In this account there is a section to which we take exception. At this meeting Mrs. Theresa Clauston and Secretary E. Borth were present. Mr. Clauston stated that "in many respects the operating deficit of $56,000 incurred By the Alberta Government Liquor Control by the fact that the Alerna School had been allowed to operate due to public opinion in that area, and against the better judgement of the Board".

We would like to state that to operate Merna cannot cost more than 1 1-3 of this amount or less, because regardless of where the children are going they will still have to have buses, equipment and buses, so this cannot be charged directly to Merna.

Then too, the cost of superintendence at Merna cannot be added to Mr. Howe hasn't been there yet this school year.

According to the Killam School Division financial report of Capital Projects completed or in progress, there was nothing spent on Merna so this cannot be included in the $56,000.

In a previous paragraph Mr. Clauston states that "under the Foundation Program of the government, in order to survive all full grants for pupils and teachers ,the proper ratio of teacher-pupil load must be maintained." We would point out that according to the last financial report of the Killam School Division the ratio of teacher-pupil load at Merna is better than the following: Alliance, Galahad, Haider, Strome, and South Bend and overstepping by an equal basis with Hardisty and Loughead.

We cannot see why Merna should be chosen as the scapegoat to cover the financial blunders on the part of the Board.—Merna-ites.

"YOU'D THINK THEY WERE RUNNING THE SHOW..."

* MACDUFF REPORT

"Losers Weepers"

OTTAWA — In spite of legislation prohibiting it, which a Parliamentary Committee labored over for months before it was included in Canada's Combines Law, manufacturers may yet be able to force retailers to charge the price they fix for their products.

Sunbeam Corporation (Canada) Ltd. believes it has found a loophole in the resale price maintenance section of the Act and it is probably ready to fight for it all the way to the Supreme Court of Canada. The Restrictive Trade Practices Commission is equally determined that no such loophole exists and would like a Supreme Court ruling to confirm it.

At the moment Sunbeam, Canadian subsidiary of the U.S. manufacturer of shavers and other electrical appliances, stands convicted of breaking the law by attempting to induce two retailers, Shaver Bros. of St. Catharines, Ontario and New Era Home Appliances in Toronto to sell shavers and flour combiners at prices at or above the price set by the company. It has appealed that conviction to the Ontario Court of Appeals. The Crown has appealed two acquittals and now has entered a 3rd appeal against the judge's refusal to grant a prohibitory order against the company which involves the key point of law over which the whole fight is being waged. It is a safe bet that whatever loses in the Ontario Court of Appeals will seek leave to appeal to the Supreme Court.

The device used by Sunbeam is the result of an amendment to the resale price maintenance prohibition section which Parliament added to the law in 1960. The practice known as "loss leading" or selling a product at less than the retailer paid for it in order to attract customers to his store has been frowned on by several parliamentary committees over the years but they have never brought themselves to recommend its prohibition, though two provinces, Manitoba and B. C., do so. Instead Parliament finally compromised by getting the manufacturer to do the job for them. If a manufacturer believes his product is being sold below cost he is, in effect, allowed to cut off supplies in spite of the prohibition against maintaining a minimum selling price. He does not have to prove "loss leading".

Sunbeam argues through its counsel, J.J. Robinette, Q. C., of Toronto, that if the law allows this, the law must also allow the manufacturer to warn the retailers of the minimum price below which they must not go without running the risk of losing future supplies of the product. It sent all retailers a price list for shavers ,flour combiners and other appliances which is described as the "minimum profitable resale price", explaining that these prices have been set after investigation of retailing costs and were at levels below which, in the company's opinion, no retailer could make a profit. Any sales at cheaper prices, it warned would be investigated.

Officials administering the Law on Combines admit that if Sunbeam had not delivered this warning in advance but had cut off the supply of any retailer who sold below these prices they probably would have been within the law. No supplies were cut off. Retailers took the warning and sold at prices at or above those "suggested".

While the trial judge Mr. Justice Grant, has registered two convictions and has imposed nominal fines, he has refused a court order prohibiting the company from issuing further lists, contending that this was not the offending action. Then the Commission's whole case collapses. If the judge is upheld by higher courts it becomes impossible to prevent manufacturers from fixing minimum resale prices. They need only issue price lists as the minimum at which they consider special can be made and threaten to stop supplying the retailer who sells below this profit

If this is the final verdict, the law will have to be changed by Parliament or prohibition of resale price maintenance dropped

CAPITAL HILL CAPSULE!

The long delayed railroad legislation is getting a first reading until September or October. The government is anxious to avoid a possibility that it might be debated just at the time that the railways' wage dispute with the non-operating unions is coming to a head, possibly involving a strike vote and a strike deadline. It is also anxious to allow a cooling off period after the best organized against the CPR over cancellation of the "Dominion". The National Farmers' Union is a brief to the Parliamentary subcommittee studying CPR passenger service has recommended that the CPR be nationalized.

LACK OF IMAGINATION

There is a singular lack of imagination being shown across Canada as municipalities rush to complete plans for their centennial projects. With federal and provincial funds available on a two dollar for-one dollar of municipal contributions, councils are being pressured under the deadline date (December 31, 1965) for senior government grants.

As a result it seems certain that by 1967 this country will have its quota of parks, playgrounds, swimming pools and community halls. These are the favorite choices across the country.

None of them are imaginative as a memorial to the first 100 years of a country which has been in desperation and has survived a century of pioneer hardships, racial and language divisions wars and depressions to make a place for herself in the community of world nations.

Far the sad truth remains that most municipalities have agreed to join the birthday party only for the period which it might bring to the community. However worthwhile a swimming pool, curling rink or park might be, none have any real significance or historic sybolism to mark a centennial.

As Canada reaches its 200th birthday, it is most unlikely that many of the projects planned as locally today will remain to make future generations ponder on the type of nation forged by its predecessors.

However will meaning the federal and provincial governments might have been in their centennial grant structure, the result has been disappointing from the viewpoint of enduring memorials —Lacombe Globe.

They will compete with the winners from the Camrose Coronation and Stettler Districts to represent this region in the Alberta finals at Edmonton during Week in July.

Janet Bunney of the Hastings Coulee 4-H Beef Club won the competition with a talk on UNESCO and Dennis Eshpeter spoke on "Composters vs. Man which is Smarter?" All contestants had to give an impromptu talk as well as the prepared talk Judges for the competition were Oscar Malmo of Daysland, Don Routledge of Lougheed and Trever Chapman of Sedgewick. An entertaining evening was enjoyed by all.

ONION & RADISH MAGGOTS:

There's nothing worse than biting through a radish and finding a worm or unless it is finding half a worm. We have chemicals that will control the radishes or onions that have been treated with these chemicals the concentration is quite low and therefore of not too much concern. The problem arises when feed contains Chlorinated Hydrocarbons is fed to livestock. The cow will concentrate the intake of chemical in the fat of milk or the animal fat. When we eat butter or animal fat then we can consume a concentrated amount of the chemical so that it could be dangerous

Use the Onion Maggot chemicals as directed and enjoy your vegetables this year.

SEED TREATMENT — A SOUND INVESTMENT

Seed Treatment not only controls seed borne diseases, but it is cheap insurance against some of the soil borne organisms that cause seed decay and seedling blight. It also protects seed from certain soil insects, such as wireworms.

Seed Treatment should not be considered as an expense but as a sound, profitable investment.

Centennial Report

Report No. 3
(By John W. Fisher)

What small town or city in Canada has not been served, at some time in its history, by a Chinese restaurant or a Chinese laundry? Our communities have been built by the contributions of many cultures and it occurs to me that too often the contributions of the Chinese have been over-looked.

In earlier times the Chinese provided the backbone of labour for railroad building. They were the cooks in mines and lumber camps. Gradually they developed small businesses and provided services to communities which few others were prepared or able to offer. They still do that today and scores of small communities would have no public eating places if it were not for Canadians of Chinese extraction. Also they provide a cultural addition to our cities with their glamorous and interesting modern "Chinatowns".

These contributions I have mentioned are some of the more noticeable ones. Chinese Canadians today are active as well in most other areas of modern society — in the arts, the professions, in business, even in politics. For example Mr. Peter Wing recently became the first Chinese Canadian to be elected mayor of a Canadian city, at Kamloops, B.C.

The people of Vernon, B.C., are quite aware of the contribution the Chinese have made in the development of Vernon to build a tea house as a Centennial project in the city park. Walter Joe, spokesman for the Chinese community's Freemasons and Dart Coon Club, told the city council that some of the additions wanted to build the tea house as a reminder of the new and old cultures.

I can agree heartily with the Vernon News which commented in one of its editorials: "Chinese Canadians should be saluted on their desire to play a part in celebrating the 100th anniversaries of B.C. and Canada. In this way their part in the building of a nation, which we tend to over-look, can receive the recognition it deserves."

The first Chinese arrived at Vernon 69 to 70 years ago and the community reached 700 people around the time of the First World War. The News states that they went to Vernon in force with the building of the railroad and earlier some took part in the Cherry ville gold rush. They played a part to provide the labour needed to operate canneries and the agricultural industry. It was natural labour because they lacked the education and knowledge of the language to get better jobs.

After the Chinese established themselves as hard workers and good citizens. Many became prosperous businessmen and played a significant role in the community's development." I might add that, whenever the Chinese were allowed to bring up families in Canada, they strove to give their children higher education.

It is easy to see that the Centennial is not only an occasion of celebration. It is a time when we are reminded that Canadians of all back grounds have developed this country and that we cannot afford to think that any group of us can be self-sufficient in isolation. I believe that the Centennial projects — the big ones being conducted on a national scale and the small ones like the Vernon tea house — will remind us that Canadians originated from societies and cultures all over the world and will increase our understanding of each other's way of life and point of view.

SOWING GARDEN SEED IN POTS AND FLATS

A good soil mixture is one of the prerequisites of growing seeds successfully in pots or flats (shallow boxes).

P. D. McCalla, Supervisor of Horticulture with the Alberta Department of Agriculture, recommends using two parts of loam, one of peat moss and one of sand. In addition to holding plenty of moisture, this mix tures provides good drainage.

All soils, says Mr. McCalla, should be sterilized to avoid the disease called damping-off. One of the most practical ways of doing this is to sprinkle about a bushel of soil with a quart of water containing 2 1/2 tablespoonsful of formaldehyde and then covering the soil with a sheet of plastic overnight. Seed must not be planted for several days after the soil has been treated.

When the soil has been sterilized, rain and air it thoroughly before filling the pots or flats, advises Mr. McCalla. Then pat a few stones or pieces of broken pottery in the bottom of each pot for drainage. Fill the pots or flats to within an inch of the top with the coarse soil mixture and add sifted soil until the soil surface is level with the top of the container. Using a can or tamper, press the earth down smoothly and evenly until it is about 1/2 an inch from the rim of the pot.

Mr. McCalla suggests putting the pots in a shallow tray of water and leaving them there until the moisture has soaked up to the top. Flats may be soaked thoroughly with a fine spray. Scatter the seed thinly over the surface of the pots, but space it in rows in the flats.

Very fine seed does not need to be covered; simply press it lightly into the soil. The depth of soil cover needed depends upon the size of the seed, says Mr. McCalla. A cover equal to twice the diameter of the seed is usually considered the best. Water with a sheet of paper over the glass to keep the sun out. As soon as the seed begins to germinate, remove the paper.

Great care must be taken when watering seed in pots or flats, says Mr. McCalla. He recommends standing them in shallow trays and letting the water creep up from below rather than watering the surface of the soil.

The "Alberta Horticultural Guide", available free of charge from my office, contains a list of recommended fruit, flower, and vegetable varieties which can be successfully grown in your area. Stronger Checks on Inflation Urged

MONTREAL, May 4th — "Stronger evidence of determination" to keep federal, provincial and municipal expenditures in check "would be welcome" as a curb to inflation, according to the Bank of Montreal in its Business Review for April, just issued.

"The situation also calls for moderation and restraint on the part of both business and labor," the bank comments.

Examining recent price increases, the B of M observes that the record of price movements shown in the major indices "tends to support the contention that most of the increases so far reflect pressures external to the Canadian economy or special internal factors which are not related to basic inflationary tendencies.

CONSTRUCTION PRESSURES

"One area of the domestic economy where inflationary pressures are clearly apparent, however, is the construction industry.

"As a result of very sharp increases in capital investment programs in the past two years, operations in the construction industry have recently been pressing against capacity ceilings, with shortages of skilled workers evident in a number of areas of the country and some building materials in short supply," the B of M states.

Construction costs rose by 4 per cent a year in 1963 and 1964, and increased a further 8.5 per cent last year, a much larger rise than in any other major industry.

"Inflationary pressures in this industry seem likely to continue and could well be intensified in the current year," despite the federal government cut-back on capital spending and budget measures.

The latest survey of capital intentions indicates construction outlays rising by a further 12 per cent this year, while a sharp rise of some 17 per cent in spending on new machinery and equipment is also expected.

PRODUCTIVITY LAG

Looking at cost pressures on the economy as a whole, the B of M notes that there was a rapid rise in wages and salaries during 1956, outstripping the advance in productivity by about a result, the labor cost per unit of output rose.

"Moreover, the pressure on production costs seems likely to persist. Many wage contracts already in force call for further increases this year and wage settlements under new contracts are likely to reflect both the current tight labor supply situation and the rise that has already taken place in consumer prices. In addition, contributions to the Canada and Quebec Pension Plans . . . will also add to business costs.

"While in the short run the rapidly expanding capital expenditure program is adding to inflationary pressures, the new facilities coming on stream should substantially increase the country's productive capacity and contribute to the achievement of productivity gains.

"Furthermore, the labor force is growing rapidly, as a result of both higher immigration and an increasing flow of young people from our schools and universities. These factors work in the direction of producing a more balanced relationship between the forces of supply and demand within the economy."

But the B of M says that prices are still expected to rise by 3.5 per cent or more this year and concludes, "it is difficult to accept such a prospect with equanimity since a much better price performance than is required for the achievement of national goals in terms of maximum sustainable growth in employment and real incomes, balance-of-payments viability and social equity."

BLACK-EYED APPRENTICE The hockey season is just drawing to a close with the Stanley Cup playoffs, but the baseball season is just beginning. Young Bobby Boyd may have believed this was the year he would prove himself a Canadian-style Mickey Mantle, but he was accidentally hit on the cheek with a bat. Now he rotes night stirches and a big black eye as souvenirs. Ah, well, it only proves hockey's not the only rough sport.

Green Acres

FERTILIZER PROBLEMS:

There seems to be considerable confusion regarding the application of fertilizer this year. Perhaps the following will help clear up a few questions.

NITROGEN:

The first element listed in a formulation, is responsible for deep green color in plants and abundant growth. Nitrogen moves readily through the soil in a form available to plants. Nitrogen fertilizers such as 33.5-0-0; 21-0-0, can be broadcast on a field.

PHOSPHORUS:

The second element listed in a formulation. It is responsible for root development and seed setting. Phosporous does not move readily through the soil and so must be placed within easy reach if the roots. It should always be drilled in with the seed.

Any amount of phosporous can be drilled in with the seed but not more than twenty-five pounds of actual nitrogen should be placed with the seed. As an example — 180 lbs. of 23-23-0 drilled in would provide 23 lbs of actual nitrogen and 23 lbs. of actual phosphate. This would not be too high a rate of nitrogen to cause any harm to the seed.

Remember though that fertilizer formulations containing phosphorous should not be broadcast if you want to get the proper value from the phosphorous.

In dry type fertilizers the nitrogen costs about 11c per pound of actual nitrogen and the phosphorous cost 8c per pound.

DENNIS ESPETER WINS 2ND PLACE:

Dennis Espeter of Strome took 2nd place at the Regional 4-H Public Speaking Eliminations at Stettler on Wednesday evening April 27th.

Robert Grisbol of the Castor 4-H Club won 1st place with his prepared talk on "The Vietnamese War." Dennis spoke on "Which is best — Computer or Man?"

Two 4-H members from each of the Stettler, Camrose and Paintearth Counties and the M.D. of Flagstaff competed to win the honors of representing this region at the Provincial 4-H Public Speaking Competitions to be held in Edmonton during Exhibition Week.

Dennis Espeter is following his brother Ken's footsteps. Ken represented this region in Edmonton Twice and last year won the Alberta 4-H Public Speaking finals. We congratulate you Dennis and wish you the best of luck.

Amisk UCW Group To Pay For Painting

AMISK— The Amisk Meadville United Church Women held their April meeting in the basement of the church. Meeting was opened with a thought for today by the president, followed by a hymn and the Lord's Prayer.

Mrs. Ed Hanaman was in charge of the devotional period, her theme being Easter Gladness. Scripture reading was taken from Psalm 16.

In regards to business, the following motions were passed and discussed: To have the church basement painted and hire the work done; to cater to the Coronation Presbyterial UCW executive meeting on May 25th to be held in the Amisk United Church; appointed Mrs. Hanaman to purchase several kitchen articles for use in the church basement; a cleaning bee at the church will be held following the passing; the treasurer's report of the March tea and bake sale was satisfactory.

It was decided to again collect used clothing, hats and shoes for Bethel Mission. Bring and leave donations at the church.

The next meeting will be on May 12th at 2 20 in the church basement, with roll call being a Bible verse, exchange of any kind of plant, bulb or seed.

PICK YOUR EXECUTION
In its wisdom. the Canadian Parliament has decided that the death penalty should not be abolished, that capital punishment should be permitted

I agree Completely in my youthful, idealistic days, I had a crazy idea that the cold, deliberate taking of a human life by a civilized society was wrong

But I'm becoming bloated in a world where young men who never did a nasty thing are killed daily, and women and children are bombed and burned daily, all in the name of peace

In the face of this, who can worry about a handful of hoodlums about to be hanged? If there's the odd one who wasn't guilty, tough! There are a lot of other non guilty people dying these days, and always have been Without a trial and jury.

What I can't understand is the Canadian Parliament's lack of fole-thrugh It's pretty disappointing to one who has upheld this notion against its petty attackers for years

But we can get this again and again. Take the Gordo Stemminger case. A few rod foces, a few TV tears, and it's all over

In the capital punishment case, our Canadian politicians had a chance to set the world on fire. Did they do it? Not they. They cast their votes and went home for the holidays

Not an iota of imagination in the whole hang-dog group. This was their chance to give Canada a penal system unequalled in the world.

I don't, for one instant, think all those chaps who voted "Nay" were in favor of hanging. It's a pretty crude business After all, some times the rope is too loose, or the hood it too loose, and the girl reporters puke. I think something could be done about this. Paper bags, perhaps.

Not a single M.P. suggested another way of dealing with murderers There are dozens But I believe the most sporting way, for the culprits, and the least incensing way, for a touchy society, would be to thew all the varieties of execution into a hat and let the prospective deportade take his pick. It would add a certain "Jenny-Say-Kwoy" to the whole thing, which, in these troubled days, might keep Quebec within the fold

Throw them all in a hat. There's something for everybody. For the sadist: slashing of wrists and gentle expiration in the bathtub, or an overdose of sleeping pills. For the hawks: electrocution; gas; diving into an empty (concrete-bottom) swimming pool; bullet through the head.

For the exotic: the guillotone, the executioner's axe, impalement on a sharp stake; being torn to pieces by four wild horses being lowered into a pit of vipers

Of course, you have to take what you get. Just because you're a flamboyant type doesn't mean that you are going to pick the ballet saying you'll be burned at the stake. You might get the one saying death by strangling Tough

But at least there'd be some imagination in the whole thing. And this could be spread through the whole penal system Shoplifters could be deported to the U S Kids who stole apples would be branded on the forehead with 'T for Thief

Income-tax-cheaters and people who were tricky with their expense accounts would be sent to the Yukon with four dollars, a fishing line, and all three of their wives. This would fill up our great northern spaces smartly.

There are great possibilities. Pass along your suggestions, and I'll pass them along to Parliament

FORESTBURG—When fifty delegates came, at their own expense, to the Forestburg United Church, to a Special meeting of Coronation Presbytery, it had been stated that no other business than that of a Study of the Principles of Union between the Anglican and United Churches, would be permitted until 4:00 o'clock.

But a few minutes after 10:00 am. the Chairman, Rev. A. G. McCurdy, of Stettler, was confronted with a request by Rev. W. G. Zwicker of Hardisty Pastoral Charge for time to present a resolution

—"You can't it wait until 4:00 p.m.?", asked the Secretary, Rev. Whitewall of Coronation. "Because" replied Mr. Zwicker, "I'm a clock here in 7.00 p.m. in Ottawa, and the Cabinet is meeting today to hand down a verdict on the disposal of a demand by growing numbers of Canadians for an inquiry into the Trial of Steven Truscott."

After a presentation of the case and some debate, the Presbytere passed unanimously,

"Because of what we have read and heard about the Trial of Steven Truscott, we request the Government to appoint a Royal Commission to make a full investigation into all aspects of the Truscott case."

The Petition was forwarded by telegram at 11:40 a.m. to Prime Minister L. B. Pearson and to Honorable J. Diefenbaker, Leader of the Opposition.

The President of Alberta Conference, the Rev D. B. Johnson D.D of Medicine Hat, made an impassioned plea for "bold and imaginative action" to forward the cause of union among the members of the Anglican and United Churches.

Delegates from Sedgewick were Rev D. G Lewis, Convener of the important Christian Education Committee and Mrs Betty Walsh Rev Foley Peterson, Convener of Evangelism and Social Service and Mrs. W Garland and Mrs. A Redmon of Hardisty.

School Division Proceeds With Centralized Board

KILLAM—The regular meeting of the Killam School Division was held at the office with all members of the board and the Superintendent present.

The board committee's action in sending out maps and other information on bussing all students from the Alliance and Galahad areas in Central High School in Sedgewick next fall, was approved.

Due to the complaints of ten people on the D and G bus route North West of Hardisty, complaining chief by that drivers are continually being changed and through this drivers are never too familiar with the route, and cannot keep on schedule. D and G bus lines were to be notified that unless this is rectified the route will be taken over by the Board. Due to these complaints the Highway Traffic Board will be requested to conduct an inspection at that area as soon as possible

It was passed that the Secretary be authorized to proceed with all orders pursuant to Sections 85 of the School Act, re the establishment of a local centralized board in the Heisler Centralization, as soon as definite instructions are received from Mr. Werier of the Department of Education.

It was also passed that the M.D. Flagstaff be advised that the Board of Trustees of Killam School Division will defer further planning of an office building in Killam until May 30th, 1966 to permit the project of its need to be explained to the ratepayers by the Board of Trustees; and that the M.D Council be informed that if it is contemplating a change to County System form of local government, that it advise the Board of Trustees of the Killam School Division prior to the above date.

The above was a result of a motion from the M.D. Flagstaff that the building of a new Divisional office in Killam be postponed for a year in order to give people of the M.D. an opportunity to voice their opinion on the matter.

A delegation of ten residents on the D and G bus route north west of Hardisty met with the Board and protested strongly on the type of bus service on their bus route. They cited a number of reasons for their protest. This committee was promised immediate action on their complaints.

DEFENDS MOUNTIES. Solicitor General Larry Pennell claims the RCMP took all steps necessary in maintaining surveillance on Spencer, the former postal clerk who was branded as a spy by the Federal Government. Speaking of RCMP investigations into Spencer's death, Mr. Pennell said full study was made and "as far as I'm aware the cause of death was natural causes."

Baptist Church

The W.M.S. meeting was held on Thursday, April 28 in the church auditorium. The devotional "The New Covenant" was given by Edith Bartunek, and a chapter on "Love" from the book was read by Bertie Coyne. A talk "Sir Gawain Have Grace" was rendered by Janice Frudrick. The mission study was on Brazil. Letters and "thank you" notes were read. It was decided to purchase an electric kettle with the $10.00 donation and also to buy the new vacuum cleaner, and that the remainder of the money be put into foreign mission work. Permission to loan the old dishes of the church will be granted, as required.

The Ladies Spring Rally was held at Ebenezer Baptist Church, Wetaskiwin, on April 28, with five ladies from the Killam Church attending "To Make Christ Known — This Do in Love" — John 1:3. This theme was emphasized throughout the day in the devotional by Mrs. Grymalaski the panel discussion and also by the guest speaker, Mrs. W. Bisley of Edmonton. The Rally commenced at 9:30 a.m. with dinner served at 12:00 and following the guest speaker all the ladies from Lornedale Nelson, missionary to Assam, India, were shown. Caliso was enjoyed before travelling homeward.

Rev. Siple spoke at the Sunday morning worship service with Mr. Kvill speaking at the Sunday evening service.

Several families from the church attended the dedication of the new Baptist Church building at Wetaskiwin on Sunday afternoon May 1.

CAPITAL HILL CAPSULE!

Canada is to have a new Trans portation Authority taking over the functions and personnel of the Board of Transport Commissioners, the Air Transport Board, the Maritime Commission and eventually the responsibility for interprovincial trucking. This plan for integrating all forms of transportation was not recommended by the MacPherson Royal Commission but by Mr. Jenics Turgeon reporting on transportation problems 15 years ago.

WHY HIPPOPOTAMUS?

By Bert Odland

If there is anything in this world that goes together, it is kids and questions. The way they ask questions is both irritating and interesting. But mostly interesting. Sometimes the answers they get are interesting, too.

There was the little boy who asked his dad why the hippopotamus was given such an unusual name.

"Son," said the dad, "it's because the hippo just looked more like a hippopotamus than any other animal."

There's an answer that defies rebuttal!

Let's try another: why is the blower in Lennox heating and air conditioning equipment called a "Hushaire"?

Answer: Because, like the hippo, it just seems to fit that name better than any other blower that has come along. It's the "hushaire" blower you'll ever come across.

What's so important about a quiet blower? Well, first of all, you've got to have a blower. Some heating systems try to get along without one . . . but not being able to circulate air, they fail far short of providing complete comfort. So, because a blower is vital to comfort and because that blower should run all the time, you might just as well have a quiet, easy-running, thrifty one.

That's the way Lennox builds 'em. That's one of the reasons Lennox is leader in indoor comfort.

I have a lot more answers to questions about indoor comfort . . . heating, air conditioning, ventilating. They are yours for the asking.

New Legion Hall Officially Opened

KILLAM—The new Killam Legion Hall was officially opened at ceremonies held on Monday May 2nd. Platform guests were led to the main entrance by a color party comprising Corporal McTavish and Constable Krocher of the R.C.M.P. Comrade Gordon Brodie carrying the Union Jack and Comrade Mike Demkiw carrying the Canadian Maple Leaf Flag. Sgt.-At-Arms Comrade Bernard McMahon raised the Maple Leaf at the near-by Cenotaph during the playing of O Canada after which Bugler Comrade George Puffler played Reveille. President of the Killam Branch, Comrade Gordon Fee was chairman of the ceremony, which included short addresses and greetings from Mayor Gordon Hilker for the Town of Killam, Zone Commander Comrade Elmer Johnson of Sedgewick, District Commander Comrade Ralph Congdon of Wainwright, Mrs. George Stewart, Regent of Princess Royal Chapter I.O.D.E. of Killam.

The Building was officially dedicated and opened by Comrade Bill Gordon of Edmonton, 2nd Vice-President of Provincial Command. Following the opening the color party entered the Hall where the flags were placed in holders on the platform. During the afternoon the Legion served lunch to the visitors who came to inspect the hall.

Built at a cost of about thirty thousand dollars the facilities are such that the hall serves a great need of the community for lodges, group organizations, wedding receptions, banquets, as well as meetings of various kinds. The modern kitchen facilities contain banquet requirements for 150 guests, while each lodge is provided with separate lockers. The main floor and finished basement are heated by seperate gas-fired furnaces.

The Killam (Alberta No. 65) Branch of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League, now known as the Royal Canadian Legion, was organized by 15 veterans of the First World War on the 26th of April 1928. During the ensuing years the Branch was kept active despite the depletion of members through removal and death. The community work of the Veterans as well as their contributions to the nation-wide Legion efforts on behalf of disabled comrades and their families was carried on by ever fewer members until the end of the second World War.

In 1947 the Branch was re-organized under the direction of the late Comrade Jack Edwards and Comrade Ed James. The first officers of the re-organized Branch were Comrade Russell Smith as President and Comrade Gordon Fee as Secretary. Since 1947 the Killam Legion has taken its full part in Legion activities, supporting the work for Veterans benefits, pensions for disabled service men and their families and active participation in the annual drive for polio victims since the polio epedimic of 1953. At each Christmas season since 1947 the children of the district have been guests of the Legion at the Santa Claus ball held in the Killam Board of Trade organized

M.D. Requested To Hold County Vote

Sedgewick—The net result of the publicized public meeting called by the Council of the Flagstaff Municipality last Thursday was a motion requesting the Council in each County status of Government through the results of a plebiscite of ratepayers.

The meeting was called due to a petition which asked that this be done in order to inform the ratepayers on the set-up as required for Counties. Present were the members of the Municipal Council, the School Board and some four hundred ratepayers representing a good cross section of the Flagstaff M. D. Recording secretary was C. B. Robertson, and chairman of the meeting was Mr. C. P. Hayes of Stronie, former councillor and Reeve.

Mr. Bruce Ramsay of the Alberta Department of Municipal Affairs and Mr. Wetter of the Dept. of Education, who were present to explain the County system of government to the ratepayers, was introduced by the chairman.

Mr. Ramsay, in his remarks, informed the meeting of the procedure to be followed under the various provincial statutes for the setting up of a County, and the formation of the local government after a County had been formed. Mr. Wetter elaborated to some extent on the remarks of Mr. Ramsay by explaining that under the present local set-up the Roman Catholic Separate School at Killam and the Forestburg Consolidated School District would remain as separate units even with the formation of a County unless they requested inclusion. Each of the speakers the school and municipal angles of a County and the representation the Town and Villages would have under the system. Following the disclosures of the two speakers, the chairman opened the meeting for questions and answers.

In reply to a question from the floor, Mr. Len Nicholson, chairman of the school board explained the office accomadation situation and the decision to build a new office of modest size on a new location to allow more space in the present building for bus repair and storage facilities.

Asked as to whether the school board was willing to postpone the erection of a new office, the vice-chairman of the board, Mr. Russel Grant replied that the present space now occupied was not adequate for present day needs. He further stated that the board members were unanimous in their opposition to the formation of a County.

After some further discussion, questions and answers which took up a large portion of the evening, it was moved by Mr. Falls and seconded by Art Widaker, "that the council of the M. D. Flagstaff apply to the provincial government for County status". Discussion on this motion it was suggested that perhaps a plebiscite should be held on the matter throughout the Municipality. This resulted in an amendment to the motion as follows, "that the council of Flagstaff M. D. apply for a County status after a plebiscite had been held". Upon being put to a vote, the amendment was carried, as was the original motion as amended.

Prairie Fire Covers 60 Square Miles

HARDISTY—A fire broke out in the area about five miles north-east of Hardisty early last week and before it was officially declared under control, had burned over a sixty square mile area. Breaking out on the West side of the Battle River, the fire jumped across the river on at least nine different occasions with the shifting of winds. Most of the area burned over was used as a community pasture for cattle and while no reports were made of cattle being burned, several old buildings formerly used as granaries, were destroyed. Due to the efforts of fire fighters, some buildings of a newer nature were saved by setting back fires.

Most of the area burned off constituted what was formerly known as Buffalo Park, and which in recent years known as the Army Camp. A large number of fire fighters kept a constant check on the situation, and even after declaring the fire out, new outbreaks were reported as winds swept the fire into new activity At last reports the situation was under control but an eye is still being kept on the area as smouldering was still noticeable in underbrush.

Sunshine Club To Sell Cards

HARDISTY—The Sunshine Club met at the home of Mrs. Maggie Patterson, May 4 with 14 members and one guest present. A letter of thanks was read from the Killam Auxiliary Hospital expressing appreciation for a recent club visit. A motion was made that the club make donations to The Salvation Army and to The Retarded Children Fund It was decided that the club would sell cards to help raise money. The business prize was won by Mrs Hilda Fisher and the raffle was won by Mrs. Doris Frasier. The next meeting will be June 1 at the home of Mrs. Kathy Van Dewarks. A delicious lunch was enjoyed at the close of the meeting.

Senior Citizens Visit Lodge At Provost

SEDGEWICK—The Matron of the Flagstaff Lodge Senior Citizen Home received an invitation to attend the Provost Senior Citizen Home Tea and Bazaar on May 7th. The Flagstaff Lodge Auxiliary engaged Mr Gordon Taylor with Bus to motor to Provost with thirteen Senior Citizens from Sedgewick and Ten Chaperons.

The Senior Citizens received a warm welcome upon arrival at Provost and enjoyed the sprug outing But as we travelled back home and taking it all in from the noise and chatter and hearty laughter in the Bus we began to wonder whether the Chaperons were having a good time or the Senior Citizens And we are sure the Bus driver will verify that if he thinks he is used to the daily noise of bus spring fever of daily noise of the spring fever of twenty three Senior people is no less. But Everybody felt their time was well spent and would like to commend the driver for a pleasant afternoon.

HOMEMAKERS MEET

LOUGHEED—The May 4 meeting of the Lougheed Homemakers was brought to order by vice-president Sharon Probst, followed by O' Canada and the pledge led by Rosanne Bamber.

The roll call was answered with everyone present. A thank-you note was to be sent to Mrs. Bessie Probst for her help at the work meeting. Numbers were given to each member which will be attached on each of their articles for judging on Achievement Day. The treasurer's report was given followed by the adjournment of the meeting and God Save the Queen

Our achievement day will be on May 18th at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Hall.

Hall Filled For Amateur Night

SEDGEWICK—The large community hall at Sedgewick was filled almost to capacity for an Amateur Program last Friday night sponsored by the Eastern Star Chapter A benefit show in honor of Miss Yvonne Walmsley, the large crowd was treated to a fine program of local talent numbers through two hours of varied presentations

Miss Walmsley, former resident of Lougheed and Sedgewick, and now an educational student at the University of Alberta, has been chosen as a student to take part in the operation Crossroads Africa. She will spend the summer in Africa on a learning mission and goodwill operation, and endeavor to establish a better relationship between the two peoples as a means of bettering the understanding between the two nations.

The amateur program was staged to raise funds for the effort as the students are required to furnish a large part of their own expenses for the operation. The variety of numbers were introduced by the M C Mr Arthur Falla, and showed very plainly that there is no lack of talent in the local areas. Aside from the contestants, the audience was treated to numbers from guest artists to round out a fine program. One of the newly-acquired nurses of the Auxiliary Hospital in Killam,

SUGAR AND SPICE
by Bill Smiley

IT'S BEEN A TOUGH WEEK

We've been a pretty lucky crew around our place this year. All winter, friends, neighbors and relatives have been coming down with everything from the ordinary stuff — pregnancy and insanity — to exotic items like oriental hepatitis and whooping cough. We haven't had so much as a sniffle.

It was too good to last, and we got the whole bundle this week. Nothing serious, physically, but mentally and emotionally, a shattering period.

First it was the dentist. Kim's was her regular six-month check-up. It's a breeze. She's waltzes in blithely, has her gums frozen and the dentist pumps a little concrete into a pinhole you couldn't see with a telescope.

It's a little different for father. I also go regularly to the dentist.

Every three or four years. When I have a broken tooth or two, and have wild, clubbing pains from several of the other old stumps, and have postponed my appointment about six times, I go limply for my regular check-up.

Sweating, trembling, and combining all dentists and their inane questions to the merriest depths, I sit there trying to lean the arms off the chair. Ten gallons about needles to have the freezing, I go through the agonies of Prometheus on the poor man prods about among the smiggles of porcelain, looking for a piece of gumshield, human tooth he can drill.

And then there's always that excruciating moment when he steps back, with some kind of chisel cocked in his hand, shakes his head more in pity than in sympathy, and says, "Hmmm."

Visions of the blood, the pain, the agoniesy swirl through my head.

Well, that's the way the week began. Worse was to come. I've been suffering from a bad shoulder for years. I know. Everybody has one. Or a bad back or a bad leg. One week, the doctor says it's an inflammation. On the next visit, he says it's an old injury aggravated by tension. Next trip, it's bursitis. Next, after X-rays, it's a calcium deposit.

If I had half the calcium in my tooth that I have in my shoulder, I could be one of those grinning-eye models in the toothpaste ads.

Anyway, I finally decided to do something about it. Or my wife did. She didn't mind my groaning in my sleep. It was the cursing, every time I rolled onto that side, that upset her. She was bothered about my soul.

I wasn't. But when it got to the point where I couldn't pour a bottle of beer any more, without weeping, I realized that man cannot exist on pain pills alone.

I've mentioned what a yellow streak I have about needles. The doc said, as he took out this elephant-syringe, loaded with cortisone, "You'll feel a slight pin-prick as the needle enters." The cold sweat stopped flowing. Nothing to it.

Then he started to lean on the needle. Have you ever had a pin-prick with a crow-bar?

The only comparable experience I've had was one time in a veterans' hospital. I was wheeled into this room for "tests." Flat on my back. Two nurses held a hand each, one on each side of the bed. Decent of them, I thought. Comforters. As I was smiling at them, in turn the doc rammed this huge hypodermic in my chest and shoved down. Then he started to suck (marrow out of my breast-bone, as it turned out). In the next three seconds, those nurses wound up on opposite sides of the bed, without touching the floor. I was held later that I had been a volunteer for a research project.

Well, I won't bore you with a lot more sick detail. Suffice it to say that my wife and daughter went to the eye doctor. Kim, who wants glasses like she wants a hair lip, got them. My wife was sore as hell because she paid 10 dollars for the examination, and didn't get any glasses.

Just to sheer us up, we phoned Hugh on Sunday. We know he was starting to write his final university exams on the Monday. Wanted to wish him luck. A croaking wreck who sounded more like Edgar Allen Poe's raven than our jolly boy, informed us that he'd been sick as a dog with the 'flu for three weeks.

24 First-Aiders Graduate

DAYSLAND—On April 30, 1966, twenty four of the twenty five First Aid Class took their Examinations for the St. John's Ambulance First Aid Awards. The twenty fifth member of the class was unable to be present, as he was unavoidably called out of town. He will have an opportunity to take the Examinations on his return. All of the candidates were successful in passing the examinations and offer them our sincere congratulations.

This First Aid course was put on at the request of the Fire Department of Daysland, as they have accepted the responsibility of drivers for our Ambulance, and wish to have them trained for their new responsibilities. The Course was sponsored by the Emergency Measures Organization of Alberta and Mr. Brian Lee, of Sedgewick, Alta., Unit Coordinator for the Municipal District of Flagstaff, made the necessary arrangements with E.M.O. and attended the sessions. During the course Mr. Henderson, of the Emergency Measures Organization, gave two evenings of lectures and showed movies pertaining to nuclear explosions and how we should prepare ourselves for survival in such an event. An excellent movie on the Alaskan Earthquake was also shown, demonstrating very graphically what can happen in a natural disaster and how the citizens can help in the recovery operations. The class was also interested in the E.M.O presentations and less many questions to ask, all of which Mr. Henderson answered very clearly. The impression was not with the group, that we have now become the situation may be preparation and planning can and WILL lessen the danger to life and aid in a speedy return to normal conditions.

On the Tuesday before the Examinations, a Review was held and Corporal Munroe and one of his conferences of the Police Department of Camrose, brought four young people to Daysland, simulating them as casualties for the interest of the class. The test was well done and this "victims" good actors!

Channel 3 T.V. Station of Edmonton, was present also to take pictures of the "victims" and the response of the class to this "Emergency". The classes and Examinations were held in the basement of the Church of Our Lady of the Fruites, with the kind permission of Father F. Elkin, Parish Priest.

Graduation At Merna

MERNA—The platform in the Merna School gymnasium was beautifully decorated to resemble a rock flower garden and lawn for the Merna Junior High School graduation on Tuesday evening, May 3

The program began with the singing of "O Canada". To the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" played by Joyce Anderson, the graduates, Glenn Simpson, Patsy Anderson, Gloria Rombough, Douglas Costall, Melvin Lonty, and Delmar Taylor took their places in lawn chairs on the platform. After Harry Anderson offered the invocation, Mrs. Alida Anderson gave the principal's address. During his course of the program, thank you speeches were made as follows: to the parents by Gwen Simpson; to the teachers by Delmar Taylor; to the class history by Douglas Costall. Arlene Rick's rendition of 'Rustic Dance' on the piano was much enjoyed. Melvin Lonty gave the class history. Variety was brought to the program by a humorous monologue 'Home from School' by Dale Lonty. Following a song 'Dream of School Days' beautifully sung by Grades VII and VIII girls with duet parts by Alaire Ball and Joyce Anderson, Darcy Rombough delved into the high dark famine and revealed some startling prospects for the graduates as he presented the Class Prophesy. Patsy Anderson was Class Valedictorian.

We were pleased to have Mr. Merle Steeves, former teacher at the Merna School as guest speaker. He chose for his thought-provoking topic 'Giving and Receiving'.

M. C. Gloria Rombough thanked all who helped to make the graduation so enjoyable — Mrs. Edythe Echstrand, Mrs. Cathy Cameron, Mrs. Maizie Munroe, Mrs. Ruth Leslie, and Mrs. Marilly Anderson who assisted the Grades VII and VIII girls in serving lunch, and she also thanked the Grades VII and VIII students for decorating the platform so nicely.

After grace was said by Harry Anderson a very tasty lunch was served.

Dry Spring Weather Results In Fires

Numerous fires of varying size have broken out recently, no doubt caused by the extremely dry spring weather and the lack of precautions taken by the people. Grass and undergrowth is dryer this spring than usual making or an ideal situation for dangerous flash fires. Another dangerous and untidy human habit is the dumping of refuse along roadsides. These unsightly piles of refuse once ignited can smoulder for hours before spreading in such a way to become a dangerous fire. Citizens might well take warning of the existing situation and take all precautions to prevent what could be a serious and damaging fire.

Last week the Flagstaff fire truck answered a call to the Hiscott Lewis farm where a small grass fire had broken out near a shelterbelt on the road allowance. Fortunately the fire was gotten under control without damage to property. The next day the Sedgewick Fire Department answered a call to the Oswald Olson property where a grass fire had gotten out of control, and before extinguished had burned a small trailer and scorched the yard.

On Friday last the Killam Fire Brigade was called upon to control a fire at the Nolanco Grounds. Fortunately the new hall and the fire was controlled without spreading. Readers will recall that a similar situation a short time ago got out of control burning across the cemetery and some acres of an adjoining farm.

It is wise to check all details before starting a fire which may not be easily to be controlled. Once a fire is out of control the damage can amount to hundreds of dollars in a short time.

the district to build the first Memorial Arena in 1949-49 the Legion got behind the drive and raised some five thousand dollars for the project. Following the fire loss of the Arena in 1956 the Legion again came to the aid of the Board of Trade and contributed over eight thousand to the present Memorial Arena. For some years all Little League Ball in Killam has been entirely sponsored by the Legion, including the provision of all equipment and uniforms as well as adult coaches and managers. Partial sponsorship has also been given to the active minor hockey league sponsored under the auspices of the Sports Committee each winter. A Legion family picnic and barbeque is held each summer with the CGIT girls who assist in the polio drives as guests. The most recent venture of the Branch is the sponsorship of the newly formed Killam Junior Band. Using the new hall facilities for weekly practices, the Band is expected to appear before the public later this year.

Centennial Report

Report No. 4
(By John W. Fisher)

The sound of a locomotive whistle in all its varsatuer in Canada provokes waves of nostalgia in many Canadians, especially those of us who grew up in the steam generation.

A train's whistle has been a background accompaniment to life in small towns and cities throughout most of our nation's history. It played a tune for the frontier marvins west, our growth and development and the hustle of a busy Canada at work.

In many Canadian communities, large and small, the railway whistle was an announcement — of news from the east or the west, of the arrival of needed supplies of friendly visitors or new citizens or the departure of others on their way to greater adventures and new careers.

During Centennial Year 1867 a hand from a diesel locomotive pulling into town with 15 special exhibition cars will herald the arrival of something big, unusual and exciting as more than 80 centres in Canada. This will be the Confederation Train.

During 1967 the Confederation Train will move from west to east, starting at Victoria. Those who view the exhibits inside the train will face situations confronted by the early explorers and settlers of Canada. As they pass from car to car they will experience comfortable sensations of steerage passage to this new country, pause for reflection in the Chamber of Confederation and pass through periods of the last 100 years including the boom-and-bust twenties and the barren thirties, and the two world wars. Children will derive special benefits from the lively presentation of history.

For more than 700 communities not visited by the train a blast from the air horn of a tractor trailer truck will announce the arrival of a similar exhibit in a huge Centennial Caravan. There will be eight Caravans travelling across Canada each with eight 73-foot tractor trailers made in Calgary — the largest tractor trailers ever to travel on North American roads — containing exhibits similar to those of the train. A caravan will be arranged on a community size in a specific quadrangle formation and its exhibit, bold design will give the impression of a miniature fair. Travelling from province to province the train or vans will be within the reach of the vast majority of Canadians. Many communities will stage local events in connection with the Caravan's visit.

Be sure to watch for dates of the visit of the Confederation Train or Caravan in your area. Your newspaper and Centennial organization will know the location and time.

FAMILY RESEMBLANCE? Anyone looking for a resemblance between the early career of Nancy Sinatra and her famous father, Frank, certainly won't find it in physical appearance. When Frank Sinatra launched his singing and acting career he had a physique with short arms much shaped as a straight line. Happily, Nancy proves that it's not a family characteristic.

Coat of Arms Stamp

A Coat of Arms stamp, 16th and last release in the 1964 commemorative floral emblem series inaugurated in 1964 to honour the provinces and territories, will be released on the 30th June 1966, the eve of Canada's 99th birthday. Postmaster General Jean-Pierre Coté announced today.

The stamp, a logical conclusion in the floral emblem series, is issued by the Canada Post Office as a symbolic tribute to the Canadian citizenship unity, Mr. Coté stated. It has as its design a bird representation of the Coat of Arms, to the right of which, in bright red, is the eleven-pointed Maple Leaf of the National Flag.

Canada's official Coat of Arms dates from a proclamation by His Majesty, King George V on the 21st November 1921. It shows the Royal Arms of England, Scotland and Ireland and those of France above three Maple Leaves which are similar to those incorporated in "Armorial Ensigns" granted Quebec and Ontario in 1868 by Her Majesty Queen Victoria. The Coat of Arms includes the British Lion holding the Union Jack and the Unicorn holding the French Fleur de Lis. Below the base appears the Canadian motto: "A Mari usque ad mare" or "From Sea to Sea".

In his announcement, the Postmaster General also indicated that the total issue of 34 million stamps will be printed by the Canadian Bank Note Company, Ottawa, whose staff created and engraved the design by the steel line intaglio process.

FARMER'S UNION CONCERNED OVER FATE OF SEVEN DAYS

A spokesman for the Farmers' Union of Alberta says the organization's members are concerned about the eventual fate of the CBC's public affairs program "This Hour Has Seven Days".

Paul Babey, President of the FUA says the program is widely recognized for its highly successful efforts to disclose factual information of interest to the Canadian public.

He says, "Our concern is that the program may be discontinued or changed so that it loses its present effectiveness."

"A program of this calibre, dealing as it does with thought provoking information, is in the best interests of the people of Canada."

"Our organization does not favor any attempt to discompose the program, or to emasculate it so that it has little more than entertainment value."

"The question uppermost in the minds of most Canadians is whether the present situation is simply the result of an internal CBC problem, or of outside pressure being put on the Corporation to suppress the information the public receives from this and similar programs," says Mr. Babey.

AMATEUR NIGHT

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Ralph Roy Graham, who passed away May 14th, 1953.

It's not the tears at the moment shed,
That speaks of hearts that are torn,
It's the lonely hearts in the after years
And his memory silently borne.
For somewhere back of the sunset,
Where loveliness never dies,
He lives in the land of glory
Beneath the blue and gold of the skies.
And we who have loved and lost him,
Whose passing has filled us with sadness and tears,
Will cherish his memory always
In brightest colors of passing years.
Always remembered and sadly missed by — His Loving Wife Violet, and son Lorne. 53-1-p

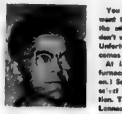
LESSER OF 400 EVILS



By Bert Odland

You can't kid me. I know you don't want to buy a Lennox furnace. But on the other hand, I also know that you don't want to buy any kind of a furnace. Unfortunately (for you) it is sometimes becomes necessary to buy one.

At least count there were about 400 furnace brands (give or take a few dozen.) So when the time comes for you to select a brand, remember this suggestion. Take the lesser of 400 evils; choose Lennox.

There are a lot of reasons why I make this recommendation. The chief reasons being that I sell Lennox.

Other reasons are that Lennox has proven to be the most dependable and least expensive to operate over the years . . . 63 to be exact. Little wonder that more families choose Lennox than any other make. Records show that Lennox requires less servicing than other brands.

Oh, gosh . . . I could go on for pages about quality features that are exclusive with our Lennox furnaces. But if you aren't in the market for a furnace you wouldn't remember them. And if you are in the market you owe it to yourself to trot down to our shop and get complete details . . . no invite comparison. Even though you don't want to buy a furnace, you'll feel real good about it after buying a dependable Lennox furnace from us. So will I.

FISH AS FOOD

Fish is one of the most delicious and important protein foods. Canada's Food Rules, our guide to meal planning, mentions fish as one of the main foods providing good quality protein necessary for building and maintaining sound bodies. Fish protein is easily digested and may be included in special diets for old or people, invalids and young children.

The amount of fat varies greatly with the different kinds of fish. Lean fish, poached or baked without added fat, is popular for low calorie meals. Like the protein, the fat is easily digested. Canned salmon fish are cod, haddock, sole, ocean perch, freshwater perch, pike, pickerel, smelt and all shellfish. Halibut and white fish are classed as average in fat, whereas those high in fat are Alaska black cod, eels, herring, mackerel, salmon, sardines, shad, lake trout, tuna and turbot.

Besides protein and fat, fish supplies some vitamins and minerals. Fatty fish has a little vitamin A and is rich in vitamin D. Those vitamins are fat soluble and so are stored in the fat of the fish. Lean fish does not contain vitamin A or D in the flesh. Fish, like meat, is a good source of niacin and provides minute amounts of riboflavin as well.

Fish contains iodine and is generally a good source of fluorine and phosphorus. Some calcium is added to our food when the softened bones of canned fish are used. Because the iron content of fish is low, iron must be supplied by other foods, such as leafy green vegetables.

Two Accidents Near Hardisty Claim One Life

AMISK—An accident involving three cars on Highway 13, just West of Amisk early on Sunday morning, resulted in the death of 19-year-old Linda Jeanette Lund, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Lund of Amisk.

Minor injuries were suffered by Danny Davies, 20, of Hughenden, driver of the car in which Miss Lund was a passenger.

Other cars involved were driven by Randy Johannessen of Hardisty and Mr Peacock of Amisk. One of the cars had stopped with motor trouble, and the other had stopped to render assistance. The Davis car approaching in a heavy fog, crashed into the Johannessen car, with considerable damage to both vehicles.

The injured were taken to Killam Hospital, where Linda was pronounced dead on arrival. Linda Jeanette Lund was a graduate of Hughe- on High School and of McTavish Business College in Edmonton. She leaves to mourn her loss, her parents, a brother Terry of Edmonton, a brother Eddie, and sisters Deanna and Wendy at home.

Funeral services for Miss Lund were held at the Amisk Community Hall on Tuesday afternoon with the Rev. G. Zwicker officiating.

In a farm accident, Ronnie Whitehead, Hardisty, was injured when the tractor he was driving overturned on his father's farm North of Hardisty.

The injured boy was found by his father, who applied artificial respiration and rushed him to the hospital Hospital.

It was some time before he regained consciousness, but at last report he is improving in hospital. Ronnie is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Whitehead.

A HOTTER WAR. U.S. Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara has predicted a sharp increase in American military activity in southeast Asia, with more troops committed to South Vietnam. Above, U.S. troops return fire near Bong Son. There are more than 255,000 Americans now fighting in Vietnam, and speculation is that there'll be 400,000 by the end of the year.

Mrs. Ilsley Feted On 80th Birthday

HARDISTY—A very happy event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas Ilsley on May 8th on the occasion of Mrs. Ilsley's 80th birthday. Her daughter Mrs. Don Fraser gave a tea in her honor. A number of friends and relatives attended to express their good wishes and help her celebrate.

Among the gifts was a handsomely decorated cake fittingly inscribed "Happy Birthday Mother", two large plants, chocolates, pastries and even a dainty package of soup in her favorite brand.

Mrs. Ilsley is still in fair health, active about the house, and interested in the welfare of all. She graciously welcomes all who call on her. Many remember happy times at her home as children.

Hazelwood Good Deed Club Summarizes Year's Activities

THE SUPERHUMAN. The above conception could make supermen of us all in the near future. Scientists are working on a set of "mechanical muscles" which when fitted onto a small object will exert 10 to 1,200 pounds while exerting only 40 pounds of force. The metal muscles, shown in a cutaway, could be attached to a man's foot, forearm and wrist, enabling him to lift great weights.

HARDISTY—The Annual Meeting of the Hazelwood Good Deed Club was held May 9th at the home of Mrs. Violet Metz with president Mrs. Olive Love in chair. Election of officers was held and the new slate for the ensuing year are as follows: President— Mrs. Josephine McClemens; Vice President— Mrs. Adelaide McClemens; Secretary Treasurer — Mrs. Violet Metz; Sewing Convenor — Mrs. Alice Fraser; Sick Committee — Mrs. Essie Draeger for North, Mrs. Geraldine Metz for South.

The Club, with a total of 15 members has enjoyed another successful year; Donations made during the year were to the following: Canrose and District Association for Retarded Children; Care and Gripple Children; Unitarian Relief; Cancer Fund; Salvation Army; Red Cross; Heart and Rheumatoid Arthritis; Wounded Stewart Home for Retarded Children — Edmonton; Flagstaff Lodge; Hardisty and Killam Hospitals.

In June, 1965 our Club operated the meal booth at the Hardisty Stampede and the entire profits of $200.00 were turned over to the fund for the Hardisty Medical Centre which, at the present date, is nearing completion.

In December, 1965, we held our annual Christmas Party for the club members and their families supplying treats for the children including the big event.

Our annual Club Dinner this year was held April 6th at Longhead instead of Camrose and a delicious chinese supper, served by Wally, was enjoyed by all.

Due to wedding bells, our annual Strawberry Tea and Bazaar, which previously has been held the Saturday before Father's Day, has been set for Saturday, June 11th, one week earlier for this year only.

We will look forward to seeing all the familiar faces once again; come and treat yourselves to our delicious shortcake and support a worthy cause.

School Centennial Project

KILLAM— The Killam Public School recently began a centennial project.

The plan is to write a history of the Killam area and incorporate it as a part of the school's yearbook in the centennial year.

A committee of three teachers Mrs. Pottage, Mrs. Robinson, and Mrs. Schweitzer have been appointed to gather information for this project.

To ensure that we get all available information, we solicit the cooperation of anyone who may have information to contribute. Materials in the form of written accounts and pictures are requested. Oldtimers who would be willing to be interviewed are requested to contact the committee. With contributions from all an authentic account can be compiled.

Kinsmen Working To Improve Lake

SEDGEWICK— Ever since the snow left early this spring the Sedgewick Kinsmen Club has been busy working at the lake, one mile north of Sedgewick, making improvements and getting the grounds ready for the warm weather.

Last summer it was found that the facilities couldn't handle the large number of people who wished to have picnics or camp at the lake, so seven new fire pits and other facilities have been added for the use of the public.

Work this spring started with the swimming pool which was drained and dredged and 300 yards of sand hauled in to cover the pool bottom and the bench 100 yards of gravel was put on the dam to strengthen it and improve its appearance. A cement curb was built around the top of the bench to stop washing by rain water and to gain more orderly parking.

Over 250 trees of various types have been planted, most of these by hand in individual holes.

Several new buildings are being added and all the existing ones have been repaired and painted and some 100 feet of new fence built.

Many hours have also gone into cleaning up the grounds and thinning out underbrush for the convenience of picnickers.

Still ahead for the Kinsmen is the seeding of several acres to grass and the annual swimming lessons which the club has sponsored for a number of years.

It was decided to have a welcoming party on June 8th in the parish hall for all newcomers to the parish and for anyone else who may wish to attend.

The CWL ladies are giving a Rosary to each child of the first communion class. The president, Mrs Tony Schweitzer is to attend a convention in Edmonton on June 3, 4 and 5, with Mrs Vern Niehaus as alternate delegate The attendance prize was won by Mrs E Meeur

3. Central High will have a staff well trained and well prepared for teaching the subject assigned. A small high school can never be staffed to the point where all subject fields are taught.

The following motion was made by Cecil Peacock, seconded by Gordon McPherson. "That a vote of confidence be given to the Board of Trustees of the Killam School Division No 22 on 22 proposed closing of the Alliance High School, and especially to the trustee, Mrs. Steadman in her untiring efforts in promoting sound principles in the cause of education." The motion passed by a substantial majority with only 2 votes in opposition.

The meeting adjourned at 10:00 p.m. on a motion by Bill Steadman.

Approval Given To Close Alliance School

This meeting was petitioned for and as per Section 71 (2) (d) of the School Act was held on April 18, 1966 at 8:30 p.m. in Alliance with approximately 200 people in attendance. The meeting was opened by the Chairman of the Killam School Division, Mr. Niehaus. He declared that since this was their meeting, a chairman would have to be elected from among those assembled. Three nominations for Chairman were received — that is Roy Rands, Colin McLennan and Jack Bateman. In the open vote, Jack Bateman was elected.

The purpose of the meeting was stated as being "To Discuss the Proposal of the Closing of the Alliance High School."

Those opposing the closing of the High School were given the floor. Their remarks indicated that the chief worry was the busing distances involved. Other points were raised. Why not bus the teachers to Alliance; Lets request help and expert advice from the Department on how to get teachers at Alliance; better roads needed; less chance for students for active sports participation in larger school.

The Board's reasoning for closing the High School was thoroughly covered by the Superintendent of Schools. Mr. Bruce and supported further by comments from trustees, Steadman, Niehaus and Grant. The hiring of well qualified teachers was a real problem, Mr. Bruce stated. Teachers today, in the main, look for employment where can subject only is assigned to them, not 3 and 4 as the case on hand. The courses taken by teachers today are highly specialized and teachers today will not consider taking a difficult assignment and teach more than one course. This therefore leaves us with teachers who perhaps use the Alliance School as a stepping stone to a better position, or ones that can't get a position

Great stress was placed on the fact that Alliance was exceeding fortunate in having a very highly qualified and capable staff of High School teachers this year. This definitely could not be expected to continue. Mrs. Steadman, in her remarks pointed out that closing the High School will strengthen the position of the rest of the grades in Alliance. The big worry of staffing the High School would be eliminated, she said. It was also pointed out that some children today travel 30 miles to High School and that another 5 miles extra to Sedgewick would not be too much of a hardship.

April Not Only Bad Month

The month of April has been burdened with the name of "tax month", a title which is not altogether fitting. True April is the traditional time for most Canadians to calculate the most obvious tax which they are to pay, the income tax. Just why April should be classed as the tax month of the year is a little hard to understand, for as far as we have been able to see the entire tax picture, every month is tax month. This is the only reasonable conclusion to come to when you analyze the totality of taxation in this country of ours. Income tax, to be sure, takes the largest single bite in the whole tax complex, but is only one of the numerous taxes the average Canadian has to pay in some way or another. When you take a good look at it you see what we mean.

A national magazine tells us that an average Canadian, a home owner, with two children and earning $6000 a year, pays about 27 percent of his income in visible taxes, with something like 7 percent of this in straight income tax. But some 6 percent goes for municipal property tax. The rest of the pie is increasingly bite is made up of general sales tax, retail sales tax, excise taxes, amusement taxes, customs duties, pension plan taxes and old age security taxes. What we are not told, and something perhaps nobody can figure out accurately is just how much we do pay in taxes of all kinds. There are so many hidden taxes today that any attempt to come up with a figure would be impossible. There are hidden taxes imposed on the manufacturer, the wholesaler, the jobber and the retailer, all of which is reflected into the price of goods the consumer purchases. Then of course there are the taxes nobody says much about, such as marriage tax, birth tax, death tax, water tax, sewer tax, dog tax car tax, hunting tax and dozens of others. Yes, every month is tax month, but perhaps April is a good month to contemplate the situation and bring it to mind when hearing of impending new taxes and when on the verge of saying, "let the government do it."

1966 Makes 90 !

With the 1966 grain crop being planted with haste, might be a good time to review a bit of the history of grain shipping from Western Canada. In this connection the Searle Grain Company has come up with some interesting facts dating back about ninety years.

It will be exactly 90 years ago this fall (October 21st, 1876 was the precise date) since the first shipment of Western Canadian wheat was made from Winnipeg to an eastern destination — in this case Toronto, to help provide seed for Ontario, where the spring wheat crop had failed.

We are told that this shipment consisted of 857 bushels of Red Fife Wheat contained in 412 sacks. Cost of sacks was 26c each, price to growers 80c per bushel and freight to Toronto, 35c per bushel.

This historic shipment is interesting in more ways than one. In the first place by no stretch of the imagination could the 12 pioneers who grew this early lot of commercial wheat, marketed in quantities ranging from 17 3-4 bushels to 204 bushels respectively, have envisioned the gigantic shipments of wheat that would some day to be made from Canadian shores. (The probable wheat exports for 1965 —66 are now conservatively estimated at 600 million bushels.)

In the second place there is an interesting comparison to be made between present day costs and prices and those which obtained in 1876. Although nothing is known about their quality, the cost of sacks, at 26c each, was little different from the present day cost.

Today's grading system was unknown in 1876, but assuming the early shipment of wheat to be the equivalent of about a present day No. 3 Northern and taking into consideration the fact that the wheat was raised in the Red River Valley, being marketed and shipped from Winnipeg, there is some basis for comparison.

Last year's total price for No. 3 Wheat delivered at Winnipeg, including the final payment, was $1.64 1 4. This must be compared with 53c received by the farmers concerned, back in 1876. Bearing in mind the very great change in the value and purchasing power of the dollar during the past 80 years, either the 1876 price must be considered a relatively good one or today's price a relatively poor one — whichever way one looks at it.

The remaining item, freight to Toronto, is also of interest. The 1876 freight rate of 35c per bushel compares with an estimated total freight rate today (rail to Fort William and lake shipment from there to Toronto) of approximately 18c per bushel. However, when the route followed by the 1876 shipment is known, the 35c figure becomes more meaningful. The wheat was shipped to Toronto by steamer from Winnipeg to Fisher's Landing, thence by rail to Duluth, by vessel from Duluth to Sarnia, and by rail from Sarnia to Toronto.

All in all, these early growers of wheat in Western Canada, who struggled so hard to raise a few hundred bushels to market, probably thought that they were fairly well rewarded and perhaps they were.

YES, LET'S PLAY BALL!

When a member of the House of Commons asked a question concerning the replacement of a softball diamond in Waterton Park, an Hon. (?) member piped up with "Let's play ball". A silly question that got no answer, and a sillier injection by a member not supposed to answer. It might be a good idea if all the members decided it is time to quit playing politics and really start playing ball with the public. There's too much of silliness and not enough of responsibility being displayed in the House of Commons. Some umpire should call the game on account of darkness.

ABOUT MOST ANYTHING

by A.C.B.

Mr. N. G. Sorensen, one of the original settlers in the Killam district, dropped into the office last Thursday morning. Mr. Sorensen now lives at White Rock, B.C. and is visiting friends and relatives in this area. He first came to the area in 1906 at the age of 34 and now at 94 he is going strong. He was taking me that he loves to drive and came from White Rock in two days, driving over 650 miles each day. This week he was leaving to drive to Saskatoon on the second leg of his trip.

This coming September my oldest boy starts school and the other morning in the mail we received a booklet which I presume was produced by the staff of the school. It sets out the many details of school life, what the beginner will need and what he will be taught the first year, etc. It also has a few little gems for the parents and one of these is that everything should have a name tag sewn to it. Well the midnight oil has been burning around our place and everything in the kitchen sink now has a name tacked on. In fact I'm afraid to stand still. At any rate the teachers are to be commended for their efforts.

Men are wonderfully adaptable. They say they can do anything they set their minds to. This might be an instance. A bachelor left in charge of an infant baby found himself with a problem — that of changing diapers. Frantically he telephoned a young father of his acquaintance and solved the problem for him. Man-to-man fashion. "First", said the latter, "place the diaper in the position of a baseball diamond with you at bat. Then fold the corners here over home plate. Place the baby on the pitcher's mound. Finally, pin first and third bases to home plate. Thats all."

GENIUSES

The human mind is a mystery. A study of men classed as geniuses showed the pockets in few of them were 'cracked' in some respects.

Napoleon was deadly afraid of cats. Peter the Great had a phobia against crossing bridges. Martin Luther once imagined that the devil appeared to him and he threw his ink bottle at the apparition. Samuel Johnson and Beethoven at times contemplated suicide.

Adam Smith, the great economist, once walked to church clad only in his nightshirt. Descartes, the philosopher, went bareheaded in winter and wore heavy leather gloves in summer.

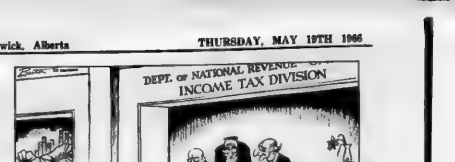
Many men of genius were shockingly loose in their morals. Quite often, too, they were exceedingly careless in handling money and paying their debts, thereby risking a term in jail.—Brooks Bulletin.

MOONLIGHTING

Readers of this paper will remember other articles of various kinds on the always controversial subject of moonlighting, a.k.a. "moonlighter" is one who holds 2 jobs at the same time.

An editorial in a March edition of the Christian Science Monitor points out the value of moonlighting. It states that certain employers are permitting the employees, under certain circumstances, to do a limited amount of moonlighting. The shortage of workers in certain spheres of business makes it necessary for some businesses to employ people who are occupied at another job full time. It speaks of small farmers having to work at another task in order to make enough money to buy their machinery and things of this nature.

There are literally millions of people moonlighting in North America today. The only real objection, says the Monitor, is when moonlighting prevents the hiring of qualified unemployed persons or when it interferes with a normal wholesome, family life. —Nanton News.



★ MACDUFF REPORT

Opening Round

OTTAWA—Walter Gordon has fired the opening round in the battle of ideas within the Liberal party.

When he broke long silence recently by publishing "A Choice for Canada", Mr. Gordon may have started an intra-party argument which will be decided at the party leadership convention yet unsalled.

That convention — when Lester Bowles Pearson bows out of Liberal leadership — will choose a man and a set of ideas to shape the future of the Party.

Whether Mr. Gordon has ambitions to be the man or not, he is definite about the ideas.

He wants the Liberal party to be left-of centre, dedicated to the preservation of Canada's national and economic identity even if this means further interference with free enterprise.

These are the ideas set out in his new book and his thoughts on other areas of policy go with them.

In foreign policy, for example, he says Canada should speak out even at the risk of American displeasure, about the way things are going in Vietnam.

He wants the Federal Government to press forward unwaveringly toward a national economic plan.

In a speech after the release of his book, Mr. Gordon was more explicit about the direction he wants his Party to go.

He saw three choices. The Liberals could try to be a party of the right but Mr. Gordon saw this as disastrous because the Conservatives would eventually seize the part of the political spectrum rightly theirs. Or the Liberals could "waffle" between right and left. Mr. Gordon saw equal disaster in this course. The only one approved was a forthright choice of the left.

This choice is no surprise to Mr. Gordon's opponents within the Liberal party. Saskatchewan's Liberal Premier Ross Thatcher, for example, has labelled the former Finance Minister as the "the worst Socialist in Canada". The same thing is said less openly by others. And a central criticism of "A Choice for Canada" has been that the nationalist policies advocated in the book would lead to Socialism by the back door.

At first glance, Mr. Gordon seems an odd figure to breed a revolution. He's a neat, trim accountant from Toronto with mild manners and a spidgetic speaking style.

But he has impressive credentials as an idea man within the Liberal party. He was the key man in developing the Liberal policies in 1960 and 1961 which sent the threat from the impressive beginnings of the New Democratic Party.

It was at this time that he

School Division Sets Budget Estimates

The regular and budget meeting of the Killam School Division was held in April with all members present and the Superintendent present.

The Sec.-Treas. reported that a meeting had been petitioned for, called and held in the Alliance School in April to discuss the board proposal of closing the Alliance High School on June 30th, 1966 and transporting the students to Camrose or High at Sedgewick starting Sept. 1, 1966. Coverage of the Board's reason for so doing were given by Supt. Bruce along with board members, and opposing arguments were heard from critics of the scheme. A motion was made that a vote of confidence be given the board on this proposal, and especially to the trustees of the area, Mrs. Standnes. The motion was passed by a substantial majority with only a couple of votes in the negative.

In view of the approval given, it was moved that the Alliance High School be closed June 30th and the students of its attendance area be bussed to Central High School effective Sept. 1st, 1966. Carried.

It was also reported that a petition had been received from the Heisler area that a meeting be called there to discuss the proposed closing of the Heisler High School and bussing the students to Daysland; to re-activate the Heisler Centralized Board; and also a petition for a meeting at Galahad to discuss the proposed closing of the Galahad High School. SUGAR AND SPICE

THIS FAMILY TAXES US ALL

All across Canada these days, municipal councils have been wrestling with the arch-villain of all time, a mysterious monster called The Budget.

Although he is made up from a combination of concrete things like sewers and schools and streets, The Budget himself is an abstract thing. He is like The Devil. You can't see him or hear him or even smell him. You can't understand him, but you know he is there: a blind, malignant creature that cannot be controlled.

You can fight him — and get a bloody nose. You can hammer at him, chisel at him, chop at him — and all you get are a broken hammer, a dull chisel and a bluenose.

The Budget is like an octopus. He grows bigger every year. His appetite increases, his tentacles become longer and stronger and more strangling as he grows. And when you try to come to grips with him, he exudes a cloud of black (or red) ink which obscures him from view.

Of what ingredients is The Budget composed? Really, he's a two-headed monster, a regular Siamese twin.

On the one hand, it is just a big bundle of sugar and spice: new schools; new industries; a new library or community centre; wider streets; better lighting; a modern disposal and snow plowing. Progress, culture, civilization, comfort. At first glance it appears that The Budget is the most desirable thing man has dreamed up since The Devil.

And on the other hand, he is soups and snails and puppy-dog tails. That's what little towns are made of. And big towns too.

And the reason for all this, of course, is that The Budget, this big, ugly, unmanageable brute who is impervious to human feeling, fell in love, by some chemical accident, while a mere hulking lump of a boy, with a girl called Milli Rate. Most of us know her as Mill.

She is just as unprepossessing as her husband. She is steely-eyed, ruthless, unscrupulous and absolutely without mercy, charm, pity, tears, or any of the qualities we normally associate with that lovely creation known as the female of the species. I have known Mill Rate since she was a girl, and I am here to state, without apology, that she is a pig.

It's difficult to believe that such a union could produce progeny. But it did. His name is Taxes.

Taxes' career has been about what you would expect from such parents. He was an unpleasant child from the beginning. Unwanted, unloved, rejected at every turn, whiny, demanding.

He hasn't changed much, except in size. Taxes is a nice big slob, over-fed, underworked, menacing if he doesn't get his allowance on time, sulky if some of it is held back.

But he has a lot of promises. Around election time, He's going to cut the lawn, and wash the car, and paint the house and smarten the old place up so wouldn't know it.

And somewhere along the line, something goes haywire. He cuts the trees, paints the lawn, and paints the house, and forgets, after one year, that his allowance is not big enough.

For some reason — and it certainly isn't his winning personality — Taxes has become the most talked-about man in town. Everybody develop dyspepsia, councillors convention, when they try to deal with this delinquent.

They can't quite handle him. He talks as glibly of government grants as other small citizens under the winter vowels program, and potential pot-holes in the roads, and cultural development and of the people on welfare, but he hasn't become conscious with open fights, and mayors with hearts of granite.

All I can say is that the municipal councillors in my bleeding heart strive to cope with Taxes, out of Mill Rate and The Budget.

Hardisty U.C.W. Hears Report On Leadership Training Course

HARDISTY — The May meeting of St. Paul's U.C.W., Hardisty, was held in the church basement, with 20 members and 2 visiting present. The President, Mrs. H. Hayes opened the meeting with an appropriate poem entitled "Mothers", after which Mrs. Prager conducted a devotional on the theme of "Prayer". Miss Susan Kroeker gave a very interesting report on her attendance at the Alberta College Leadership Training Course, which the U.C.W. had sponsored. The President reported that 310 lbs. of used clothing had been shipped to Korea, and the tin per pound will be forwarded to cover the shipping costs overseas. New blinds are to be ordered for the church, and the Presbyterial U.C.W. allocation of $160, will be forwarded this month. A new supply of the gift literature for newly-weds has also been ordered.

The program on ways in which the U.C.W. may raise it's eights beyond the confines of our own group and Church, was presented by Mrs. Holworthy.

Farmers' Union At Alberta Opposes Delay In National Health Plan

A spokesman for the Farmers' Union of Alberta says his organization is concerned over a recent report that pressures are developing to delay the implementation of the proposed National Health Plan.

"We cannot see how delaying the Plan will change their situation," said W. J. Harper, Director of Research and information for the F.U.A. "Whether or not the Plan begins on July 1, 1967, there will be the same number of hospital beds, and the same number of doctors, in Illinois on that date, to serve the same number of Canadians who will need them as now.

"What is needed is to get the Plan started so that all Health needs can be planned and met on a National basis, as quickly as practicable." says Mr. Harper.

Wild Oats Most Serious Annual Weed

Wild oats, probably the most serious annual weed on the prairies, can be controlled cheaply and economically with herbicides designed specially for this purpose.

According to Alberta's Supervisor of Weed Control, W Lahay, delayed seeding is the most effective cultural control method. For best results, the soil should be tilled in the spring to a depth of less than 4 inches at promote good germination of the wild oat seed. There are some areas of the province, says Mr. Lobay, where early spring tillage is not necessary to get the wild oats off to a good start.

Anyone using the delayed seeding method should not seed his crop until a maximum growth of wild oats has been achieved. This growth should then be killed prior to seeding operations. An early maturing barley crop is recommended because maximum wild oat growth does not occur in most locations until the first week in June in areas, however, where delayed seeding has occured by May 15th to 20th, wheat can be sown with satisfactory results. The important thing to remember, says Mr Lobay, is that a good crop stand must be established to compete with the wild oats.

Both a rodweeder and herrow can be used to destroy wild oat plants after the crop is two years old, newly these implements to best advantage, seeding should be done a little deeper than usual and cultivation should begin when the grain spread is 1-1/2 inch long. This is usually 4 to 5 days after the crop was seeded.

The main disadvantage of delayed seed is that an early maturing crop has to be sown in place of a higher yielding, late maturing variety. To overcome this problem, a herbicide such as 2,4-D or Bromoxynil can be used instead of delayed seeding. Generally speaking, results from research indicate that the use of these herbicides themselves have shown that the use of herbicides for wild oat control is an economical proposition, says Mr. Lobay.

Centennial Report

CENTENNIAL COMMISSIONER

A television series about the drama of life in New York City used to end this way: "There are eight million stories in the Naked City. This has been one of them."

Around Centennial Commission headquarters at Ottawa we are beginning to look at Canada's 1867 celebrations in the same way. There are many thousands of national, provincial and local projects under way across Canada to mark our 100th birthday and they all make stories. The big national projects alone are numbered in dozens — the Confederation Train and Caravans, a 4,000-mile canoe race, the Canada Festival, the Youth Travel Program; programs for the performing arts, visual arts, folk arts, athletics, tree planting, new buildings for arts centres, museums and so on

I am going to tell you in this column of one of the national projects about which I am quite excited. It is the Armed Forces Tatoo, the big big cross-Canada show which will be presented by the Department of National Defence

At the time of writing I am particularly excited about this event because I have fresh in my mind an advance look at the program. At Centennial Commission headquarters recently Brig. C. Arnold Peck and Captain Ian Fraser of the Department of National Defence centennial planning staff described the two-hour show — of which there will be 147 performances in 69 cities across the country — and provided storyboard illustrations and taped excerpts of the stirring music especially composed for the Centennial.

I can predict that Canadians will be given a thrilling surprise when they see the Armed Forces Tatoo, which will be one of the highlights of the 1967 celebrations. The advance presentation which we saw and heard at Ottawa showed that the Forces' project is being conducted in a highly professional manner.

There will be 40 colorful selections in 12 major scenes of the Tatoo with static bands, marching bands, pipes and drums, scenes from history as far back as 1812, a naval gun-hauling race over obstacles, a drummer boy's idea of what war was like in 1812, 150 sailors dancing a hornpipe, action scenes on the battlefield — even an actual World War II Spitfire in an enactment of a Battle of Britain "scramble"

The Armed Forces Centennial team has done research deep into history, through the years to the period when the early French and British regiments were stationed in Canada, and they have produced not only the music of the regiments, but also the servicemen's songs of the canteens and messes which also have been sung by the citizenry of yesterday and today

Research also has been done for the Tattoo in Europe by Captain Fraser for consideration of the best military tattoo productions and techniques at Edinburgh and on the continent Captain Fraser, it has been pointed out, has produced the Armed Forces show at the Seattle World's Fair which proved to be one of the highlights of that exhibition.

After seeing the very professional advance work done by the Defence Department's Centennial staff I do not hesitate to recommend that you watch for the date of the performance, whether it be an indoor one or an outdoor one, nearest to your area and be sure to attend

Over 10 million yeast cells are found on each ripe grape at the time of harvest.

CADET INSPECTION — 11TH ANNUAL 3:00 P.M. ON MAIN STREET — SEDGEWICK THUR. MAY 19

Memory Lane

(By Mrs. F. M. Cantion, Hardisty, Alberta)

PETRIC HOUSE-CLEANING

Spring house-leaning! What does that conjure up in the minds of hundreds of women—especially the older pioneer women of yesteryear?

To-day there is nothing to the job compared to a generation ago Now —with the dozens of house-cleaning aides—paint — rollers, detergents, ready—pasted wall paper and so on —what took days to do THEN can be accomplished in a matter of hours NOW

There was one spring cleaning time on the old home-stead that I re-call quite vividly. Our kitchen was on the south side of the house- between two windows—and sitting against the wall That kitchen was a good size—24 x 14—no, believe me, it did not reserve fresh paint and pa per every year

Of course. "I've Test or Wall board" or such was un-heard of in those years—the ceilings and walls were all done in plaster

We had previously painted the kitchen ceiling a cream colour—and papered the walls (Wall paper was cheaper than paint—and, as there was quite a big area of wall to cover—we did it the cheaper way).

The kitchen range—or cook stove —stood against the south wall between two windows With a large family to cook for as well as baking of the weekly white wash— there was always a goodly amount of steam rising above the stove

As I have mentioned before—the winters THEN were much colder than we usually have NOW. Also, then the houses were not insulated- nor was there even heat day and night—such as we enjoy now. After we had retired in the winter the rooms quickly cooled off. As a matter of fact—many mornings the frost glistened and sparkled on the ceiling—the water in the tea-kettle sitting on the stove was frozen—and was the drinking water in the pails on the table!

Therefore, with steam continually rising above the stove all day— and the frost taking over each night—it is no wonder that the plaster above the kitchen stove eventually cracked—then bu i g e d— threatening to crash down onto the stove—possibly right into the food which was cooking there—at any time

So, as something had to be done about it mum—and with precious little cash with which to do it—we decided to knock all the loose, bulging plaster down and paste a couple of opened flour sacks over the bare laths—then paint over the whole ceiling

Can you picture that horrible mess when that plaster crashed down covering everything that we had failed to cover, plaster-dust? We choked and coughed and spluttered and blinked our eyes- thankful we didn't have to knock the whole ceiling down That one patch was enough

We finally had the flour sacks pasted over the laths—but had to let them dry thoroughly before painting over them. So we put a big fire in the stove to hurry things along. (This didn't make it very comfortable either, working in such heat, and so high up, too)

By the time we had the balance of the ceiling painted, that spot was ready for the first coat. When the whole job was finished—it didn't look too bad—far from a professional job, that is sure—but a decided improvement to the cracking, bulging plaster—and, I might add— much safer, too.

EFFECTS OF THE CRUCIFIXION

"Christ died for our sins" 1 Cor. 15 3 We have heard this continually until we take it for granted. To most people it has simply a semi mental effect — "poor fellow, He was so good" — so they weep on Good Friday To others it has a personal meaning and appreciation. What follows affects those that Christ claims have, anyway, on us and all mankind" Does this question not trouble you at times"

Some very definite effects of the Crucifixion are:

1. It turned the tide in man's history, Sin like a flood poured through the human race and left untold havoc No man or I B M. can compute the untold cost of devastation in terms of sickness, sorrow, broken hearts, broken homes, shattered lives, and countless countless other curses and then damnation Sin like a flood was bent in its mad race by destroying and it seemed nothing could stay its flood, but when it got to Calvary something rather Something, stayed it's force Thank God, and the tide was turned. Wherefore as by one man (Adam) sin entered into the world and death by sin and so death passed upon all men for that all have sinned", but "by the righteousness of one (Christ) the free gift came upon all men unto justification." "For by one man's (Adam) disobedience many were made sinners, so by the obedience of one (Christ) shall many be made righteous" (Romans 5.) Yes, the tide was turned. Sin need no longer go unchecked. The Crucifixion does have a definite effect on the human race

2. It made null and void every other basis for right.ousness. At one time righteousness was by the law with its ordinances and ceremonies. Heathens have their own and lots of people and churches establish their own. But there is only one basis now "Christ died for our sins." "But the man after the law! offered one sacrifice for sins forever sat down on the right hand of God." (Heb 10 12) The hymn writer declares "Nothing in my hand I bring. Simply to the Cross I cling"

3. And lastly it furnishes complete victory over sin here and now. I do not advocate immunity to temptation and an impossibility to sinning but I do advocate a glorious possibility of a cleansed heart not wavering to sin and by grace not practicing sin "Knowing this, that our old man is crucified with Him (Christ) that the body of sin might be destroyed that henceforth we should not serve sin" (Rom 6)

So then, the Crucifixion does have some very definite effects. You are related to this blessed event believe it or not. "Christ died for our sins" All history is effected.

However, the effect of Christ's death in affording victory from sin here and now is your life can be personally yours only as you trust Him and appropriate His finished work which "He still lives" to make real. This, my friend, is your ONLY hope —Rev. Roy D. Kimbel, Church of the Nazarene, Lougheed, Alta

Baptist Church

Rev. Raymond Cram, of High River, was our guest speaker at the Sunday morning and evening services.

Friday night was known as "Problem Night" at the Baptist Church when the young people presented problems and these were dealt with in the form of a debate.

We are looking forward to two services with missionaries this week. On Thursday evening Rev. Ekmalil Gaddoumi, of Brazil, will be speaking here, and next Sunday morning Rev Wilbert Cheshire, of the Philippines, will be ministering in the Killam Baptist Church On Sunday evening a layman will be in charge and will take us on a pictorial tour, by a 36-minute filmstrip-tape narration, of the Back to the Bible Broadcast with Thomas Epp.

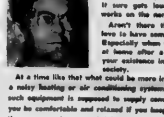
STEREOPHONIC SILENCE

By Bert Odland



The world of sound is wonderful. Sometimes. But at other times it is definitely a drag. Horns, planes, cars and trains . . . TV, radio, records and kids. It sure gets loud sometimes. Kind of works on the nerves.

Aren't there times when you would love to have some stereophonic silence? Especially when you are trying to relax at home after a hard day fighting for your existence in our complex, civilized society.

At a time like that what could be more ironic and annoying than a noisy heating or air conditioning system? A very livable because such equipment is supposed to supply comfort . . . and how can you be comfortable and relaxed if you keep hearing rumbles, rattles, groans, wheezes and ticks from a furnace or air conditioner?

Now is when I just casually happen to mention that our Lennox heating and air conditioning systems are the quietest made. It figures, too, because with all the other quality put into them it's only natural that they should run quietly.

I run quietly, too. If you like, I'll quietly run over to your home or place of business and survey your heating and cooling needs. And you won't owe me a thing because it was darn nice of you to read this column.

Council Votes No On County

The regular May meeting of the Council of M.D. Flagstaff was held in the board room with all councillors present Minutes and the financial statement were read and approved, followed by a discussion on the erection of motor grader sheds and residences for the grader operators.

Adjourning and meeting as the Flagstaff Farm Purchase Advisory Board, the committee dealt with the application of Donald Zimmer of Daysland to purchase N.E. 29-43-14 containing 161 acres. The application was accepted

Re-convening as the Council, the members met with B Rett, gravel foreman and checked out a complaint from Mrs. Gollan concerning telephone poles piled on the roadway north of Sedgewick and north of Merna store. Mr. Rett informed that these had now been removed. He also recommended some changes in the gravel crushing operations and the levelling operations at the Ball pit.

Mr. Thomas Cleuston of the School Division interviewed council regarding the formation of a County, and wished to know if the Council was going to hold a plebiscite on the matter and if so did the residents of town have a vote. He was informed that under the Act only proprietory electors of the M.D. would have a vote. Mr. Cleuston also advised that plans & specifications at Alliance, Galahad and Heisler had indicated they were willing to have their children bussed to Sedgewick and Daysland. Mr. Cleuston said he, on the meeting for the trustees of the schools.

In the matter of motor grader sheds and operator home sites, it was moved and carried that five grader sheds and 2 or 3 dwellings be erected as soon as possible. The bid of Parkland Lumber to erect 36 x 48 foot arch rib motor grader sheds for $2200 each was accepted. The matter of cancellation of part of the old highway at N.W. and S.W. 10-44-13 was again discussed and tabled for further investigation on the reasons for the District Engineer not recommending cancellation.

Permission was granted for Atlantic Richfield to lower an existing 3-inch low pressure gas line across a road allowance, provided the line was buried 6 feet below the level of the land.

After an inspection by Mr. Likness of all buried phone cable lines it was estimated that repairs to damaged culverts, etc., would be about $2000. The construction company will begin repairs May 30th draw on the M. D. culvert supply and pay for any used. An AGT representative was at the meeting to discuss the 1966 program for buried cable

The minutes of the public meeting held on May 5th were read, with a lengthy discussion following on the County System of Government.

It was moved by Coun. Andrew Swenson that the M.D. of Flagstaff No. 62 remain as a Municipal District and School Division. This motion was carried.

It was then moved by Coun Purdon that a plebiscite be held on the County System of Government. This motion was defeated.

Foreman T. C. Graham informed council that the 1966 road program had commenced and that to date the equipment seemed to be working satisfactorily. An hourly rate of pay for equipment was then agreed on.

An application from the Provincial Planning Director to subdivide the N.E. 13-43-17 into two parcels, being the north and south halves,

Wheat Seeding Almost Completed Locally

Farmers in the Flagstaff area have almost completed their wheat seeding. There are various opinions among farmers as to when is the best time to seed wheat with some preferring to seed early in May while others wait until the second or third week to start. This means some are finished when others are just beginning, but it is now agreed that a very high percentage of the wheat has been planted and the first big rush of the corp season is over.

The above picture shows a local farmer just after he started seeding and is still working along the edge of a new field.

It has been a dry spring with only a few light showers to date and very little warm weather. Adding to the dryness has been the steady wind which has blown almost constantly the last two months. Soil soil moisture was very excellent and this is what is being relied upon to give the present crop a good start, but rain will be needed before long.

Two Master Cadet Awards Presented

SEDGEWICK—At the 44th annual inspection of the Sedgewick School Cadet Corps held on Thursday afternoon, Master Cadet Awards were received by WO2 Scott Truss and SGT. Douglas Bailey, members of the Sedgewick Corps.

Master Cadet is the highest award a cadet can win and then only after passing ridged written and oral tests covering every phase of cadet training. This is the second year in a row that members of the corps have received this award and this is truely an honor when it is considered that only 12 are given out in all of Alberta.

First on the program was the inspection of the Corps by Capt. H. Matthews of Edmonton and local civic and Legion dignetaries. This was followed by the March Past. This was in Review Order, and General Salute.

Presentation of the following awards was made. Most efficient Cadet of the year (not an N.C.O.) Cadet David Chapman Neatest on parade (not an N.C.O.), Cadet Rickey Truss and Kadette Margaret Robertson.

A special Rifle Drill Team made up of members of the Corps put on a precision Rifle Drill. Immediately following this demonstration there was a pre-arranged explosion behind the Hotel and the Cadet Disaster and First Aid teams went into action to rescue and care for the injured. This excercise involved the use of field telephones, radios, stretchers, first aid, and the various other phases of cadet training.

With the inspection over the Cadet year is nearing its end with only the Field Day left. This is a day of Army Manoeuvers which will be held several miles north of Lougheed this coming Sunday.

A number of the Cadets will be attending special six week courses at Camp Vernon in B.C. during the summer holidays.

BASEBALL GAME SUNDAY AFTERNOON

At 2:00 p.m. this coming Sunday afternoon, May 29th, the first senior baseball game of the season will be played on the Sedgewick Diamond. The Sedgewick Oilers played two games at Lougheed on Monday winning the first and losing the second in extra innings. From the look of the various teams the fans can expect a good brand of baseball this summer.

Closing Heisler School Discussed

Some 135 people were present at a school meeting held at Heisler on April 27th, called under provisions of Section 71(2) (d) of the School Act.

The meeting was opened by the chairman of the Killam School Division, and then taken over by Mr. Delmond Krentsch who was elected as chairman from the floor. He read the petition signed by 34 electors as follows: "We, the undersigned, the ratepayers of the Killam School Division wish to keep our High School Students at Heisler. We ask our representative of the Killam School Division, Mr. Leonard Nisbaus, to call a meeting of the ratepayers of the Heisler School District to discuss this matter before the plebiscite is taken".

Mr. Jon Badry presented a brief noting in the main the following points as reasons for keeping the High School open at Heisler:

Costs would outweigh the benefits; percentage of students failing now is higher than when we had an even smaller high school: school day, with mechanically travelling much too long; discipline falls as schools get larger — presently poor in Heisler and much poorer in Daysland; University of Alberta short of buildings so why not let the University build more first; cost of additions required at Daysland too high for the expected short life of the project Mr. Badry wished to know why a meeting was not called by Mr. Niehaus before the meeting last February to close the High School and bus the students to Daysland

The Board's reasoning in proposing the closing of the High School at Heisler and bussing students into Daysland and what it hopes to result, was covered by the Superintendent. He stated: Present curriculum changes and those expected whereby all high school students today can be guaranteed a diploma program as well as the full 5-year senior matriculation program if the proper facilities are provided; full study of the Downie Report on High Schools of Alberta, plus report of the survey team were factors that guided the board in its decision to close the smaller high schools and bus students ahead. The board is hoping to develop a broad program at 3 centres in the division so that every student can go to high school and at the end of 3 years receive a diploma. With population becoming more urbanized, less and less rural, children will be going out in a world where competition is keen. The board's decision to centralize further was made purely on educational grounds and motivated by what is best.

Achievements expected are: A complete 3 year senior matric program to any capable student, offer complete 3 year diploma program of easier courses designed for less able students, assemble a good staff of qualified, specialist teachers each teaching one subject only

Someone questioned the possibility of centralizing at Forestburg. The board had studied this, but thought they would set their sights for a school that would be more specialized, that is, one teacher per sub-

PICTURES NOT LOST

The mailman and the weatherman have one thing in common. They both get blamed when things don't go right, as was the case last week when the engravings of pictures for the paper didn't arrive. It wasn't Phil's warm weather. The Engraver put them in the wrong envelope and they ended up at the Vulcan Advocate where Editor, Mr. Bob Munro, remailed them to us. The pictures on this page were intended for last week, but we hope you will still enjoy them.

Hereford Tour Planned July 9

SEDGEWICK—The regular supper meeting of the Sedgewick Board of Trade was held on May 17th, with 20 members present and Chairman Christopherson in the chair.

Business arising out of the minutes led to discussion on the Film Council. Other correspondence was filed with the secretary requested to seek further information on the matters

A committee was set up to plan for the Hereford Tour which will be conducted in the area on July 9th. Starting with a coffee break in the morning, the tour will conclude with a barbecue in the evening. It was stated by some of the Hereford Breeders present that some 500 people are expected to attend the day. Several tentative plans were made for the annual ladies and newcomers night of the Board, in that a speaker other than wrestling was sought for the occasion. Plans are underway to try and get the film.

A letter is to be written to the Management of the Edmonton Oil Kings, congratulating them on winning the Memorial Cup; the first team to win while playing in the East since 1948.

The annual clean-up campaign was discussed at some length, and it was suggested that a letter be sent to the Town Council urging it to "Crack-down" on some of the unsightly buildings and lots in town.

Revolution In Parliament!

We've heard so much of Ottawa recently that even the name of our Capital City has an odor. But there is something brewing on the Hill that is getting little publicity. There's a revolution on. The crisis of leadership is a subject being discussed in all federal parties. It is an impending fight between the young and the old, with the new generation of M.P.'s saying there is nothing wrong with Parliament that can't be straightened out with the minds of the young that patience is running out. They believe that the men who dominate Parliament today represent a minority generation, and that parliamentary progress is being shackled by disputes and enmities dating some 30 years. These young parliamentarians are not concerned with who insulted who back in 1937 or 1962. They want Parliament to digest the new contemporary ideas and convert them into legislation. They could be on the right track too.

Deflate Inflation!

Along with most other Canadians, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce has for some time been concerned with the possibility of serious inflation caused by today's rapidly expanding economy. Inflation, as revealed in rising costs and prices particularly in the area of consumer goods, hits everybody hard. Families are forced to spend more to maintain a living standard or cut back — business is forced to pay more for the supplies it needs, or cut back production. Increased business costs result in higher prices, undercutting our competitive position. Cut-backs in production create unemployment. Inflation is a vicious spiral which must be constantly watched.

It is, therefore, encouraging that the recent Federal budget has recognized the danger signs and has taken measures designed to adjust the economy so that our present good times will continue to benefit Canada rather than work against us.

"The budget recognizes that the economy's thermostat has been set too high, and appropriately and realistically calls for some measures of restraint to bring about a better balance of supply and demand." It will be interesting to see if the measures taken produce the desired effect.

The War On Poverty!

There is much ado these days on the war on poverty. Much ado that is in the way of talk. Yet there is very little actual progress being made in getting at the situation with anything concrete in the way of alevation. As the old saying goes, the road to hell is paved with good intentions, but it takes action to build the route. To do away with poverty money will have to be spent; to spend money a source of income has to be found. Business has found this out, but governments still seem to be searching in the wrong places. One useful way to find available money is to spend it properly and without waste. Money is to be spent but not squandered. Those who are engaged in the publicity racket not only spend, they squander. We have enough propoganda coming to our desk every week, on which enough dollars are spent to do away with much of our poverty. That most of it ends up in the waste basket seems to be of little concern to the promoters. They heed not the lessons they distribute to the public. Government officials offer guide lines to management, labor and the public, setting out dozens of guide lines for foreign subsidiaries and Canadian business men alike. Some such have reached our desk, and if we thought it would do any good we would like to reply with about a dozen or so of our own. The first one would be "spend the taxpayers' money as carefully as you would your own". We concluded that if this were done we would have no need to submit the other eleven, so why bore them with them.

A Timely Warning?

By his own admission the man who killed himself with a homemade bomb in the House of Commons, intended to blow up as many members as possible with the bomb. While we could never condone such an act, we do wonder if it could take something like this to convince the members of parliament that we have a great number of economic and social problems demanding their attention in a serious and mature manner. The perpetrator of this heinous act was not alone in his thinking that parliament has allowed itself to degenarate into a most ridiculous state. He gave his life, albeit unwillingly, for an ideal, juvenile as it was.

There was little to show at the Easter adjournment of the implementation of the program set out in the Throne Speech, and at the present time there is little indication that the decks are being cleared for dealing with the important pieces of legislation of priority. This 27th Parliament must have something on the record more important than the Gerda Munsinger and the Victor Spencer affairs, or the latest digression of This Hour Has Seven Days. Nor does it improve the image of parliament when the important committee, Public Accounts, can only rally 13 of 24 members for a meeting. These members are the watchdogs of the public purse and they are not doing their job. Parliament is in a vacuum of paralysis, squabbling over quarrels of another era. A situation that cannot be tolerated much longer. The public feels this way, and when the members themselves wake up to the same realization we may get something constructive done. It had better be pretty soon.

by A.C.B.

It was recently announced that the R.C.M.P. were going to abandon their horses except for a few very special cases. Now this is fine since I feel sure the police know what their requirements are, but what about the many citizens who have always referred to the R.C.M.P. as the "Mounties"? What do we call them now? They have probably at times been called many things that aren't printable, as is everyone who is in charge of discipline, but chances are the public will go on referring to them as "Mounties" even if their only mount happens to be a car.

Lougheed held their Sports Day on May 23rd. This is always the first of the summer and usually the first go for the ball teams. The wind was there with us as it has been all spring and kept the dust moving. I wish I could have collected a dollar for every time a bathtub was used when the day was over.

Spring came early this year but it took a long time to really get here. Just this last weekend the trees were finally leafing out and taking on that bright, fresh green color that they have in only this time of year. Just a few days before you could see through almost any group of trees and then suddenly they were hiding everything from us. So much for nature in doing a fine job.

The Letter Box

Mr. Editor:

Recently an unfortunate incident befell me which in itself had little significance but because these things have been continuously occurring over the years I think it has brought to light a situation that should have been corrected years ago. I am a rural student and to the time I have been riding on buses I have received what I think would be considered a "raw deal" by many. So far the time I have spent on buses amounts to several thousand hours of continuous riding. I am not saying I am the only one who has a right to complain, I know of a large number of others who get the same deal I do and of these quite a number even worse. By a "raw deal" I mean ones who get on a school bus at seven-thirty in the morning or even earlier. In all this amounts to a three hour bus ride or more every single school day. I have heard that tucked away in some dark corner of obscurity there is apparently a law which says something to the idea that no student is to ride on a bus longer than one hour each way or according to my calculations this equals two hours a day. As you can tell this law seems to be mislaid somewhere when the bus routes were drawn up. Since I have first started school it has been this way and will continue until someone decides to do something about it. I am aware that sometimes it is impossible to follow all laws completely but when the people responsible for this school system don't and I repeat don't even make hardly an attempt to rectify this situation and have a "I couldn't care less" attitude I think it is about time something was done. I don't see why we must suffer just because someone says it is to be the thing. If an honest attempt was made and after all possible angles have been considered it was decided that a three hour bus ride a day was the best that could be done then I wouldn't be writing this. In the past we have taken our problems to the persons responsible and have actually been laughed away by them. This is only one of the more serious problems that should be rectified. Unfortunately, it is only my word against that of the people who operate this system, but then again it is I who have been riding the buses for all these years. Incidentally you, the responsible citizens, should try riding a school bus for three hours a day. I'm sure you won't find it too enjoyable, especially when it is not absolutely necessary.

Cloak & Dagger Days

OTTAWA—The sparks fly frequently on the Canadian political scene as the two old warriors, Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker cross swords and exert every effort to lop off the head of the other. The green-carpeted House of Common chamber echoed to the sounds of battle again early this month as the two antagonists clashed amid the cheers and shouts and boos and jibes of their respective supporters. This time the battle was over evidence that R.C.M.P. Commissioner George McClellan gave to the Munsinger security and espionage inquiry. The commission revealed that he had been summoned to the offices of the P.M. on December 3, 1964. He said he was asked, by Mr. Pearson, if there was any information on file of a nature which would indicate impropriety or wrongdoing on the part of any member of the present government.

The commissioner also disclosed that he was later asked if he had any indication of my impropriety or anything of a scandalous nature involving any member of parliament in any party over the last 10 years. Mr. McClellan told the inquiry at the open hearing that he was of course aware that the matters under discussion in the Prime Minister's office were in part at least, the rumours and gossip circulating on the Monteigner affair. He said he replied in the affirmative. He was asked what it was and he referred to the Monteigner case.

This testimony exploded in the House of Commons like a time bomb. At the earliest opportunity the Progressive Conservatives introduced a motion of non-confidence in the Liberal minority government. It said that the House strongly deplored and condemned the Government's action in having the RCMP provide information to the Government as to the past conduct of all members of parliament generally.

The Conservatives had a stirring meeting. They decided to go ahead with the motion which in effect was a censure of the Prime Minister despite the fact that the Spence judicial inquiry was only getting underway. Gordon Fairweather, Conservative MP, a former Attorney-General of New Brunswick, and one of the most respected of the Tory backbenchers, was given the assignment of denouncing the Prime Minister's action.

He led off with a speech that was fairly moderate and far removed from the hatchet-like job that an opposition member such as Erik Nielsen can carry out with vigor and vemom. But Mr. Fairweather made his points effectively. The Conservative Opposition, he said, was deeply disturbed at the action of the Prime Minister. The Conservatives were concerned that it was destroying the independence of all MP's and undermining the institution of Parliament.

The New Democratic Party and the Social Credit group, also indicated their fears that the Prime Minister had gone too far. Both opposition groups said they would support the official Conservative Opposition in its attempt to defeat the administration. The Quebec group of Creditiste members, indicated that they too were disturbed. But their spokesman Gilles Gregoire, said they would withhold judgement until they had heard the Prime Minister make his statement.

Mr. Pearson was absent from the House, that first day of the two-day debate when his personal reputation came under strong and almost continual attack. Rising from a sick bed he appeared in the House on the second and last day of the debate, to defend himself. Only Paul Martin had risen during the first day to voice a spirited defense of Mr. Pearson's reputation. Some Liberal backbenchers were annoyed that he delayed so long in springing to the P.M.'s defence.

Notice was taken in the Liberal ranks that Paul Martin was the only member of the cabinet who did rise to Mr. Pearson's defence. Other members of the cabinet were either not in their seats during the debate, or did not participate. Said one Liberal member bitterly: "Obviously the wooden-top party leaders want to avoid at all cost anything that smacks of trouble at this time. But if they only knew, it is now the backbenchers are judging them on their performances."

When Mr. Pearson returned to the House he heeded no help. He denied emphatically ordering THE RCMP to embark on a scandal hunt into the private lives of any member of parliament. In dealing with the Tory charges against him, he said simply and solemnly that he was stating the facts and would stake his reputation on the social of those facts.

There were no histrionics. It was a Prime Minister pleading the facts before the House and asking the members of Parliament to judge him on those facts.

Clearly Mr. Diefenbaker is gambling that if the Grits can be defeated now that Mr. Pearson would not recommend dissolution to the Governor General.

But the Prime Minister entered the arena ready to fight, and members 100 feet away were impressed. He urged them to send their minds back to that terrible period — November 1964 — when the Conservative Opposition laid charges at the government of bribery and corruption. The Rivard affair was the basis of those charges and the Prime Minister found to his dismay that some of the charges had foundations. He became alarmed that the Tories might be telling the truth when they charged that a conspiracy was had gained a foothold on Parliament Hill.

With accusations and rumours flying about Ottawa he decided to call in the RCMP Commissioner. He said that the allegations worried him as they worried every other member of Parliament. The was why he asked the Commissioner for information about matters, which were in any way similar to the cases that had been raised in the House at that period.

Most members were sympathetic after hearing the Prime Minister. The vote was 123 for the administration and 108 against. Supporting Mr. Pearson were 115 Liberals, nine Creditistes. (Please turn to page six)

GREAT NORTHWEST PIONEER VILLAGE

See how one man recaptured the spirit of Alberta's pioneer past.

The Great Northwest Pioneer Village is more than a museum — it is a monument to the pride one man has in our province's heritage. That man is Emil Danard, son of a pioneer family. He has assembled a fascinating collection of thousands of relics and artifacts, housed in twenty-five original pioneer buildings. Mr. Danard's unique collection includes antique cars and engines, cutters and buggies, the first Indian school (built on the Winterburn Reserve by Rev. A. B. Baird in 1883), and an authentic Greek Orthodox chapel that accommodates just two worshippers.
This living historical village represents a tremendous outlay of interest, time and effort in creating a unique tribute to the pioneer history of our Alberta.

Take your family out to visit the Great Northwest Pioneer Village soon. It's located just twenty-three miles west of Edmonton on Highway 16.

Heisler School Meet

ject. The minimum enrollment that a school which the board has in mind must have, could not be attained, and there didn't appear any many advantages to try and contribute at Forestburg.

Other questions and answers are summarized briefly:

Can you guarantee more students getting through a larger school? Students have a good chance to be in a program in which they have a better chance of achieving something.

What's the possibility of having a semester system with teachers travelling to school? Teachers not in favourable to this.

Will religious instruction be provided if high school banned into Daysland? Yes.

Why wasn't more thought given to busing high school from Daysland to Heisler? More sensible to go where there are 110 students than to bring 110 to where there are 65.

Is this the last of centralization, and what will happen if we have further centralization for one high school only in the division? Board operates on the pulse of the public. Should last for some time. Further centralization is politically possible and educationally sound. The survey team recommended that the best solution to our problem would be one centralized school.

How much longer will children be on the bus? Perhaps 20 minutes.

Are other alternatives expected to wait until busses return from Daysland? Present facility yes, but considering operating Daysland right through the day with staggered noon hours. Will students be picked up town during noon hour as is presently done? Can be changed if united with of parents.

Is the move planned this year? Yes.

On the question of sending Sisters to Daysland to teach, Fr. Smeltzer indicated this would be a very good idea. The Sisters spoke in agreement of such an arrangement.

Mr. Niehaus expressed a hope the people of Heisler would realize all the benefits that over all, would from the move the board was contemplating and give their approval.

Hardisty Council Proclaims June 3rd Holiday

HARDISTY—The regular May meeting of the Council of the Town of Hardisty was held in the office of the Secretary with the Mayor and four councillors in attendance. Minutes were read and approved and the financial report accepted.

Requisitions from the Alberta East Central Health Unit ($80,881), Alberta Hospitals Act ($2,479.98) and Killam School Division ($3,080.85) were received and given approval. Secretary informed council that the Municipal Assistance Grant for $8,304.97 had been received.

The estimates of borrowing for the Town from the Municipal Finance Corporation were reduced to $18,000 for 1966 and $16,000 for 1967, at the request of the Corporation.

The Centennial Caravan will visit Hardisty on one of its stops during the 100th celebration, and to help facilitate this activity, Mayor Hermann and Coun. Cavanagh form a Centennial Committee.

Due to the resignation of Albert Reber as Town Constable, which he had requested and council accepted, the Police Com. was instructed to advise the Attorney General Dept. of the local situation and request that the RCMP police the Town of Hardisty

No. 432 was given to a By-law of the Town, wherein by authority of Section 3006 of the Town and Village Act, the council enacts that for an infraction of a Proclamation proclaiming a holiday by the Interpretation Act, or for an infraction of the Proclamation of a Civic Holiday, the penalty of a fine not exceeding $25 be imposed, or in the case of non-payment, ten days imprisonment. This by-law was given three readings at the meeting.

It was then proclaimed that Friday, June 3rd between the hours of 12 noon and 12 midnight, all shops as defined in the Town Act, excluding garages and service stations be closed for a Civic Holiday in the Town of Hardisty

The secretary read a letter accompanying a Commendation Card, received from Headquarters commending the local Volunteer Fire Brigade for their work during fire prevention week in 1965.

Regarding the asking for suggestions on the Rural Secondary Road Program, the Town of Hardisty is requesting that Athorpe Street through the Town, together with the paved road to town be considered as a secondary highway.

Mr. Pearson had won again and Mr. Diefenbaker despite the venom and invective used the full power of his oratory had failed to convict the Prime Minister. But he will try again. Mr. Diefenbaker is a fighter. He keeps coming back with verbal body blows calculated to wear down his opponent, or catch him with his guard down. Meantime the Canadian public are becoming weary of the contest.

Graduation At Lady Of Fatima

KILLAM— Our Lady of Fatima School, Killam, presented a festive appearance on Wednesday, May 18, when graduation exercises were held for students of Grade Eleven.

The theme was Gay Paris exemplified by Eiffel Tower and Fleur-de-lis motifs. Pastel streamers and balloons gave an attractive air to the rooms. The supper room was decorated to represent an outdoor Parisian cafe, overlooking the Arc de Triomphe.

Exercises opened with the march of the graduates, played by Patricia Klenner. Yellow rose corsages were worn by the girls, and white carnations by the boys Rita Slevik presented the diplomas and was guest speaker She stressed the value of a good salesman in the world of today, and urged the students to make the most of their present opportunities. A history of the school and its accomplishments was most interesting.

Kenneth Eshpeter, who has the highest academic standing, was valedictorian, and Allen Heisler read the class prophecy. The graduation led off the entertainment section with a tango which was gracefully executed.

In the baby picture contest, Dwight Lorenz won the prize for the prettiest baby. A variety of dances and games filled in the evening which was topped off by a sumptious tasty supper, graced by a beautifully decorated three-tier cake, the gift of Mrs. N. Zimmerl.

At the conclusion, Father McCarthy, in a few well-chosen remarks, complimented the graduates and wished them every blessing. Virginia Froehler, on behalf of the graduates thanked the teachers and the Student's Union for providing such a pleasant evening.

Guests of honor were: Reverend Father McCarthy, Sister Marina, Sister Emerita, Miss Prudhman, Mr. and Mrs. Remillard, Mr. and Mrs. M. Bosch and Miss Cathy Schessler.

Baptist Church

We enjoyed the ministry of two of our missionaries this week when Rev. Goldsmith, missionary on furlough from Brazil, spoke on Thursday night, and Rev. Chesboro, missionary on furlough from the Philippine Islands, was our guest speaker on Sunday morning. They brought messages of challenge and told of revival fires burning in their respective fields of service.

A layman was in charge of the Sunday evening service. We were happy to welcome many visitors to these services, and to see many of our young people home for the holiday weekend.

We are looking forward, with anticipation to the ministry of Rev. Ernest Wilson, evangelist from Panama, Central America. He has been the president of Youth for Christ in Philadelphia for 10 years, is assistant Dean of Masna Bible Institute and has taught for 30 years. He has ministered in many countries and will be speaking on the topic "Sharing Jesus in Revival" in the Killam Baptist Church at our Sunday services next Sunday and also Monday night, May 29 and 30.

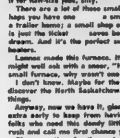
HEARTWARMING
By Bert Odland



Before you start reading the cartoons, it will only take a minute of your time to read this heart-warming story. In fact, if you take it seriously, it will not only warm your heart, but your liver, spleen, foot and all other parts. Because you see, this story is about a furnace. A very special furnace.

This phenomenon of the furnace world looks like most other modern furnaces, except for one thing. It's about half size.

Why would anybody want a half-size furnace? Well, they want it for half-size jobs, silly.

There are a lot of these small half-size heating jobs around. Perhaps you have one a small, tight house; a garage; a cabin; a trailer home; a small shop or office. This new little gas furnace is just the ticket saves both space and money. Works like a dream. And it's the perfect successor to those money old space heaters.

Lennox made this furnace. It's the first one of its kind. And you might well ask with a sneer, "If there is such a big need for a tiny small furnace, why wasn't one made years ago?"

I don't know. Maybe for the same reason that Columbus didn't discover the North Saskatchewan — he was too busy with other things.

Anyway, now we have it, glory be. I may have to open my doors extra early to keep from having them pounded down by eager folks who need this dandy little furnace. Why don't you beat the rush and call me first chance you get. Phone 385-3638, KILLAM.

DAYSLAND LIONS HOLD CHARTER NIGHT

DAYSLAND—The annual Days land Lions Charter night was held May 27th in the Community Hall. The evening was a huge success with about 225 Lions, their wives and guests coming from Windfield, Camrose, Tofield, Ryley, Wainwright, Forestburg, Alliance, Wetaskiwin. The District Governor, Ed Hay and his wife were present also Zone chairman Art Stapleton and his wife from Mornisville.

by a Board member suggested that a six room school presently used in Dayaland was quite old and would be scrapped in the foreseeable future. If public opinion ever demanded, further centralization could become a reality, and the additions presently contemplated at Dayaland, utilized for public school purposes.

The Division's Industrial Arts program was discussed. Is the trend away? Could it be offered in Grade IX? and What will be offered at Central High School? were questions posed. In answering, the Superintendent stated that while a few years back, the trend was away but this has changed with the offering of a Multiple Activity program that will yearly teach some part of the Province. Central High School will be on this program. A child taking grade IX will be encouraged to stay and partake in a program suited to his ability. A grade could be bussed to a centre offering this and the pupils partake of the program for exploratory purposes only.

It was moved by Herschel Jackson, seconded by Walter Vincent, "That this meeting go on record as being in favor of sending the Galahad and area High School students to Central High School at Sedgewick for 2 or 3 years, with a recommendation that one Central High School for the whole division be built in Killam within 3 years." The motion carried with a substantial majority with three persons in opposition.

Mrs. Perdico tendered a vote of thanks to the Killam School Division Board for attending the meeting adjourned at 10:30 p.m.

Over one hundred young people from the Edmonton-Camrose Conference of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Canada met in annual convention. This conference [illegible] in all of Western Alberta from Edmonton to Cook and east to the Saskatchewan border.

Petitioned School Meeting Held At Galahad

The meeting was called to order at 8:25 p.m. by the Chairman of the Killam School Division No. 22, Mr. L. D. Nielsen Mr. Frank Herle was elected chairman of the meeting and preceded with the reading of the petition, signed by 27 electors which stated: "We the undersigned ratepayers of the Killam School Division No. 22 protest the proposed disbusing of the Galahad High School students to the Central High School at Sedgewick. We request that the Killam Board call a meeting of the ratepayers to be held in Galahad."

The Chairman then declared the meeting open for expressions of opinions from those opposing the closing of the High School. The remarks made indicated considerable concern over the following: 1. North line will have 3 High Schools so South should have one; 2. Bussed students can't participate in sports; 3. Routes suggested in the map and in the letter sent out should be changed; 4 Distance, roads, hours on the bus and time away from home; 5 The two High Schools on the North line not necessary. Suggested planning for one school for the whole Division.

The reasons for closing the High School, were presented by the Superintendent and Board members present, and stressed the fact that the High Schools were being closed solely on educational grounds, motivated by what is best for the greatest number of students. A straight senior matriculation program only was being offered at Galahad, in fact in all small High Schools. Good educational systems are trying to offer programs that give something to the other students that cannot qualify for the Senior Matriculation program. Statistics show there are approximately 63 percent of the students that can never expect to achieve Senior Matriculation. The Board is convinced that something must be done for these students, with the solution being in larger high schools were diploma courses, Business Education and a form of basic vocational training can be offered.

Answering a question on one school for the South line, it was pointed out that this would not provide a school which the Board has in mind.that is, a minimum enrollment of from 180 to 220. One could not expect them from East of Alliance and north of Dayaland, even north of Galahad agreeable to attending Forestburg, the school suggested for the South line Furthermore, Forestburg would have to be consulted and wad in the division. With a minimum enrollment of 180 at least 9 teachers could be hired. The Dowsy Report recommended a school of 500 but the general feeling of the Board was that the people of the Division are not ready for the move. While such a school might eventually be built, the matter would be left to public opinion.

The two High Schools on the North line were discussed at considerable length. Those in opposition declared that since Dayaland is near the West boundary of the Division, it seemed rather foolish to centralize this locale further by additional building. Comments on this Can't Have It Both Ways!

There are still those homeless isolationists who want to keep Canada strictly for Canadians, even to the extent that it rips many of them to see any kind of currency floating around the country except the Ritsolored Canadian variety. On the other hand our various levels of government are bending over backward to attract tourists, and particularly those of the American variety. That there is only one reason for this welcome mat being spread is obvious; the attraction of American dollars. Tourists from the south are big spenders and the tourist trade is big business.

The recent rumor that the U.S. Government is considering restrictions on the amount of money American tourists can spend in foreign countries, has brought to the forefront once again Canada's need for foreign capital, and the necessity for creating an atmosphere that will attract it. During the past few years there has been a hue and cry against foreign capital coming into Canada, particularly American, and yet when that country tries to impose restrictions on this very inflow, Canada wants to be exempted from such restrictions. Well, you can't have it both ways. We can't condemn foreign capital on the one hand and then expect it to be there when we want it. Private capital goes where it is welcome; this is a basic economic fact. Another economic fact is, if Canada is going to reach the goals set by the Economic Council, she is going to need a lot of capital investment. For apparent reasons, not the least of which is reluctance on the part of Canadians to invest in Canada, this capital will not be generated within our borders; some of it is going to have to come from outside. If it is to come, there must prevail here an economic and political climate that will attract it. Until we are able and willing to do it ourselves, our policy should, and in fact must be, "Foreign capital is welcome".

Canada A Breadbasket!

Canada has established an international reputation as being the breadbasket for a large part of the world. She has too earned the reputation as an efficient and large producer of food. A fine natural resource in soil, water and the climate for hard wheat, combined with technical skills and foresight have made this possible. As a result, it is to Canada and the other equally fortunate countries that the rest of the world is turning to for food and also as advice in ways to modernize their outmoded agricultural methods. This trend will continue so long as any country continues in a fashion whereby it requires several persons to raise enough food for one. And Canada will continue to prosper agriculturally under conditions where one can raise enough grain to feed scores. It continues to amaze us that countries hundreds of years older than Canada still have made less progress in food production, storage methods and transportation, than this country has made in the last 25 years.

That these nations must be fed goes without argument, and Canada has responded with aid schemes which are growing rapidly and today total many millions of dollars. With reported grain failures in China, Russia, India and other nations, Canada's responsibility to accommodate the needs of the hungry will multiply. Today's surpluses are a thing of the past and Canada is growing for a variety of markets which will absorb its full capacity. That this need can be filled solely on a charitable basis is stretching goodwill to the breaking point, for needy nations have a responsibility to look after their own needs as fully as is humanly possible. India is overrun by rats, and this along with outmoded storage facilities and lack of transportation are the causes for spoilage of 50 percent of their food. These are problems which can be overcome, if the will to do so exists.

How To Beat Estate Tax!

The Manning Government of Alberta has a movement afoot to eliminate the disgusting Estate Tax. We use the word disgusting, for if ever there was a tax that hurts twice this is it. Any estate that has been accumulated over the years has paid its fair share of taxes into the national coffers, and to bleed it twice is carrying the whole thing just a bit too far. It should be eliminated. It may not be, and for that reason we outline here a few ways to "beat the rap", all of which are legitimate.

One way is for parents to give that part of their estate to their children which exceeds $50,000. there is no estate tax on an estate of $50,000 or less.

A farmer can make a gift of $10,000 one in a lifetime to a child who intends to carry on the family farm, provided the gift is part of the farm land. In addition to this, anyone can give away $4,000 each year without paying gift tax. The only exception to this concerns those whose net earnings are over $10,000 a year. Or a person can make as many gifts not exceeding $1000 in value as he likes in one year as long as they are given to different people. If the gift is over $1000 the whole amount is taxable.

Incorporating the farm in such a way that the parents do not retain the participating shares is another way to keep the estate taxes down. This does not mean that the parents must relenquish their control over the farm operation. They can retain this control by holding preferred shares with voting power.

Alberta's farmers are becoming increasingly aware of the importance of careful estate planning, the reason probably being the present land boom which has increased the net worth of many farmers.

by A.C.E.

Three weeks ago the Community Press started its 57th volume. The first paper was dated July 16 1908, and this summer will see the start of the 58th year of publication. There are 52 issues in a volume, and items missed during holidays taken over the years, is the reason for this new volume being number 57 instead of 58.

In recent weeks there has been considerable discussion going on about the trial or mis-trial, as you please, of Steven Truscott who at the age of 14 years was sent to jail for life, convicted of the murder of a young girl. Now after seven years in jail, he is suddenly front page news since the publication of a book written about the trail by Isabel Lebourgiais. There are two things which I think every Canadian believes he is entitled to before the courts. (1) That he is innocent until someone proves him guilty. (2) That the court which represents the people of Canada, guarantees every Canadian a fair trial. If what the author says in her book is true it does not appear that Steven Truscott received either one of these. If this had happened in or near your community and everyone was up in arms and condemning a certain lad for the crime, do you believe that he could receive a fair trail from a jury picked from amoung you? Peace being what they are it would be a rare case indeed to find someone for a jury who could abandon his preconceived verdict of guilty and sit unbiazed on the jury. And you have to find some flaws in

Dear Sir:

It seems that meetings are like people — mighty peculiar! Here a group of we human beings get together to try and keep our Alliance High School open, and we end up voting to close it (by a substantial majority). All we reckoned we a vote on was a certain little lady. We never heard the young fellow say he was all for closing the high school. Of course such an important motion should have been read over before it was voted on, and then we would not have made the mistake. As it was a group of people didn't vote either way. Then we've been worried all year about the rough deals the kids have been getting and we have been told over and over that we must close down so we won't get another bad deal this year. But we go and give ourselves a big boost at the meeting by saying, "We had a highly qualified and capable staff this year". All we did was give a big hand to the two fellows who had struck it out to the time of the meeting. As we said before, meeting are like people — mighty peculiar.

GAS AND LIQUOR

For a long time we've been told that gas and alcoholic beverages just don't go together. The automobile insurance companies are thoroughly agreed upon this. Mr. Gordon Taylor, Alberta's Minister of Highways is determined to get the idea across that you either drive without drinking or drink without driving, but you can't mix the two.

A new bill recently enacted in the provincial legislature will make it necessary for a driver to provide a specimen of his breath when asked to do so by a law enforcement officer or risk the suspension of his operator's license. Nearly everyone is crying out for more strict enforcement of the laws prohibiting the drinking driver from operating his vehicle.

The stiumpt to mix these two liquids is or through the one individual is contributing to higher rates of damage and fatalities in automobile accidents and this in turn is sharply reflected in increased premiums for auto insurance. Everybody pays in every way when anyone attempts to use gas and liquor at the same time.—Nanton News

Duty Free Machines

OTTAWA—By this time next year Canada may be offering American manufacturers of industrial machinery a very substantial tariff cut and, in certain cases, free entry for their product. The plan has been given informal Cabinet approval in principle though some details remain to be worked out.

Whether the machinery program will be implemented eventually will depend on the attitude of the United States government and industry, the stand of other signatories to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade since it involves raising one tariff while it reduces still another, and the agreement of the United Kingdom which would lose part of its preferential tariff margin on machinery.

Initial reaction in Washington has been cool. This is not surprising. Canada is not planning to offer more generous tariff treatment to American manufacturers than other members of GATT. The purpose of the plan is to encourage Canadian manufacturers to replace part of an importation of machinery, valued last year at $1,218 million with home manufacture.

The tariff on imports of industrial machinery is governed by Tariff Board ruling e g a on whether a machine is "of a class or kind made in Canada". This has been interpreted for years as meaning that Canadian manufacturers supply 10 per cent of the Canadian demand. If the particular machine or machine tool is made in Canada according to this formula it is subject to 22 1/2 per cent tariff. If it is not, the tariff is 7 1/2 per cent.

The "class or kind" system has never been popular, even though it can provide massive protection to the manufacturer. The fact that he must first be supplying 10 per cent of the Canadian market means that in early stages of production he is exposed to the cold winds of competition. Only when he needs it less can he live in the shelter of the tariff wall while the Canadian purchaser pays the higher price for his machine which he passes on in a higher price to his consumer of his product.

In addition to this, Tariff Board rulings on "class or kind" involve legal wrangles, right and narrowing judicial decisions and appeals to higher courts with consequent delay & uncertainty.

It is now proposed to eliminate class or kind rulings in determining tariff on industrial machinery. One level of tariff, perhaps 15 per cent, would replace the 22 1/2 per cent and 7 1/2 per cent. An importer would then apply to a board of government officials for suspension of the tariff. To get free entry for the particular machine or machine tool he would have to satisfy principle board not only that it was not being made in Canada but that it could not and would not be made here economically and within reasonable time. The board would hold public hearings at which prospective manufacturers could appear.

One difficulty is to find a process for appeal. No one is going to be satisfied to let a bureaucratic board have the final say. Yet an appeal to the courts involves the same old delays and, to be acceptable, the new plan must be quick, simple and efficient. Cabinet has rejected the suggestion of officials that the minister be given the final decisions. Government is having trouble politically with ministerial discretion written into the law. An alternative is reported to have been proposed and there will be plenty of time to discuss it. With some luck as well as a lot of good management the machinery program might be ready for introduction in the 1967 Spring budget.

The machinery program does not require any action by Washington but Canada is expecting to get something in return for this major concession. The appropriate place to obtain this quid pro quo is the so called "Kennedy round" of tariff bargaining among GATT members at Geneva. At the moment these Geneva negotiations are stalled pending agreement among themselves on agricultural and other policies of the Common Market countries. If there is failure to get this and the Kennedy round collapses Canada will seek bilateral talks with the United States next year when the machinery program would be a major offer.

At the moment, however, U.S. officials are reported to be a little weary of Canada's free trade schemes. The automobile agreement of 1965, while it is credited with a large part of the spectacular increase in Canadian exports of cars and parts last year, is not too popular on either side of the border. In the end the Americans may not be able to offer any valuable concession in return for conditional free entry of machinery since, in some cases, it will mean an increased tariff.

CAPITAL HILL CAPSULE

The Government is hoping that the recent settlement of the Seamen's strikes in Ontario may provide a solution to the problem of applying the new Labour Code hours of work to the trucking industry The settlement includes inauguration of the 40-hour week on January 1, 1968 So far the truckoig industry is enjoying an 18-month deferment of the hours of work provision that will expire at the end of this year. If the industry in Ontario applies for it a further deferment will be given the end of which would coincide with the collective bargaining agreement It is hoped this would not a precedent to be followed in other provinces.

Annual Report Lougheed 4-H

The reorganizational meeting of the Lougheed 4-H Homemakers Club was held on Sept. 10th 1965 with 16 girls and 4 leaders present.

We finished the year with 4 members in the club Officers for the coming year were elected as follows. President, Lorna Storbakken. Vice-president, Sharon Probst. Secretary, Margaret Burden. Treasurer, Rosanne Burden; Club Reporter Margaret Ann Probst Meetings were held the first and third Wednesdays of every month in the hallmd

We had a very busy year. In July we served dinner and lunch at the Cookson Family reunion. In August our thematic display was second prize at the Lougheed Fair. During the summer several of the girls attended the Camrose Fair Camp. As some of the girls had attended the camp in previous years and found it very interesting, they encouraged others to attend the camp with the result that quite a few boys and girls from this district went and were fortunate enough to bring back four prizes.

On November 30th we had our annual banquet, with the W.I. ladies as co-hostess. Our guest speaker was Mrs. Mabel, who gave us an interesting talk on the people and customs of her native Brit i h Guiana

We had several parties during the year; at Christmas, a skating party in January, a Valentines party in February, and an Easter party in April. Also, during the year we had several weiner bakes.

Our community project for the year was to make visits to some of the older or handicapped citizens of our community, and we each made two visits. Our fund raising project for the year was serving at the Junior High Curling Bonspiel in the winter.

Guest speakers during the year were, Miss Kvill and Miss Ebby, district home economist.

On March 2nd we held our Public Speaking "Speakoff". Sharon Probst was the winner, Margaret Ann Probst second and Lorna Storbakken Third. Sharon went on to Killam where she competed with the others who won in the Flagstaff district and won a commendable 3rd. We entered a skit in the 4-H Radio Week contest sponsored by CFCW and placed among the 9 winners, which entitled one of our members to spend a week in Camrose as guest of CFCW, along with representatives from the winning clubs. Margaret Ann Probst was chosen as our delegate in April, Lorna Storbakken, as last years efficiency winner, attended a banquet in Camrose where she was presented with a trophy. All of the club attended the Homemakers Rally in Camrose on April 18th.

Our leaders have not been idle this year either. In the early fall Mrs. Normanna Probst attended the Provincial Leaders Conference in Edmonton. Later on all the leaders attended a workshop for the homemaking clubs in Camrose and in March they attended a conference at the 4-H Clubs in the district.

We are planning to have a picnic on June 19 and later on a tour. We have had a very busy, but very enjoyable and profitable year.

Merna 4-H Club

In April the 4-H Club had a grooming day and tour. Austin Arntzen gave us a demonstration on how to groom, show, and judge a calf. After the demonstration each member judged a group of fat steers Kenny Bowman was first in judging, Allen Bowman, second; and Janis Leslie third. The afternoon was ended with a delicious bunch.

The 4-H held their regular meeting on May 12 at the Merna School with 11 members present. Raymond Cameron opened the meeting by leading the pledge. We decided to hold a meeting on June 2nd as the Club Leader could explain the Achievement Days to the first year members. The meeting was adjourned.

THE PERFECT HIGH SCHOOL

Virtually everbody these days is upset about our educational system The public schools are not teaching the urchins to read, write and figger. The high schools are massive, soothing factories turning out illiterates. The colleges are septic tanks of sex, marijuana and LSD.

Most of this is pure poppy-cock, of course, but a critical society is a healthy one, according to Hugh Dunnet, that great Welsh bard and beatnik of the eleventeenth century. The makes Canadians about the healthiest critters in the hemisphere.

Columnists ever that high schools are run like military camps, producing lock-step conformists who haven't learned to think This is patent baloney. They think one brilliva fot more than did these same columnists, when they came out of Hayford Centre with not much more than a burning desire to get away from said centre, a lousy basic education, and a shiny new serge suit.

Lots of parents, and some teachers, are of the opposite opinion that there is far too much freedom of speech, dress and action, too many frills, not enough good hard work and good hard punishment. Those comments come from parents who worked one-quarter as hard in school as their kids do, and teachers who atrophied some years ago.

The kids themselves, depending on home background, personalities, and their talent, or lack of it, look on school as a jail or a ball. Some think of it rather like having a ball in a jail.

School boards brief about the cost of everything, and the administration boils about the shortage of everything and the teachers beef about the paper jungle and the custodians beef about the salaries and the hours and the teachers and the administration and the s c h o o l board

You might think, from all this nagging, that there are some slight imperfections in our high schools. And you might be right. But it's not as bad as it sounds.

What I can't understand is that I haven't approached for a definition of the perfect high school. It's probably just an overnight, and because I'm not a pushy type. But who is better qualified? I've been to high shool myself, I work in the blasted factory every day, and I have a daughter who comes home every day and moans, "Do I ever hate school!"

Well, here goes. Don't panic, dear. The changes would be slight and inexpensive. I think we'd all enjoy life more, students, parents and teachers.

First of all, let's cut out the metered, mumbled morning prayer. I believe in prayer, and feel for it quite often (usually when I'm in a jam). But it's almost sacrilege in the way it's delivered. The R.C.'s whizz through it and leave out the last part. The Jews and atheists don't belief. The teacher winds up leading three or four dogged Protestants who aren't always sure of the words.

Next, out goes The Queen. While I am a royalist, and have the utmost respect for her, I have never got

Of course we can tell you all kinds of nice things about Pontiac; how well it's built, how much you deserve one, but the nicer we make the car sound, the more expensive you think it is. The only way to get personal proof is to invite you in to have a look at the price tag. It's maybe not quite as colorful as the car, but it's liable to turn you on just the same. People forget (and who can blame them), but Pontiac is not an expensive car! And that's not just talk. We can offer you the kind of a deal that could put a set of wheels under your own new Pontiac this week. A guy like you could really get pleased to see Pontiac. Rain is needed to assure even germination. Seeding of wheat completed or near completion at most points, precompletion of oats and barley seeded averages approximately 60 percent, flax 40 percent, and rapeseed 40 percent.

most respect for Queen Elizabeth, I see no reason 20-odd homemakers should be submitted, every morning, to a pompous and bad piece of music, the words of which have no more relation to their world than does the horse and buggy.

How would you like to go to the factory, or the office, every day and at attention while a tapercorded band blares out one of those weird tunes, before you get down to serious business. Him waiting for the coffee break!

In place of these, I would suggest a warm-up period. We're all pretty damp dopey first thing in the morning. The choice of music would be a matter of ceremonies. Witty sayings, announcements, brief weather report. Some Beatles and Sak Dylan and the Rolling Stones. An original poem or song from the students. If a girl has a new beau, let her demonstrate a new dance. Probably on the teacher's desk.

By this time everybody is friendly, warmed-up. The real learning atmosphere has been created. But unfortunately, I have run out of space Read next week's column for a further thrilling instalment on the Perfect High School.

HORTICULTURE FIELD DAY!
Don't forget the Horticulture Field Day meeting at Daysland on June 8th. We will be touring the following farms: 10 a.m., Anderson Bros. 12 Noon, Nels Blaley for a lunch, at 3:00 p.m., Harry Anderson farm.
Dunc Hargraves, Supt. of Brooks Horticultural Station will conduct the tour. Pack your lunch, bring the family and enjoy the outing.
Soft drinks and coffee will be served courtesy of the M. D. Flagstaff and Dacy Cups, courtesy of N. A. D. P. at Sedgewick.
UNIVERSITY OF ALBERTA ANNUAL FEEDERS' DAY!
Results of experiments conducted during the last year on many common problems concerning breeding, feeding and managing livestock will be featured at the University of Alberta's Feeders' Day on Saturday, June 11th.
Many cattlemen will be interested in the report comparing beef carcasses in terms of the muscle-to-bone ratio and the percentage of fat. The report discusses the implications of carcass composition in beef breeding programs.
Another report is based on the productive characteristics of the 2 beef herds at Kinsella. Comparisons of the herds will include their reproductive traits, weights, gains, feed conversion rates and carcass characteristics.
Two experiments on Holstein calves will also be included in this program. One deals with feeding calf starters containing different combinations of energy and protein, and the other with finishing steers.
Under the swine section, several methods of limited feeding will be compared with self feeding meal & pelleted rations to market hogs.
Another report outlines the results of an experiment designed to evaluate the advantages of feeding rape seed meal as a source of protein throughout the growing and reproduction periods of confinement-reared gilts. It deals with the performance of the gilts up to market weight compared with their mates which received equivalent levels of soybean meal.
A report outlining the changes adopted last year for evaluating R. O. P. carcasses should be of interest to many hog producers. It compares the present method with that used in the past and outlines the advantages of the new system.
One of the reports to be given on sheep discusses an experiment on lamb growth. It was found that the blood urea concentration in lambs increases with body weight, indicating that protein utilization becomes less efficient as the lambs mature and as the proportion of muscle in the weight gain declines. The lower urea concentration in males suggests that they use protein more efficiently than the females.
The Feeders' Day program will start at 10 a.m. in the University of Alberta Livestock Pavilion, located at 71st Avenue and 116 Street For a nominal fee lunch will be served.

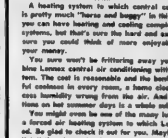
THE PIE COMES FIRST
(By Bert Odland)



Imagine the problem you'd have trying to make pie ala mode if you didn't have any pie.

It doesn't take a genius to figure out that to have pie ala mode, you first have to have the pie.

Well then, if we are all agreed on that startling premise, let's come to the point:

If you are going to have a good year-around indoor comfort system, it's best to plan a good forced air heating system. That's the pie. Then, at any time, you can add the cooling to it. That's the ice cream.

A heating system to which central cooling CANNOT be added is pretty much "heros and boogy" in this day and age. Of course, you can have individual cooling completely separate in different systems, but that's sure the hard and expensive way . . . and I'm sure you could think of more enjoyable ways to fritter away your money.

You sure won't be frittering away your dough when you combine Lennox central air conditioning with a forced air heating system. The cost is reasonable and the benefits are great . . . wonderful coolness in every room, a home closed to dirt and pollen, excess humidity wrung from the air and a ready place for dispositions on hot summer days in a whole subject in itself.

You might even be one of the many lucky ones who already has a forced air furnace in which Lennox cooling can be added. Be glad to check it out for you. Maybe you have your piece of "pie" the ala mode. Call me I'll help you decide.

Rain Fails To Stop Stampede

ROYAL SCOTS BAND—The forty piece Royal Scots Band which led the parade at the nineteenth Hardisty Stampede is shown as it swings around a corner onto main street. Part of the band followed by the rest of the parade can be seen coming down the side street. 136 men of the Royal Scots (The Royal Regiment), oldest infantry regiment in the British Regular Army, are presently at Camp Wainwright for special training. Arrangements were made for the Band to attend the Parade and Stampede on Friday and give the public a sample of their music.

HARDISTY—The rain came Friday and the rain came Saturday. It dampened things a bit but failed to put a stop to the Annual Hardisty Stampede On Friday activities were slowed down to a minimum, but with clearing skies on Saturday the full line of Rodeo events were completed, with large crowds in attendance.

The big two-day affair got under way at noon on Friday with a gigantic parade led by the Royal Scots Bands. These two bands, one brass and the other pipe, played continuously throughout the long parade march, and then entertained in the afternoon at the grounds. There was a good display of floats, decorated cars, goonies and bikes, along with entries representing various farm equipment dealers and business firms.

The Hardisty Elks Lodge was the top prize in floats, with St. Anne's Hospital second and the Battle River 4-H Club third. In the Novelty Entry, Bill Dragar won first and a wee girl with pony and cart second. In the Commercial Float Class, Mel's Barber Shop of Lougheed captured the top prize, with the UGG second and Ruby Shaven Beauty Shop third. Lakeview Service was awarded the Best Decorated Car, with the Wheat Pool a close second. Out Of Town Class went to the Lougheed Homemakers. Special Prize Entry went to the Flintstones of the Crozier-Calmar entry. Mrs. Holte was the winner of the Glamour Class. Bicycle entries went to, Brian Goiko, Erin Morrison, Marylin Manning and Sharon Harrison. First in Pony Entries went to Kevin Whitehead while Lee Ann Golka took the Girl's Event, with little Bev Rinkhofer second.

The various races and rodeo events were thrilling to the large crowds. Just one rain fell and completed in spite of the rain. The stage show drew large crowds who thrilled to the performance of singing star Elmer Tipp. The music for the dance each evening was by Rogers Bros. Band who played to capacity crowds each evening.

It was moved and passed that since the meeting at Galahad favored the Board proposal to close the Galahad High School on June 30th, that same be done and the students be bussed to Central High effective September 1st, 1966.

Approval was given for the sale of two depreciated buses to Mr. C. Svendsen of Calgary for $1250.

Highest Service Award For Sedgewick Kinsmen

Last weekend at Grand Prairie the Kinsmen Club of Sedgewick was awarded the Alberta Kinsmen Association's highest honor for service work.

The Tom Shandro Service Shield was awarded to the Sedgewick Club for the work they have done on their lake project at the lake one mile north of town.

This award is made once each year to the club considered to have had the best service project which benefited the highest number of people in its community. All Kinsmen Clubs in District Four which includes all of Alberta and the Northern part of B.C. are eligible to compete in the competition for the Tom Shandro Shield.

Sedgewick Kinsmen travelled to Grand Prairie last weekend to attend the annual convention of District Four Kinsmen and to present their entry in the service work competition. Three Kinsmen and Kinettes attending were: Mr. and Mrs. James Tindal, Mr. Mike Kasby, Mr. and Mrs. Brian Beairsto, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Sparrow, Mr. and Mrs. John Patten.

Members of the Sedgewick Kinsmen have spent many hundreds of hours working to improve the lake and grounds for the benefit of the general public and the fact that they have received this award proves that many people from other parts of the province think that it is very worthwhile

Having won the Alberta Honors the Lake Project will next compete against the winners from the other nine provinces for the Best Service Project in Canada.

Lougheed Sports Draws Large Crowd

LOUGHEED— Sometimes years compare and then other times they are as different as night and day. This year Lougheed's annual sports day, the first in the area, while not visited by rain, did contend with Alberta's early spring winds. The gale was so severe at times that ball players on the bench could not see second base.

The six team tourney was all but completed, with the final game being cut short at two innings due to darkness. Sedgewick won out over Hardisty, Lougheed beat Killam and Hughenden took out Viking. Hughenden then beat Sedgewick in the ami final. The evening game money was split.

A good crowd was on hand for the day's activities, and a grand dance at night completed the day.

Just by way of comparison, the following is a write-up of the 1915 Lougheed Sports Day which appeared in the Lougheed Express. This is printed courtesy of Harry Barton who picked it up while visiting in Winnipeg. This shows that Lougheed has been in the sports field for a long time, and also that people do keep scrap books.

Sports Day Notes

Providence smiled. It rained on Sunday. It rained again on Tuesday. But never a drop on Sports Day. The new sports grounds are high and dry.

There were 52 autos here on sports day. Twelve hundred people in attendance.

Hardisty won the basket ball games.

A record crowd attended the ball at night, 112 couples attended. The Ladies Aid Society cleared up $100 with their booth. Miss May Barton collected $63 for the Red Cross Society during the day.

We were all glad to see Chas. Herron here again with his session pictures.

Only two accidents on Sports Day and nobody hurt. A little girl was knocked over by a motor cycle but escaped uninjured, and a horse belonging to Earl Davis ran away with a buggy but no-body was injured

YOUNG COUPLES CLUB TO PLAY BALL

The June meeting of Young Couples Club will be held at the Jack Ball players on the bench could not see second base.

The models which were built by Mr. Kvill will be displayed in the Agricultural Section of the Museum. Mr. Kvill is presently building models of farm wagons, and bundle racks which will be used to complete the display.

CROP REPORT

SOUTHERN ALBERTA

A few light showers fell in this area early this week but in many it has been dry and cool these past ten days. The result: seeding completed except for the usual late-seed areas. General conditions are about the same as last year though good rains fell during the last week in May, in 1966 and some fell this year. Subsoil moisture is satisfactory but good rain will be needed within a week. Overall prospects for a good crop remain high.

NORTHERN ALBERTA

Seeding in this area was badly delayed by heavy rains last year and less than 20 percent of this area, which grows more oats and barley than any other, was seeded. This year seeding is about complete. Subsoil conditions north and west of Edmonton are good prospect, for a big crop are rated 50 per cent better than last spring. Elsewhere in northern Alberta many points will soon need moisture to support growth. Warm weather would be welcome.

PEACE RIVER

Wheat seeding is practically completed and more than half the barley and oats planted are in the ground. Thus, seeding progress is more than a week advanced over last year. Crop growth is very slow due to the cool weather and there is some concern that wild oats will offer strong competition when it warms up. Moisture conditions are considered excellent in the south-ern and western parts of the Peace but the topsoil is quite dry in other areas and rain will be needed soon.

Forestburg Plans Swimming Pool

FORESTBURG— Mr. Jerome I Kuefler, President of the FOREST-BURG LIONS CLUB, has recently announced that with the permission of the Community, the Club is planning the construction of a Swimming Pool sometime in the "CENTENNIAL PROJECT" of the FORESTBURG COMMUNITY.

The Village has agreed to accept ownership and will operate it upon its completion.

The anticipated cost of the pool is $45,000 00 The GOAL of the Lions Club is $20,000 00 exclusive of Government grants, this sum we hope will be contributed through a canvass of every family in Forestburg and surrounding district.

On Monday, May 23rd 1966, a public meeting was held in the school auditorium at Forestburg, with Guest Speakers from OYEN, ACME, WATER SAFETY DIVISION of the CANADIAN RED CROSS, MAYOR of FORESTBURG and the Engineering firm of UNDERWOOD, McLELLAND & ASSOCIATES.

The constructional, financial, operational and educational aspects of swimming pools were covered. When all Speakers were finished, a panel consisting of Mr. Paulat, Consulting Engineer; Dr. Greenway of Acme, Mr Lydaman of Oyen, Mayor Oberg of Forestburg and Mr Kuefler of the local Lions Club was set up to answer questions from the audience

The pool is to be located on the School grounds and will be 38 foot wide and 72 1 2 feet long Construction is to take place this summer, but no completion date has been set as yet.

Mr Kuefler, Club President, along with others stressed the importance of the educational aspects of a pool and emphasized the value of such a service in a Community He also asked for the wholehearted support of the entire Community. Canvassing is to begin shortly and every family is asked to invest in the recreational and educational aspects of aquatics for our children.

If, as a result of the training our children will get in this pool, just ONE life is saved, then the cost seems relatively small.

Any additional questions pertaining to the pool are to be directed to the Swimming pool committee consisting of Messers Bill Sandmaier; Elmer Daheag; Carl Farvolden; Bud Brown; Walter Bahl, Blair Cousins; Arnold Fredhand and Jerome Kuefler.

Poverty At Home!

With the millions of dollars the Western world is pouring into under-developed and poverty-ridden countries, one would almost be led to believe that poverty is non-existent in the West. In fact this is a common belief right here in Canada where an affluent society has accepted a high standard of living as a right. Compared with many under-developed countries of Africa, Asia and Latin America, Canada actually has no poverty, but nonetheless there are many Canadians existing on incomes that are well behind that of other fellow countrymen. While this does not compare with the situation in many other countries, it is still a matter of concern that there are some Canadians who are not enjoying the benefits of this country's economic prosperity. Others besides the Canadian Welfare Council are studying the situation in an attempt to find out why nearly one in every four Canadian families have an annual income less than $3,000, the dividing line between poverty and relative well-being.

There are many reasons for the situation, and they are complex enough that no single program will provide a solution. There are always those who will not work continuously at any wage, preferring to idle through life at the expense of society. There are those who through physical and mental handicaps are unable to earn adequately. There are those who prefer luxuries in living to the exclusion of real needs. But aside from all this, there are the many whose earnings are restricted in an area that is self-redeemable. Education. All the studies to date have revealed that low incomes go hand in hand with low education levels; some 36 percent of Canada's low income families are headed by men with only an elementary education, or no education at all. An additional 17 percent of family heads have had only 2 or 3 years of secondary schooling. From this it is obvious that in the long run the up-grading of educational levels are fundamental to the attack on poverty. This is where priority should be given in the spending plans of government at all levels. Of course the program is meaningless unless the desire for higher education exists among the people.

Poverty exists in Canada not only in the economic realm but in the educational field as well. Education today is an absolute necessity for those who desire to elevate themselves above the economic borderline.

Darling I Am Growing Old!

If you, with your silver threads among the gold, can remember when the above title was a popular song, along with "When You And I Were Young Maggie" then you have arrived at that critical stage of life where you are both accepted and rejected, by a society, half of which believes you are "not with it" any more and accepted by the other half because they are in the same boat.

If you can recall the year (1934) when George Hainsworth had registered his fourth shut-out of the season as goaltender for the Toronto Maple Leafs as early as December; if you remember when Eddie Wenstob was the Western Canada hope in the boxing world; if you remember Ty Cobb as a top ball player, Eddie Shore as the iron man of hockey, you're old sport, and all you have left is a fire place and an old croney or two to rehash the old days when games were played as they should be played. You've got to be sharp these days, even in your old age, if you want to keep "in" with the sports who play the games today as they should have always been played.

First ye not though, for growing old has its compensations too. Life Insurance agents pass you by without a glance. You have now become a security risk. Your wife hires a young man to fix the roof and paint the gables. You're too old and creaky to climb ladders and mother is not yet ready to lose her bread-earner. You've still got to be sharp though and years of experience have taught you how best to fake a back ache, a condition which allows for nothing more strenuous than carrying out the garbage. The years too have taught well the procedure for stalling off the speculators with their pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. What need have you for riches? You're old and the pension looms just over the horizon.

You can laugh at the boys being taken in by the sharpies, and you can always remind them that nobody has yet broken Babe Ruth's home-run record. Life is fun all the way through, in youth and age. All you have to do is make it so.

Be Water Wise!

The drowning statistics released recently by the Canadian Red Cross shows that 1,105 Canadians died by drowning in 1965. The majority of these casualties resulted from boating activities, falling into water and swimming. Over 30 per cent of the drownings were associated with boating mishaps. Most of these mishaps involved powered boats. Over 16 per cent of the drownings occurred while victims were swimming or wading. High on the list was the general category of "falling into water." About 275 Canadians or about 25 per cent drowned because they lost their balance or their footing while standing, sitting or playing near the edge of a body of water or falling overboard. This total includes some 39 persons who fell into ditches, wells, sloughs, chugouts and other excavations filled with water.

The Red Cross drowning statistics, broken down into age groups, show that 165 victims were 6 years of age or under, 142 were between 7 and 12, 236 were between 13 and 31, 204 were between 22 and 38, 164 were between 34 and 46 and the ages of the remaining 194 were either unknown or over the age of 46.

June 5 to 11 is Red Cross Water Safety Week in Canada. We urge everyone to make an honest effort to be water wise this summer and make sure the whole family is water wise too.

The Press received a letter from Mrs. G. R. McKee of Red Deer, formerly of Sedgewick, renewing the subscription for another year. We receive letters from Mrs. McKee several times each year and always enjoy her comments. She is a lady who thinks for herself, and doesn't always agree with our Editor, but then the Press doesn't print editorials to convince people, but rather to make them think. Mrs. McKee sent along a quotation from Elbert Hubbard which is close to our own idea: "If I supply you a thought, you may remember it, and you may not. But if I can make you think a thought for yourself, I have indeed added to your stature".

The Letter Box

Dear Sir,

After reading the minutes of the M.D. of Flagstaff one is driven to the conclusion that the ratepayers have to wake up to the realization they now have taxation without representation.

At a meeting at Sedgewick called to consider the pros and cons of County status for M.D Flagstaff 62 a resolution in favor of County status was amended requisiting the council to hold a plebiscite. Both the amendment and original motion were passed by a substantial majority. However the council have seen fit to ignore the wishes of the ratepayers and voted against county status and also against holding a plebiscite.

I wonder who they do represent? —Fed up Ratepayer

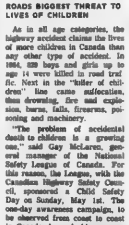
ROADS BIGGEST THREAT TO LIVES OF CHILDREN

As in all age categories, the highway accident claims the lives of more children in Canada than all other type of accident. In 1964, 629 boys and girls up to age 14 were killed in road traffic.

Next in the "roller of children" line came suffocation, then drowning, fire and explosion, burns, falls, firearms, poisoning and machinery.

"The problem of accidental death to children is a growing one," said Gay McLaren, general manager of the National Safety League of Canada. For this reason, the League, with the Canadian Highway Safety Council, sponsored a Child Safety Day on Sunday, May 1st. The one-day awareness campaign, to be observed from coast to coast in Canada, has schools-purpose, to focus attention on the problem of preventing child accidents, and to alert parents, teachers and all adults to their responsibilities in child safety and in making safety a lifelong habit in children. — Wainwright Star Chronicle



Labour Unrest Threatens

OTTAWA— Canada's booming, prosperous economy is threatened.

It is threatened by a rash of strikes. There are many strikes across the country than the Federal labour officials can recall many years.

The serious labour disputes, if they continue to spread, could bring the Canadian economy to a jarring, grinding halt.

Labour Minister J. R. Nicholson is worried. He frankly told the House of Commons at the end of May that labour unrest was getting near the point of being completely out of hand.

The Minister appealed to all members of Parliament to apply their minds to finding "some corrective formula or solution" which will prevent matters from deteriorating to any greater degree.

Inflationary pressures are at work in the economy. They have resulted in rising prices. This in turn has led to labour pressing for higher wages. In April alone 16 conciliation boards were set up according to federal spokesmen. In other times, a total for a year of 25 such conciliation boards would be regarded as normal.

One of the most serious strikes is afflict the nation, is the view of Labour Minister Nicholson, was the walkout by the longshoremen that tied up the ports at Montreal, Three Rivers and Quebec City. This had slowed down Canada's shipments of wheat overseas and the exports of other products abroad. Prairie wheat sales were endangered. Exports were accumulating at the dockides and Quebec farmers were suffering an acute shortage of feed grain for their cattle.

As that strike stretched into nearly a month the Federal Government exerted all its efforts at persuasion to try and bring the parties together. The Labour Minister accompanied by Industry Minister C. M. Drury held emergency talks in Montreal. They failed to bring about an immediate settlement but the Labour Minister was hopeful that they had laid the basis for an end to the strike.

Mr. Nicholson told the House of Commons that he was optimistic that the strike would be settled "in a reasonable time". He said that a "fantastic" wage offer had been made. However, he appeared to rule out the question of compulsory federal arbitration when he referred to the House that he believes in the natural processes of collective bargaining to bring about the best solution. He said the Shipping Federation of Canada had made a substantially higher wage offer but was properly insisting on a guaranteed increase in productivity during the second year of the contract.

A survey of the labour scene shows that the Labour Minister has good cause to be worried this year. These developments are the cause of his concern:

St. Lawrence Seaway— A federal conciliation board report has proposed a 7% wage increase for 1,300 employees of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority with an additional 7% in a year under a two-year contract. But it fell short of the demands of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC). The issuance of the report meant that the union can legally go out on strike seven days later (on June 1) Such a strike would block the seaway and add to Canada's shipping woes.

Air Canada— Representing 1,800 ground personnel employees. The Canadian Air Lines Employee's association voted last month (May) to reject the management recommendations of a conciliation board for a new wage agreement. The decision to go on strike was deferred until the Labour Minister received the board's report. Federal labour law stipulates a union may not take a strike vote or call a strike until seven days after the Minister has issued the board's report. Such a strike would ground Air Canada's aircraft and throw an added load onto the railways.

Railways—The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (CLC) representing 20,000 conductors, firemen, yardmaster, yard foremen and helpers on Canadian railways, filed their second application at the end of May, for the establishment of a conciliation board. This move followed the breakdown of negotiations with the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Wage talks between the BRT, the largest of the operating trades unions, and Canadian National Railways, broke off about a month ago. At that time the BRT applied for establishment of a conciliation board and appointed Douglas Fisher as union nominee.

Lumber Industry—On the west coast British Columbia saw the latest results of a month-old ban by the International Woodworkers of America members register about 98 per cent in favour of strike action to back up their demands. There are 20,000 IWA members involved and it could hamstring the economy of that Province.

It is no wonder that Labour Minister Nicholson, as he spoke to the Commons, indicated in blunt terms that he was giving consideration to radical changes in the machinery for the settlement of labor disputes. He suggested that one solution might be in the creation of "arbitration and courts". They have been not up in Australia and other countries.

The Minister also proposed that compulsory arbitration might be the solution in those labour management disputes in which the public interest was paramount and in which "the national interest is at stake". He stressed However that in making that suggestion he was voicing his own view and not necessarily speaking for the Cabinet.

Mr. Nicholson said he could see many instances where the public interest must be given precedence. The Minister declared it was just as important to have compulsory arbitration available in essential service fields as it is in the revised civil service legislation. However he hinted that the Cabinet was divided on this question.

Such measures had received very serious consideration" by the Department over a period of years. As a member of the Cabinet, he said, he knew something of the difficulties encountered in trying to work out an acceptable formula. He stressed that in every circumstances the principle of collective bargaining should prevail and he would be reluctant to see such processes disturbed by compulsory arbitration.

Clearly the Government is heading into serious difficulties as labour unrest spreads across the country. Nation-wide strikes could cripple the economy and members involved and it could hamstring the economy of that Province.

The Minister declared it was just as important to have compulsory arbitration available in essential service fields as it is in the revised civil service legislation. However he hinted that the Cabinet was divided on this question.

Such measures had received very serious consideration" by the Department over a period of years. As a member of the Cabinet, he said, he knew something of the difficulties encountered in trying to work out an acceptable formula. He stressed that in every circumstances the principle of collective bargaining should prevail and he would be reluctant to see such processes disturbed by compulsory arbitration.

Clearly the Government is heading into serious difficulties as labour unrest spreads across the country. Nation-wide strikes could cripple the economy and members involved and it could hamstring the economy of that Province.

Recent moves already taken in the budget they could quickly turn the present boom into a bust.

FUA Welcomes Cost Inquiry

The President of the Farmers' Union of Alberta, Paul Babey, says his organization welcomes the appointment of Dr Clarence Barber as a one-man Royal Commission to inquire into all aspects of farm machinery costs, but is concerned about the terms of reference under which the inquiry is to be made.

The F.U.A. President says, "As we pointed out in the National Farmer's Union brief at a meeting with the Federal Cabinet on May 5, a similar inquiry made in 1961 was largely unsuccessful because it could not obtain the information on the industry which it required to make conclusions.

The N.F.U. brief recommended that Ottawa assist the co-operation of the United States Government in launching a joint commission of inquiry in order that all facets of the operations of farm implement companies can be fully examined and the heads of farm implement companies in the United Setates can be required to supply.

"The inquiry will be of no value if it gathers only generalities — things we know already. We must have specific facts on all aspects of farm machinery manufacture and distribution.

"It is our hope that Dr. Barber will be working under terms of reference broad enough to allow him to get the heart of the problem of the high cost of farm machinery, and that legislation based on these findings will make these costs to the farmer more realistic," says Mr Babey.

FARMERS' UNION WANTS AN EMBARGO ON CHAROLAIS EXPORT

The Farmers' Union of Alberta has asked the Federal Government to place an embargo on the export of Charolais cattle and all female progeny to the United States for the next five years.

In a telegram sent Wednesday to Agriculture Minister Greene, F.U.A. President Paul Babey said the organization is concerned over the possibility of these cattle being sold to United States buyers, and urged the Government to take steps to prevent such sales from becoming "a profitable operation at the expense of the Canadian Taxpayer."

The United States Government does not admit cattle shipments directly from France, but will accept them from Canada following a 90 day quarantine period. Cattle imported to Canada from France have spent a 7 month quarantine in quarters provided by the Federal Government on Grosse Isle in the St. Lawrence River. All tests and veterinary services, including those made and provided during a one month quarantine in France were paid for by the Federal Dept. of Agriculture.

Mr Babey stated that his organization was concerned about the disposition of the cattle. He said he hoped they are sold to bona-fide cattle breeders rather than to speculators.

The F.U.A. President also pointed out that the retention of these cattle in Canada would, in a short time, establish this nation as one of the top-most producers of Charolais cattle in the world, a position that would do much to strengthen the economy of the country.

A SAMPLE OF FRED ROGERS

(Editors Note) The following is a part of the Lougheed News of June 7th, 1956 written by Mr. Fred Rogers.

As we start into June we look back on a month sometimes May with everyone hoping for rain soon, as both crops and gardens will soon suffer. Course as I suppose evolved the system of planting alternate rows of potatoes and seeding grain in dry spells the onions bring tears to the eyes of the potatoes and keep the ground moist. I have always been un-rested in experimental farming, crop rotation, and cross pollination. It is not generally known but I was the only one who successfully raised a crop of honey bee with the fire-fly so they could work a day and night shift. Unfortunately I overlooked the fact that the heat from their light melted the nectar and they arrived back at the hive landless. This was a minor set-back and I immediately proceeded to develop a strain of night workers that would practice the nectar only from the ice plant, thereby furnishing their own refrigeration. I was on the point of success when war was declared and probation was passed; and knowing the labor of the women I decided it would be more lucrative to cross the mule with the milk cow, thereby putting a little kick in the milk. This was a great success until the Government stepped in and slapped a license on each outlet making it prohibitive. My final experiment was crossing the Atlantic with a civilian and trying to produce a welder. This was my only total failure, but I still have some wonderful ideas which I will gladly pass on to any interested amateur gardeners.

Hardisty Hi-Lites

Damp, cool weather marked Hardisty's Stampede days with rain, both morning and afternoon, it cleared enough for all events to be held and the rain was the most welcome. The parade was led by the Hayloft Seats band, adding color as well as music. Then came a grand array of floats, decorated bicycles and horseback riders. The smallest rider of all was 3-year-old Kenneth Rithaller, grand-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dreger. Particulars of results and other events will appear elsewhere

MASTER FARM FAMILY NOMINATIONS

Nominations for Alberta's annual Master Farm Award must be filed with District Agriculturists by July 6th.

To be eligible for this highest agricultural award, the family must be Canadian citizens, the head of the family must be owner-operator or lease-operator and he must have spent at least 20 consecutive years operating the farm. If he is a veteran, military service will be accepted in lieu of time on the farm. A candidate should not intimate his own nomination.

The nominations must be signed by at least three neighbours and the unit of selection will be the District Agriculturists territory. Nominees will be scored by a committee appointed by the Minister of Agriculture and composed of a District Agriculturist, District Home Economist, a resident farmer and a resident farm woman.

Regional committees, also appointed by the Minister, will score the nominees on a regional basis, of which there are five approximating the soil zones. These committees will consist of a representative from the provincial Department of Agriculture, a representative from the federal experimental station serving the area, district, Home Economist, a farmer and a farm woman.

Families selected by regional committees will be further evaluated by a provincial committee appointed by the Minister. The Provincial committee will consist of a representative from the Alberta Department of Agriculture, the Faculty of Agriculture, at the University of Alberta, the Alberta Federation of Agriculture as well as a District Home Economist and a farm woman.

The number of Master Farm Family Awards cannot exceed one for each region. No awards will be made in regions where candidates are not considered worthy recipients. ——— ★ ———

Baptist Church

Rev. Cranfons, of Drayton Valley, was in charge of the Sunday services. He was accompanied by his wife and family.

A contract was signed this week for the building of a new parsonage, and work is expected to commence this month.

Mr. Ernest Wytin has returned home, after being confined to the hospital. We miss you, and it is our prayer that you shall recover quickly.

God is love, and God is faithful,
So in perfect peace I rest,
Though I cannot tell the reason,
I just trust, and so am blest!

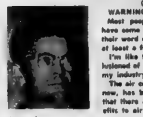
BRICK BLIMP

(By Bert Odland)



WARNING: This is a sad story!

Most people like to think that they have some influence on others . . . that their word carries some weight . . . that at least a few others listen.

I'm like that. But have become disillusioned of late. So here a few others in my industry.

The air conditioning industry for years now, has been trying to tell the public that there are a great many more benefits to air conditioning than just keeping cool.

By and large, this message has gone over like a brick blimp.

We say that air conditioning ends sticky humidity. We talk about less dirt in the house. We preach quietness. We expound health and allergy relief. We harp on sleeping better, eating better, entertaining better. We show how air conditioning makes pleasant, useful space out of dank, musty basements. We even touch a bit on snob appeal.

Yet many still think of air conditioning as plain old cold air . . . even unpleasant drafts. Well that just ain't true anymores with our new Lennox systems.

An extra car, swimming pool, vacation cottage . . . they're all fine. But control air conditioning costs far less and gives you much more comfort and pleasure day in and day out.

Thanks for listening to my sad story. Next time you see a brick blimp go over, think of me.

REVISED BIRD BOOK NOW AVAILABLE

The first revised edition, the second printing, of the popular book "Birds of Alberta" has been received and is being distributed by the Queen's Printer, Edmonton. It has been distributed to book dealers throughout Alberta, meeting book orders which have been standing for many months.

The revised edition offers some 80 new coloured photos illustrating the text written by Professor W. R. Salt of the University of Alberta, originally in collaboration with Mr. A. L. Wilk.

The popular text describes, in detail readily understandable by the layman, the appearance, habits and habitat of birds commonly found in Alberta. Another useful description in most cases is a full color photograph of the bird. Most of these were taken by the author, Mr. Cyril Hampson and Mrs. Kay Hodges.

The volume, which is priced at $5. is sold almost at cost and was a labor of love on the part of the painters and photographers. Birdwatchers of long standing attribute the growing numbers of their clan in Alberta to the volume.

A second volume, "Mammals of Alberta" was issued last year. It was prepared by J. Dewey Soper, LL.D.

The Public Is To Blame!

There is no reflection on our growing crime problem that is becoming more noticeable each year, and it is the fact that Parliament is endeavoring to correct the problem with more money and more laws. This is the wrong approach for the things that create the crime problem are already against the law, and the task of apprehending those who commit crimes is being done well. Our law enforcement agencies do a pretty good job of catching the majority of those who break the law. So it would appear that we have enough men and enough laws. The breakdown has come in our courts where a group of "misfits" are doing their very best to turn the nation over to the criminal elements of our society. Best judges and magistrates, and juries too, are but a reflection of the public will. Those who follow the workings of courts all too often see judges, magistrates and juries turn patently guilty people loose or reduce the charge, if they have a choice, to one of lesser seriousness, where a suspended sentence could be meted out, or a small fine imposed. So long as criminals can commit serious crimes and get away with a slap on the wrist, such crimes are bound to grow. The veneer of civilization on each of us is extremely thin, and most of us would succumb to our lusts and greeds if it were not for the fear of punishment. Judicial decisions that destroy punishment and the fear of punishment, helps to strip away more of that slim veneer. The courts are the weak link, and the courts are weak simply because they are the reflection of the misguided piety and the trend to simpering "forgiveness" that the majority of the public has, who have never suffered the direct and obnoxious breath of the criminal.

Those Work Stoppages!

Canada is again being plagued with work stoppages, strikes and threats of strikes, presently reaching the stage of a national calamity. It still holds true that nobody wins a strike, yet there are thousands who are willing to try and prove that this is not so. A summary of strikes and lockouts shows that there were more work stoppages during last April than in any of the three preceding months, with more workers involved and a greater time loss. There were 106 work stoppages during the month involving 50,288 workers, with a time loss of 441,180 man days. The situation today is far more threatening to the economy of the entire nation and some means of resolving the continual re-occurance of this annual headache must be found.

It is useless parade to harp on the fact that increased wages and added benefits are necessary to cope with the rising cost of living, for each boost in overhead forces another rise in the index. The cost of living index now stands at just over 143, a clear indication that labor and management should get together and conclude that a holding of the line would be to their mutual benefit. The Canadian consumer is well aware of this fact.

Farm Safety Essays!

The winners in the Alberta Safety Council's fifteenth annual Farm Safety Essay Contest, have just recently been announced. Believed to be one of Canada's largest literary competitions, there were this year over 48,000 entries. The 1966 subject for competition was Water Safety and the large volume of entries were received form all areas of the province. In the local school division, the winning entry for grades five and six was summitted by Ian Wellaman of Sedgewick Public School and for grades seven and eight, by Sharon Probst of Lougheed public school. Each of these winners will be awarded a prize constituting a permanent record of their achievement in the form of a special woodleaf plaque plus a lapel pin. The winning essays from these two students are reproduced elsewhere in this issue, and the Community Press extends its compliments to the writers in their accomplishment.

Canada Must Compete!

Concern is being felt in some areas of the country that Canada will be unable to compete in the foreign grain market if the present trends continue. Many countries of the world are in need of the wheat so abundantly produced in the West, and it is only natural that they will buy where the market has a "bearish" atmosphere. The U.S.A. is currently selling wheat on the foreign market below that asked by the Canadian exporters, and is grabbing some of the business traditionally Canadian. A recent 5c hike in the American price has eased the situation somewhat, but fear still prevails that Canada will lose business in this field unless she decides to meet the competition. Although it is conceded that Canadian wheat excells in some ways that produced by other countries, this excellence no longer has an advantage over price. If we are to continue to obtain new markets, and hold those we already have, we must meet competition on the world markets. It is of little concern to foreign buyers that our production costs are high and our transportation facilities inadequate. Their concern lies in the price, and it is here that we must compete if we want to do business.

If dogs could talk, they would not make good friends.

A man walked into an attorney's office and nervously sat down opposite the lawyer. He asked if he had grounds for divorce. "You married?" inquired the lawyer. The man nodded. "Of course" Then, was the answer, "you have grounds".

ABOUT MOST ANYTHING

by A.C.E.

Last Friday was Farmers Day, a holiday that has always seemed rather peculiar because the farmers hardly ever ceased their labours for the day. In fact over the years it has gotten so nobody seems to know for sure if it is a holiday or not. While the schools closed, most of the business places remained open as usual. This year was slightly different here as use it ruined on Farmers Day, cancelling a Little League Baseball Tournament, a number of picnics planned by various organizations, and probably other events I'm not aware of. But for farmers day is a spring that has been lacking in rain I can't think of a better thing to have happen Most of the farmers I saw on Friday were grinning from ear to ear and hadn't enjoyed THEIR day so much in years.

THE BAD WEATHER

Have you ever noticed that when the local rural fair are having about the weather, the city radio announcers may be bitterly complaining about how sury to cope with the rising cost of living, for each boost in overhead forces another rise in the index. The cost of living index now stands at just over 143, a clear indication that labor and management should get together and conclude that a holding of the line would be to their mutual benefit. The Canadian consumer is well aware of this fact.

In sunny, southern Alberta, where one of the main tourist attractions advertis ed is the amount of sunshine we have each year, it's a pity some broadcasters wouldn't remember that they'd soon be off the air if the farmers got less rain and the vacationers got any more sunshine.—Nanton News

CANADA'S WHEAT PICTURE

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimates that 29,618,000 acres will be sown to wheat in Canada this year. Of that total 23,709,000 acres will be seeded in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. All the rest of Canada will provide 540,000 acres to be seeded to the bread grain.

The province of Saskatchewan as the nation's wheat giant. Last year farmers there seeded 16,560,000 acres to wheat. This year they plan to increase that acreage by one million.

Alberta's wheat acreage is about one-third that of Saskatchewan. This year our farmers plan to seed 6,300,000 acres to wheat, up 150,000 acres from 1965.

Manitoba farmers plan to seed 3,370,000 acres to wheat this year as compared with 3,360,000 acres in 1965.

The use of wheat for human consumption in Canada is about 85 million bushels a year at the highest. Annual seeding needs average around 48 million bushels. If a crop is low grade quite a volume of wheat will be fed to livestock; industrial use takes up a considerable bushelage. So the total for domestic requirements will probably reach 250 million bushels at a high guess.

Last year wheat production totalled 670 million bushels and in 1954 it was 600 million bushels. Favorable weather during the growing season and an expanding use of commercial fertilizer resulted in record breaking crops. Large exports were needed to take care of the surpluses. Heavy demand from Soviet Russia and Red China have prevented surplus supplies piling up in Canadian elevators and granaries. —Brooks Bulletin.

★ MACDUFF OTTAWA REPORT

Quebec Clouds

OTTAWA—The results of the Quebec election didn't come as an absolute surprise to Ottawa. Polls and newspaper forecasts had warned of Jean Lesage's fading strength. But Federal politicians were surprised at the extent to which the embodiment of Quebec's quiet revolution, once thought unbeatable, was rejected by the voters.

It ended any talk of Lesage as a possible challenger for the Federal Liberal leadership. Behind some of the lamented Liberal faces there may have been a concealed satisfaction that the field had been reduced. As a possible leadership candidate, Jean Lesage had always been an unknown quantity, making it difficult to calculate the odds. Combined with the stand-off results in Prince Edward Island, the Quebec squeaker led to immediate forecasts that other provinces were starting to feel the weakness, born of indecision on the part of the public, that has long plagued Ottawa.

Quebec's Rene Levesque was quoted as saying that the days of big majorities was past. It may be true on the provincial front as well as the federal, voters feel they can't give their absolute confidence to one party or the other. They may want to balance one against the other.

The new man on Canada's national scene is Union Nationale leader Daniel Johnson, a 51-year-old lawyer who has been 20 years in politics and five years at the head of his Party.

In that time he has completely rebuilt the old Duplessis party by recruiting an attractive following of young candidates. When the Union Nationale fell from power in 1960, there were plenty of predictions that it would not survive. But Daniel Johnson and his men have put humpty-dumpty back again.

In the aftermath of the Quebec conquest, Ottawa is trying to assess Mr. Johnson and his intentions. In opposition and in the election campaign, he talked a more Quebec nationalist game than Mr. Lesage.

He has advocated scrapping the Bilingual and Bicultural Commission and starting all over again. He wants Quebec to take over 100 per cent of revenues from the personal income tax now shared with Ottawa—income tax, corporation tax and succession duties. Quebec now gets 67 percent of income tax, 24 per cent of corporation tax and 75 per cent of death duties.

On election night, Mr. Johnson may have been referring to this when he said Quebec should immediately exercise all its powers under the B.N.A. Act.

If he pursues this line, he will clash with the Federal Government. Ottawa has the right under the B.N.A. act to collect money by any means of taxation, including direct taxes.

And Ottawa doesn't intend to give up its rights.

Indications from Finance Minister Sharp are that he will take a tough line this Fall in fiscal negotiations with the Provincial Governments. He'll probably tell them that Ottawa has withdrawn all it intends to from the imposition of direct taxes to make room for the provinces.

If the provinces want more money. they will be invited to levy their own taxes and take responsibility for them.

Such a policy would hit hard at Quebec. One of the legacies of the Lesage Government of Quebec in 1966 is a fast rising cost of government. The government moved fast and far in education reform, road building, industrialization and other phases of the Quiet Revolution. But many of the voters knew these reforms only in terms of an increased tax bill and the provision of a better life bye — and — bye.

In this context, it is thought likely that any Quebec Government would have come to a clash with Ottawa. The lines have been hardening on both sides and had Mr. Lesage returned firmly in power, he would have had to ask for more money and Ottawa would have been almost certain to refuse. One silver lining in the Quebec clouds for Federal Liberals is that it's easier to say no to a political opponent then to somebody in the same political family.

Y..t to be assessed is the quality of Mr. Johnson's will and determination, always vital factors in negotiations between governments.

There was no doubt about Mr. Lesage's determination. About him there has been a touch of de Gaulle grandeur and arrogance, a kind of "Tetaie, c'est moi" certainty that had little patience with opposition, whether from Ottawa or within his own province

Mr. Johnson has been described as a mixture of drive and prudence. Editor Claude Ryan of Le Devoir, the Montreal morning daily, once called him "a curious mixture of realism and opportunism."

He has tended to make broad statements of principle over Quebec's rights and sovereignty, for example, but has avoided getting bogged down on the details so that observers are unsure what he really means. In government, he would be forced to get down to brass tacks

But those who have watched him warn against underrating Daniel Johnson. He is not a pale reincarnation of Maurice Duplessis. His Union Nationale is a new kind of party with internal democracy instead of the monolithic one-man rule of the Duplessis years.

His success in building this kind of party and using it to topple Lesage at Monday's election show him to be a clever and astute politician but how he uses his skill from now on is the question causing those puzzled frowns at Ottawa.

"Any luck?"

SUGAR AND SPICE

TWO WAYS OF LIFE

It seems to me that, despite the inroads made by easy communications and transportation, the ancient mistrust between rural dweller is still very much alive. Each feels that the other is out to skin him at the first opportunity. Each expresses it in scorn for the other's way of life.

"I wonder live the siddy if ya gimme the whole lousy mess on a silver platter," snarls your small town neighbor.

This statement, echoed from coast to coast, is usually followed by a bitter diatribe against "city living." High rents, crippling taxes, heavy traffic, smog and unfriendliness come under the gun. Cost of living draws comments like, "Costs ya a buck every time ya blow your nose."

And what does the smug suburbanite think of the country? "Ye, I KNOW it's okay in the summer up north there, but weddaya do all WINTER in that dump?" There's no use in pointing out that you do exactly what he does: work, play, bring up your family, try to pay your bills, and get as soon old, as late as smart.

On most matters, I take a stand. Not in the denunciation of the other fellow's mode of life, I take two stands.

The first is gentle agreement with my smallTown friends. I go along with the belligerent argument that the city is no place to live, that I'd hate to battle their traffic everyday; that living is cheaper in smaller centre; that our air is a lot cleaner; that it's wonderful to live within five minutes of fishing, curling, golf and friends.

And when I'm listening to some old buddy who lives in the city and loves it, I nod sagely when he declares the city is an exciting place to live; that it's wonderful to take in all the shows and concerts; that it's grand to go out for an exotic meal in a fascinating place, with go-go girls and stuff; that the small town doesn't provide the same cultural opportunities for your kids.

Privately, I chuckle at both points of view. Both are full of contradictions.

The city fellow claims there's no privacy in a small town. Every old biddy in town knows your business. The smalltown chap explains, "Privacy! Here you can have privacy in the city when you're stuffed like a crowded apartment building, or living on a two-by-four lot beside people you don't like who have horrible kids?"

The smalltown fellow raves about the myth-ial "cultural" in the city. And goes on and roars around in service clubs and fraternal organizations and solidly supports the local church groups at a rate no city rat could stand for a month.

The myths multiply. The city stands for culture. And in a city of a million, theatres are half empty, concerts play to small crowds, good restaurants go broke, a few hundred attend art exhibitions.

The small town stands for recreation and good living. And in a small town, one-tenth of two per cent of the population is revelling in their fishing, hunting and so on that's at the front door. The rest are doing what the city folk do: drink, close women or men, or sit around watching the slop on the movies and TV.

When we drive to the city, as we do almost every Saturday for the daughter's music lesson, the whole business is brought into perspective for me, on the unlikely site of a four-lane highway.

Down to the city, on one stream, pour the thousands of smalltown folk going in for a day to shop, take in a show, suck up some fast culture.

Up from the city, in the other stream, pour the thousands of people going north for the ahhing of the fishing or the outrunning or the scenery.

They don't even wave to each other. If it's so great an home, why don't they stay there?

And do you know what they say when they get home after the weekend? "Boy, it's nice to be home. It was a great weekend, but I sure wooden wanna live in this (city-country)." Please underline the right word.

NEW PUBLICATION ON CHEMICAL WEED CONTROL

Every Alberta Farmer using selective herbicides for weed control should have a copy of the new publication, "Chemical Weed Control in Field Crops", just released by the Alberta Department of Agriculture.

The concise and comprehensive pamphlet discusses the older as well as the newest selective herbicides registered for use on crops in this province. It outlines the safe and effective use of each, giving recommended rates and application times in addition to information on the susceptibility of the various broad-leaved weeds to these chemicals.

One section of special interest deals with the relatively new combination herbicides. They include dicamba plus 2,4-D plus MCPP (Banvel D) and bromoxynil plus MCPA (Buctril M). recommended for controlling buckwheats, smartweed and broadleaved annuals in wheat crops. Certain varieties of wheat are tolerant to the new herbicides and can be used alone. The use of a mixture containing LV2,4-D (Estaprop), also recommended for the selective control of broad-leaved weeds, are outlined.

Under the section dealing with wild oat control, several herbicides are mentioned including Avadex and Carbyne. Chemical control of green foxtail in certain crops with TCA and dalapon is also discussed.

Copies of "Chemical Weed Control in Field Crops — 1966" can be obtained from your District Agriculturist, Art Edwards.

THE CONTROL OF GREEN FOXTAIL IN ALBERTA

The new publication outlining the control of green foxtail in Alberta has just been released by the Provincial Department of Agriculture.

It discusses both cultural and chemical methods including cropping practices, cultivations, fallow and the proper use of TCA and dalapon on a number of crops.

According to Alberta's Supervisor Weed Control with the Plant Products Division, W Lobay, green foxtail (also known as wild millet and pigeon grass) has been spreading throughout the province in recent years it is now a serious problem in a number of areas in the east-central and irrigation regions.

The publication "Control of Green Foxtail in Alberta", is available from your District Agriculturist.

Centennial Report

1867 1967 by JOHN W. FISHER CENTENNIAL COMMISSIONER

Report No. 4

Before the end of this year a full-length Canadian feature film will be released to Great Britain, the United States and other countries. It is certain to encourage people to visit our country during the 1967 Centennial.

The film, called Helicopter Canada, an hour-long Panavista production for wide screens, will be shown on our own cinemas during 1967.

Helicopter Canada is the first full length moving picture feature to be made entirely from a helicopter-in-flight anywhere in the world. It is an exciting coast-to-coast colour sweep of Canada — its geography, its wildlife, its people and ways of life. It is being produced by the National Film Board of Canada for and with the aid of the Centennial Commission. Peter Jones is the producer and George Salverson is the script writer. The director-cameraman is Eugene "Jeep" Boyko of the National Film Board staff who had some interesting experiences filming this project across Canada from the open door of a helicopter.

Boyko was born in Saskatoon, has been a dishwasher, shipyard worker, private chauffeur in various parts of the country and he was a country-and-western singer in Saskatoon in 1937 when a broadcaster named Jack Wells tagged him with his nickname, Jeep, after a comic-strip creature.

In the 40's Boyko was a taxi driver in Vancouver when a passenger went on vacation leaving her camera in the cab. He used it to shoot a traffic accident and sold the pictures to a local paper for $5. This sent him into photography and he wound up at the National Film Board in 1951. Boyko's home, when he gets there, is in Lorraine, Quebec; he has a wife, one daughter, 10, and one son, 3.

By means of Jeep Boyko's camera, background narration, dialogue and sound effects, the viewer in the cinema audience will be making a trip across the country, discovering Canada as though he were in that helicopter. The copter, de r i n g shooting, was able to get as close to the face of anything as its blades permitted and hovered from six to 660 feet.

Boyko spent more than a year on the filming — a good deal of the time 500 feet up in the air, crash helmet on head, hanging out the side of a French-built turbine helicopter (the Alouette). In one year he shot 40,000 feet of film and travelled from Ireland to Victoria. An anti-vibration mount for the camera was a French-made unit, first used in the making of the French films "The Red Balloon" and "Voyage in a Balloon". It permits a picture while hovering vibration is eliminated as thus clever device

In Toronto Boyko hovered a few feet above Nathan Phillips Square for a dramatic view of the new elam-shell city hall. He caught the Old Fort Henry Guard, at Kingston, doing its drill

The helicopter camera shot the convoluted tubing and towers of a vast oil refinery complex at Edmonton, paddle wheelers, rising new buildings in western cities, the lush North Saskatchewan River Valley; in Montreal the helicopter made forays around the new skyscrapers; in Saskatchewan it caught a fast-moving freight train travelling through a Prairie town, a truck leaving a high dust plume behind it, down a road to a lone elevator standing stark against the prairie horizon.

In Newfoundland the camera made contact with a lighthouse keeper and a ship's skipper seeking guidance into the harbor thus symbolizing the entry to Canada through her most eastern gateway.

The film's viewers will have the sensation of being virtually on the surface of the gorge beneath the Honeymoon Bridge at Niagara Falls, and being on a slow trip straight up the face of the bridal veil falls almost at arms length. They will "ride the back, of a deer in flight, peek into the windows of Montreal skyscrapers and experience the sight and sound of stenographers at their work and stock-brokers in action. They will view skiers and mountain climbers, wheat farmers, miners and prospectors, lumbermen, seemingly-fire-precipitous, football clubs, outdoor activities of various ethnic groups and of the first Canadians — the Indians.

Don't miss Helicopter Canada when it comes to your area in 1967.

plems eligible for subsidy was discussed with him, and he indicated that a survey might be undertaken by his Assn. providing the M. D. is willing to bear a share of the costs. He is to work out the estimates and advise the council later

Mr Harbridge of MacGregor Construction and Mr Thompson of Alberta Telephones met with council concerning the culverts being repaired by them due to damage by the buried cable installations.

Budget and Mill Rates

The 1966 budget was presented to council for review, and it was shown that requisitions received for school, hospital, health unit and Flagstaff Foundation would require an increase in the mill rate to raise them as well as for the M.D. Medical Scheme. On the basis of the estimates the overall mill rate in '66 would be as follows:

Killam School Division 76, an increase of 1; Killam Separate School 79, increase of 1; Forestburg Consolidated School District 85, a decrease of 2. Viking Hospital District 79, no change. Pipeline, Powerline and Telephones 71.80, same.

The 1966 budget represents a decrease of 1.19 mills for municipal purposes, an increase of .10 mills for the School Foundation program, .04 mills for the Alberta Hospitals Act, 1 mill for the M. D. Medical Scheme, .02 mills for the Flagstaff Lodge and, .03 mills for the Health Unit. The overall mill rate has been increased by 1 mill in the Killam School Division, 2 mills in the Separate School and has been reduced by 2 mills in Forestburg Consolidated School District.

The 1966 tax notices will be mailed on or before Sept. 1st and must be paid on or before October 31st in order to earn the discount. For the convenience of ratepayers the discounts have been pro-calculated & deducted from the 1966 taxes. Figure shown in the net amount due on the notice in the 1966 tax, plus the arrears if any, less the discount.

By-law No. 258 authorizing the various mill rates for the year 1966 was passed with three readings.

Mr. Fardoe reported that he had checked the items requested by Dr. Myles re the residence in Galahad, and advised council that a quote had been repaired and that the remaining items would cost: Interior Painting $250, Fencing Yard $300 to $325, Connection to the Propane Furnace $250.

Prices previously approved for resale of weed chemical to farmers was discussed. It was stated that the Assn. of M. D's. had received complaints that the price set was too low and that Chemical Supply Co. say if it is maintained the result would be no other dealer could compete at the low price. It was moved that the prices set should be increased by 15c a gallon.

Letter from the Minister of Transport for Canada advised that engineers from the Board would inspect the crossing at Daysland and that they would advise further of time and date of inspection.

It was agreed to provide coffee for the adults and pop for children at a Horseshoe Field Day June 8.

A letter was received from the Village of Forestburg together with a revised agreement in connection with the Centennial Grants for the purpose of changing the program from a Park to a Swimming Pool. The Reeve had signed the agreement and it had been returned to the Village. The action of the Sec. and the Reeve was approved.

The CNR advised that if council had no objection it was their intention to retire the station house and remove it from the railroad property in Galahad. The council replied that it had no objection.

Letters were reviewed from the AGT re the buried cable program.

It was moved and passed that the S. E. of 6-46-14 be leased to Herman Rawe of Strome, to April 1, 1967.

A grant of $10,000 is also forthcoming for re-construction of District Highway 29/M north of Town of Daysland.

Offers were received from Parkland Lumber Ltd. on two houses 24 x 34 erected as per specifications and price for the sum of $6,900.00 each. and on arch rib type grader sheds as per plans at $2,310. Parkland Lumber is to be instructed to erect a master grader shed on the shop site at a compliance as the S W of 33-49-11 at the quoted price.

ED LAUGHLIN:

Four years have passed since that sad day,
What would we give if we could say
We'll go and see our dad father today.
To see his face and see his smile.
To sit and talk with him awhile.
But you have lost and God has gained
The best husband and father this world contained.

Water Safety In The Home

(By Sharon Probst, Lougheed)

Home child drownings occur in the home almost all of these accidents result from lack of adult supervision. People don't seem to realize that small children can drown in just two or three inches of water. The following incident relates how this can happen.

Laura Brown gave an exasperated sigh as, for the fifth time that morning, the doorbell rang. She thought to herself, "Whoever that is can just wait until I get little Sue out of the bathtub." But the ringing persisted, so finally Laura decided that she had better go downstairs to see who it was.

"Now you be good while Mommy is gone." Laura told her one-year-old daughter Sue. "Here, play with your duck."

The doorbell rang again, and quickly Laura ran down the stairs, leaving Sue happily paddling about in the tub. When she opened the door, Laura found that her caller was a salesman.

"Hello Madam," he said politely, stepping inside the door. "I am a salesman for Wiggly Toys Inc. Would you like to see a catalogue illustrating our product?" The salesman began taking things out of his case and setting them on the table.

"Oh, no!" Laura thought, "I'll never get Susie bathed."

Meanwhile, Sue was growing tired of playing with her duck. Her short eyes spotted a bright cake of soap sitting on the edge of the tub. In reaching for it she slipped and fell, knocking her head on the tub. There she lay, unconscious, with her face in the water.

When Laura finally managed to get rid of the salesman, she rushed upstairs to get Sue out of the tub. As she entered the bathroom, she saw Sue lying where she had fallen. Frantically, Laura applied artificial respiration but it was too late. Sue had drowned.

Laura Brown learned the hard way that it doesn't pay to leave small children alone in water. Won't you take a lesson from this sad incident and practice water safety rules?

Lifejackets Important For Water Safety

(By Ian Wellman, Sedgewick)

Lily, Leonard and Lawrence lifejackets, had been reclining lazily in a musty old cupboard at the boat house all winter. The warmth of the summer sun had made them very restless and they were wanting to be useful again. Lily wanted to display her beautiful orange colour. Lawrence and Leonard wanted to show how necessary they were.

One bright, summer morning the cupboard door opened and a boatman took them out to a boat. How good the fresh air smelled! How bright the sun was.

They were thrown into a boat and three men came along to rent it. How proud Lily felt when she was tied on by one of the fishermen I wonder if they can hear the proud chest of the though of being useful again. Poor Lawrence lay in the bottom of the boat, covered by a boating fisherman who thought nothing could happen to him. He was such a good swimmer! Lifejackets were for children'

The fishermen rowed out into the middle of the lake. The day was sunny and calm. Lily and Leonard felt sad because Lawrence had been forsaken.

The men had been fishing for some time when suddenly a squall came up and without warning the boat capsized. Lily and Leonard played their part and kept the men afloat. The drowning fisherman cried frantically and kept finally let go. Clinging to the overturned boat he prayed that aid would arrive in time. His companions floated nearby. The life guard seeing the plight of the fishermen hurried to the scene and picked them up. Lawrence who was bobbing close by was tossed into the boat. The boastful fisherman was shivering, his face pale with fright. Silence reigned.

The men realized that the foolish fisherman would never again need reminding of the importance of wearing a life jacket when in a

DIRTY, ISN'T IT?

Dirty stories have no place in this column. But this one is different. It's a clean dirty story. It's about the air we live in.

By their own admission, the Russians have not caught up to us in one department. That is the Soup-And-Polluted-Air Department. They don't want do catch up either.

Can't blame them, because dirty, polluted air is a real problem. It's a threat to the health of men and machines. It obscures the scenery. It's sometimes kind of smelly, too.

(The white collar workers of America fear suffocation. They will soon be the gray collar workers . . . a terrific blow to the status seeker.)

May I offer a glimmer of hope through the grimy gloom? How would you like to have a little oasis of clear, clean, fresh, sparkling air all your very own? You can have it the year around . . . right in your own home!

Our Lennox heating and air conditioning systems clean the air in your home. They filter it once, twice, many times a day, of course, control the temperature and humidity to your complete satisfaction, too).

If you are a real hog for cleanliness, we'll add the Lennox electronic air cleaner to the system . . . it even removes the tiny tell-tale found in tobacco smoke, pollen and all that there kind of stuff. Folks with hay fever say it's the greatest thing since Kleenex.

Add your own personal ending to this dirty story. See us soon about Lennox air conditioning and / or heating with its wonderful air cleaning feature.

Fire Fighting Equipment Discussed By Council

The postponed regular meeting of the Council of M. D. Flagstaff was held in the Board Room of Sedgewick on June 10th with the council members all in attendance.

The minutes of the last meeting, as well as the financial statement, were presented and passed.

Mr. W MacKay, Deputy Fire Commissioner, and Mr. R. Boland, Inspector, met with council and discussed fire equipment suitable for rural fire fighting They advised that tankers capable of handling 1500 gallons of water had been investigated and quotations on numbers with an equipment ran from $10,000 to $12,000 They also advised that a standard fire attack equipped for rural service would cost between 12 and 13 thousand. It was their opinion that 500 gallons of water used properly would control a fire in a two-storey house A list of the equipment is to be furnished to be used as a basis for tenders. Council agreed to take the matter under consideration later.

Mr de Grent of the UGG Insurance Agencies met with council and reviewed policies held by them in the municipality He recommended a flexiod policy be taken out on all the District's heavy equipment The council did not agree that this was necessary in view of the recent

The policy covering all buildings owned by the M. D was reviewed, and coverage of the office and shop was increased, including coverage in contents in the shop to take care of equipment which might be there undergoing repairs.

M D Constable Paul Vandervaude met with council and discussed the request of Carson Trans-port to have his ticket issued their driver in April withdrawn, and to be cleared as a warning only Constable Vandervaude stated he had 2 ways of handling it, either drop the violation charge or press it. In view of what he considered a misunderstanding he recommended that the charge be withdrawn. It was decided by council that the ticket be regarded as a warning only.

Council would not agree with the proposal to increase weight loads on certain roads. He also suggested the erection of a jail cell in the office basement and allowing the reduction of a lawyer, and co-ordination of a by-law within the M.D on police work with radio equipment to facilitate the work.

It was later decided to request the town of Sedgewick to erect a jail in their fire hall which would be available for rent to the M D

Letter from the Town of Hardisty informed that Paul Vandervaude had been hired as town constable to July 9th, 1966, under conditions as set out by the M. D.

The Known History Of Fairdonian Valley UFWA

MODERN CANADIAN. The studio of sculptor Gerald Gladstone, showing some of his work in the background for these two creations designed by his wife, Sheila Gladstone. The party jumpsuit, left, is made of strawberry parfait silk jersey and zips up the front. The turquoise silk jersey pantsuit, right, has a halter top and bare back.

The early history of Fairdonian Valley U.F.W.A. is rather obscure, all local records having been lost. There are four survivors of the original members, who were residents of the Fairgrove, Caledonia and Green Valley school districts and hence the name, Fairdonian Valley, suggested by Miss Winnie Blackett and adopted by the members.

The year the local group was organized was probably 1916, as one of the early members says that in that year, remembering that an organization meeting was convened when news of Lord Kitchener's death came over the telephone, whereupon the meeting was adjourned to a later date. The majority of the original members were, for the most part, C.P.R. settlers from England and Scotland.

To the best of our knowledge, Mrs. J. L. Sparrow was the first president, with vice-president sister Mrs. F. W. Smith or Mrs. E. Bessette and Miss Winnie Blackett as secretary. Succeeding presidents remembered were Mrs. W. Hallum, Mrs. Smith, and Mrs. Sowsnell also acted as secretary for different periods.

Among the members were women of much talent who made valuable contributions to the community which they lived and to the organization. A special mention to Mrs. R. Bergum who was the first woman in the district. She came from Medford, N. Dakota, in 1904, as a bride of 18 with her husband to a homestead in the Fairgrove district. They travelled by team and wagon to their new home a distance of over eighty miles. Many quilts were made at the Bergum home to aid the U.F.W.A. Mrs Bergum being an expert quilter Mrs. E. Sowsnell came with her family from Cirencester, England to the Sedgewick District in 1911. Formerly a teacher, she was the U.F.W.A Director for Camrose in 1918. The Sowsnell family moved to Kelowna, B.C., in 1925, where she and her husband were active in the political life of that province. Mrs. Sowsnell is still living in Kelowna. The W. Hallam family came to the Fairgrove district in 1911 from Kippen, Stirlingshire, Scotland. Mrs. Hallam was a past director of the U.F.W. A. from 1949 to 1954; also also took an active part in the work of her church and was well known for her kindness and skill in time of sickness and trouble. She continued as an staunch supporter of the U.F.W.A. until her passing in 1954.

The Smith family also arrived in the Fairgrove district in 1911, coming form Garforth, Korkshire, England Mrs. Smith was elected by the committee of the U.F.W.A. Board to represent the Social Service League in 1930 and was convenor of the social service committee from 1931 to 1934. A splendid neighbor, interested in church work, Mrs. Smith and her family moved to Sedgewick, B.C., in 1938, and she now lives in retirement in Vancouver.

One of the first members of the local was Mrs. J Kinrose of Green Valley, mother of Mrs. Harrison. She was won the Victoria Cross at Passchendeale in 1917 for conspicuous bravery in the field of battle.

Mrs. Thos. Heath, also from England, settled in the Green Valley district; a gifted pianist, she was a valuable asset to the entertainments for miles around. Mrs A. D. Carmichael, who came to Fairgrove from Olsen. Argylesbire in 1911 was another member who added much to the pleasure of local gatherings. She had a fine voice, and delighted many a meeting and concert with her singing of old Scottish songs accompanied on the piano by her daughter. Madelaine. Mrs. E. C. Hooper and Mrs. W. Curtis were also active members, both were from England, and Miss Elsie Hallum, one of the original members, is today the only remaining link with first Fairdonian Valley U.F.W.A.

This is just a small tribute to the many enthusiastic women who pioneered the U.F.W.A. local, an organization which has continued actively and with sustained interest in all phases of rural life.

H. & S. Convention Held

The convention of Area No 8 of the Alberta Federation of Home and School Associations was held on Saturday in the Castor school auditorium. Chairman for the Convention was Area Director Mr. Stewart of Acadia Valley, who introduced the principal speaker, Mr. E. Glasser, Vice-president of the Federation of Home and schools. Mr. Glasser explained the revised objectives of the Association. Formerly the association had been divided into three sections headed by appointed director's. In 1965 the association was re-divided into 13 areas with directors elected at the local convention, thus giving improved representation to the locals. This directorate is elected for a two year term, is a voting member of the provincial board of directors and has to assist them, as appointed board representing each division or area up to the area.

Mr. Glasser's address was followed by the election of an area director for area No 8. Mrs. E. Carscallen, Killam was elected to this position. Following coffee break. Mrs. Bohmer, Bawlf, outlined the resolutions which will be presented and voted on at the provincial convention in Calgary, June 9, 10, 11. Two of the more interesting of these concerned the proposed financial changes. (1) In place of the present membership fees and per capita tax the provincial board would assess each area for the funds necessary to cover operating costs. Each area in turn would assess the individual locals. The locals would be free to collect their assessment as they saw fit. (2) The no-commercial claims would be deleted, thus permitting locals to have money raising functions. It would also permit the association to accept donations from commercial firms wishing to sponsor Home & School backed projects such as survey's. Other resolutions dealt with government grants for school equipment, especially scientific; increased library facilities, space and staff; increasing school time allowed for physical education, and safety.

Mr. Glasser then outlined the duties of an area Director Mrs. Carscallen whose area No. 6 runs from the Killam School Division on the North to the county of Drumheller on the South, and includes 50 locals. It will be responsible for area conventions. Area training centers as desired by these locals. She will assist in organizing or re-organizing locals and acts as a go-between for locals with provincial board.

The afternoon concluded with a general discussion on ways and means of improving our local associations

Weekly Devotion

In recent months much publicity has been given to a statement made by a theologian that God is dead. This is a terrible declaration to make because it is the insidious falsehood of all time. There could never be a greater cause of confusion and hopelessness that this false statement.

The bad-rock of hope and faith in the reality of a living God who guides and guards all those who trust Him. Many people have found in time of desperate and supreme need, only an Almighty God, eternally alive, could possibly supply an answer.

The reason that this statement of the death of God was made, and then was repeatedly published is that the men responsible are themselves dead to God. Anyone with an open mind and heart can experience personal contact with the living God by accepting Jesus Christ as Son whom God Himself raised out of death to the power of an endless life.

FOR UNMARRIEDS. Mrs. A. F. W. Plompins of Toronto, elected president of the Consumers' Association of Canada, said young unmarried persons should be told how to use contraception as part of their sex education in home and in school. A brief, based on a resolution adopted by delegates from across Canada, urged the Canadian Health Committee in Ottawa to make the sale of contraceptives legal.

The Bible tells us that men's hearts are failing them for fear in looking after those things which are coming on the earth. Certainly a realistic look at the terrible nuclear weapons and their insertation a ction of the World would give due cause for fear. Yet a far greater fear would result if humanity were convinced by godless men that God is indeed dead.

However, as the Apostle Paul said! "Thanks be unto God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." Christian missionaries in the Congo who suffered persecution and death in 1963 gave testimony of God's power ruling providence in protecting other members of their families in miraculous ways. Though the Arm Inctions of Ecuador murdered five missionaries in 1956 the testimony of their wives was "This God is our God forever and ever and He will be our guide even unto death". How can God be dead when He Himself broke the power of death by the resurrection of His Son Jesus Christ?—Rev. W. Sipke.

North Alta. Hereford Tour Set For July 9th

SEDGEWICK — Final arrangements are all but completed for the annual Northern Alberta Hereford Tour, which this year takes place on Saturday, the 9th of July.

This large and growing event which is becoming more popular each year, will get under way at 9:00 a.m. with a coffee and doughnut party in the Town of Sedgewick. The affair is expected to draw some 400 plus ranch owners, and other interested people and guests.

From Sedgewick, following the coffee party, visits will be made to five of the local purebred Hereford ranches, with the lunch hour being held at the Lon Berg Ranch. You are asked to bring your own picnic lunch, while coffee and refreshments will be provided.

During the afternoon 4-H judging Competitions will be held during the visit to the W. T. Leslie Ranch, at which time there will also be a coffee break.

There will be an ice cream van in attendance at all stops during the tour to satisfy the appetites of children and adults alike

To cap off the day the tour will wind up in the evening back at Sedgewick, where a giant Barbecue will be held at the Recreational Centre at 7:00 p.m. The barbecue will be served by members of the Sedgewick Board of Trade, and will feature top quality barbecued meat of you know what brand.

The day, sponsored by the Northern Alberta Hereford Club, will also feature special attractions and entertainment during the afternoon tour.

Tea & Sale At F.B.A. Hospital

KILLAM—A huge success describe the Tea, Bingo and Sale held at the Flagstaff Reaver Auxiliary Hospital on Saturday, June 25th. Hundreds of friends and relatives of the patients attended.

The articles accumulated in Arts and Crafts department were arranged and displayed in a pleasing array by patients and Staff. A preview showing of their efforts was enjoyed by the patients earlier in the day. During the afternoon activities they mingled with the large group and thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

The tea was sponsored by the Killam Hospital Auxiliary while the Bingo was conducted by the Strome Hospital Aid.

Mrs. Helen Easdly was the lucky winner of the rug while Mrs. Melodee was the door prize, a floral wood craft

The Activities Program provides therapy conducive to a feeling of usefulness and well being so much needed in the aging. The department conducted by Mr. Joe Gramlick with the Assistance of Mrs Maud Koelzer, a qualified Occupational Therapist is considered by surveyors the best in the Province. Much credit goes to many people who have brought ideas and supplies to the project. A new project is the goal for each new year. A small lapidarium should prove of real interest to the patients when crafts resume in August.

Bring Back The Willow Switch?

Well! Well! We do not like the term, "I told you so". But nevertheless we did tell you, a long time ago.

"Contrary to the assumption that children gain satisfaction from 'acting out' impulsively, children actually become less satisfied and more impulsive when permissive, loosely structured conditions prevail."

This is the conclusion of over 100 authorities on the questions of the problems of children. It is a conclusion that is typical of studies being reported by professionals, and trade journals. But it is bewildering that these recurring themes should sound like something that could have been found in the abodes of the cave men. "Children need limits; children need controls; children need controls set by adults." Well of course they do, and we don't need to spend thousands of dollars to have somebody tell us so.

The writings of John Dewey influenced a whole generation in the approach to child rearing and teaching, and he made a valuable contribution and reaction to rigidity toward children. Now the problem is in reverse. A whole generation of parents and teachers must learn how to set firm but not punitive controls over children. Evidence mounts that the problems of delinquency and disturbance we face today, result from a misuse of the concept of freedom for children. The task is to re-establish adult authority, starting with the nursery, the kindergraten and playroom. The switch is sometimes a good persuander.

Your Board Of Trade!

One of the better duties that a citizen can perform is to be an active member of the Board of Trade in his town or city. There are close to 1,000 communities in Canada which have a Board of Trade, or a Chamber of Commerce if you prefer, and it is a tribute to our democratic way of life that we as Canadians have the freedom to form such voluntary organizations as this in each of our towns. But how lightly do we accept this? It is estimated that over 125,000 Canadians in every area across the nation devote time, energy, effort and money to carry on organized efforts designed to make our communities better places in which to live, work and play. But there are also many thousands who take no part at all, and are content to sit to one side and reap whatever benefits are produced for them.

It is our conviction that a Board of Trade member, is first of all a good citizen. He is probably also a good neighbor, and is considerate of others. He sets aside part of his time and effort in working for his neighbors in making his community a better place. He takes an active part along with his neighbors in attempting to make the government of his community function efficiently.

The active member of a Board of Trade is a good person to have in the community. He is working as much for you as he is for himself. Are you an active member? If not, why not. It's a good idea. Think it over.

Knowledge Is A Shifting Thing!

In a very few days from now grade 12 students will be leaving the schools. Some will go on to further knowledge in places of learning, but many will enter the business and labor stream of the nation. It is not unusual too, that many below the grade 12 level will be swallowed up by labor and industry. It is these latter who will be facing a world much different from that faced by their parents. The problems of today which prevail across the world will be their's to solve. High among these are poverty, racial integration, atomic warfare. The solutions to these are presently being sought through enlightened councils affecting great masses of people. But the remaining questions are: How do you mobilize knowledge? How do you institute new social policies? Present day activities fail to a great extent to give the answer. Unless the young people can come up with better solutions, we are in for a long period of frustration.

Isn't it fair to say that our age is distinctive in its concern for social questions of a completely new magnitude? Is the sociologist going to become the professional who must lead us to the solutions? We are today in the age of the psychologist and the psychiatrist. We have been seeking answers to our problems from these professionals who perhaps see us better than we see ourselves. But in spite of all this we haven't found the solutions to our problems.

Old-fashioned solutions have been lost in today's excitement about new knowledge of the social and psychological nature of man. Wave after wave of new knowledge is the pattern of man's history. Each new form of knowledge is soon replaced. Or at least supplemented by the next. But this is no reason for despair. We do not need to feel that problems will always keep ahead of the solutions. We feel this way because we have been captivated by every new knowledge. As new waves of knowledge sweep over us, our job is to keep our heads and try to understand what is happening and relate to what has happened before.

This only means that the answer to the problems identified at the beginning of this article, is not just social, emotional, physical or spiritual. The answer, as graduating young people will learn, is a combination of human experience and knowledge. The task of education is to gain new knowledge and relate it to that which earlier generations have learned.

Mr. Percy Baker who farmed for many years down towards Alliance dropped in to renew his subscription and give us a run down on his past years activities. Percy now lives in Vancouver. The past winter he travelled throughout most the Western United States and is now visiting in this area for a few weeks. When talking to Percy I always get the feeling that here is a man who really enjoys life and the things he does. He fairly bubbles with enthusiasm.

With summer and the warm weather it is the time for picnics. On a recent picnic one of the items served was Pork and Beans, an old standby. It suddenly occured to me that the name was misleading because there was about as much Pork as there is silver in the lining of those rain clouds overhead. I can vividly recall a day when you did occasionally find a piece of pork among the beans but in a recent can all I found was two chunks of fat with just the slight est hint of meat.

In the Edmonton Journal on Wednesday evening a week ago there was a large picture and story on the work being done in Edmonton with low vision children by Miss Gene Abbott. Gene is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Abbott of Sedgewick where she grew up and attended school. After attending University Gene taught here before going to Edmonton. Not content to leave her studies just the ordinary courses of instruction she is studying Braille so she will be able to assist her classes even more. It appears that Gene is doing well in her chosen profession.

Last Thursday evening the Sedgewick Oilers travelled to Strome to help the Strome players initiate their new baseball diamond. The complete diamond and outfield with a drain pipe and heavy wire mesh fence and when the infield is finally completed it will be one of the best in the country. Many hours of hard work has the new baseball park and the people involved must be well pleased with the results.

Several weeks ago the editor of the Community Press wrote an editorial entitled, "How To Beat Estate Tax!" It drew more than the usual number of comments from local readers but reaction from afar was really a surprise. It was reported in several Alberta Weekly Newspapers and a number of comments were received including one from an executive of a Life Insurance Co. in Calgary. It seems that the newspaper reaches into more corners of the Province that we knew.

WIDEN THE HORIZONS

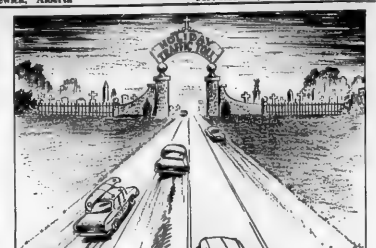
One of the worst features of Communist supremacy is the development of slavish devotion which civil servants develop in their own special departmental interests.

This devotion becomes too frequently propagandist by a narrow parochial outlook . . . a failure to-see-the-forest-for-the-trees attitude which leads to stodgy thinking and stereotyped decisions. With the growing generation of government agencies in all lines of commerce, vision is needed — and narrow thinking.

In the States, the federal government is aware of this danger, and is taking steps to encourage transfer of top civil servants from one department to another. Seminars for government officials are being arranged so that they can meet with businessmen. There, later and fishing groups and so widen their horizons as to needs of the general public.

Our government should carefully follow the results of these experimental actions in the States.

Any civil service whose members are long in office and powerful in a small domain has a tendency to develop inbred ideas which soon become accepted as basic policy . . . . and this is as true in Canada as it is in the States. —Lacombe Globe.



★ MACDUFF OTTAWA REPORT

Life With Lester

OTTAWA — Some of those tough minded, sophisticated Liberals who feel they are born to govern have apparently decided that life with Lester isn't so bad after all.

Just a few months ago it was not hard to find Liberals who said Lester Pearson should quit as Prime Minister and leader of the party.

They said he and Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker were out of another age, embroiled in a private feud that had little to do with the problems of government at Canada. Now it's a different story. Top Liberal candidates see Mr. Pearson's job are tripping over their own feet in a frantic race to boost their leader.

This has been such an obvious and deliberate development that it's even earned itself a name. Newsmen around Ottawa are calling it "The Beaver Lester Club". First it was Transport Minister Pickersgill in Newfoundland a few weeks ago, who told his audience that Mike was the man for the Liberals.

Stories that Mr. Pearson should resign, said Mr. Pickersgill were nothing more than a dirty plot by the Conservatives to demoralize the Liberals and divert attention from their own leadership problems.

Then Health Minister MacEachen joined the club in a speech in Ontario. He heaped praise on the Prime Minister, and said he would go down in history as the right man at the right time for Canadian Confederation.

In the House of Commons a few days later, Finance Minister Sharp, one of the main contenders for leadership of the party, put his heart on his sleeve.

"I, for one, and I know that I speak for all members on this side of the House, hope that Prime Minister Pearson remains as leader of this party as long as he has the strength and patience to continue," said Mr. Sharp.

"There will never be a revolt in this party designed to unseat him," added Mr. Sharp, with a meaningful glance in Mr. Diefenbaker's direction.

"Whenever the party of which you are the leader gets into difficulties faced with serious divisions within its ranks, it then engages in the nice little game of trying to create troubles in other parties," Mr. Sharp told Mr. Diefenbaker.

The Liberal rumblings of a few months ago may now be attributed to a dark Conservative plot, but not very convincingly. The fact is that in March, when the Victor Spencer and the Gerin Monsinger cases were boiling, many a pure Liberal wanted to ditch the leader.

Now there is a campaign, led by the faithful and followed by the not so faithful, to build up the leader.

The campaign has worked well, too well in the view of some Liberals who would rather like to be leader of the party and the Prime Minister of the country.

The campaign came along at a time when Mr. Pearson was distinguishing himself in a number of different ways, and was earning new credit even without the help of his supporters.

At the same time some heavy pressures were removed from him. at least temporarily, by the defeat of the Lesage Government in Quebec.

Jean Lesage is a Liberal and Lester Pearson is a Liberal. But rather than creating a bond of co-operation between Quebec and Ottawa, that fact created inflated savery difficulties and tensions for Mr. Pearson.

Those who are close to him have noticed in recent days that he has been more relaxed and confident than he has been, in all probability, since he became the Prime Minister His top ministers are supporting him wholly, he doesn't have to worry about Jean Lesage, and it's still too early to know how much he'll have to worry about the new Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson

The Commons has been moving fairly efficiently. The Opposition hasn't been able to nail him effectively on anything. He seems to know where he's going on the big programs like Medicare, the Canada Assistance Plan, and revisions of the Bank Act.

His prestige was greatly enhanced by his last-minute intervention in the disastrous strike of Quebec Longshoremen, and he was given much credit for settling it. Just before that he made two speeches in the United States in which he took a strong line independent of, and in some respects in opposition to, the U. S. policy on NATO.

These were important speeches, creative speeches, the kind that indicate vigorous and intelligent leadership in international affairs.

All these developments have strengthened him as leader and as Prime Minister, and probably also provide him with some measure of mild amusement and irony as he considers the change within a few months.

So Mr Pearson is riding high for the moment. But he probably appreciates as much as his very sternest critics how ephemeral his position is, and how easily it can be assaulted.

Mr. Justice Spence' report on the Gerda Munsinger affair, expected by the end of June, can and probably will rail the political waters all the summer.

And his private and debilitating engagement with John Diefenbaker is something very real and dangerous. In moments of political crisis, as are sure to come, this feud damages Canada and the quality of political life.

Mr. Pearson, who doesn't have a best to remain in power, does stand now in a stronger position. But he is not likely to use to prolong his career. He is strong- er because his party is defending him He is stronger because the Liberal vote in Quebec is no longer the Government of Quebec, but is heard as loudly in Ottawa from Quebec members

About all he asks is that his strength last through crucial tax negotiations with the provinces and that his prestige last through Centennial Year.

THE END

(By Dave Oldend)

This is the end. I have reached the goal.

That sounds awfully pompous, doesn't it? Actually, what I'm trying to say is that, beginning to-day, our entire stock of new and used furniture, stoves, ect. is up for grabs. I won't even mention prices, they're so ridiculous. All I wish to do is clear our stock, and give to you, my most valued asset, an opportunity to save a bunch of bucks.

Besides the above mentioned goods, I also have a collection of furnace controls, filters, humidifiers, tools, brass fittings, fans, blowers and oh just all kinds of junk. Why I bought the stuff, I'll never know, but it's here in the pile somewhere, and it can be yours for hauling away, almost that is.

Come and get the furnace of your choice, for less money than you ever thought possible.

Nurses Chapter Meets

The Killam Chapter No. 39 AARN held their 8th meeting June 14, 1966 with 17 members and 3 guests present. Mrs. Peggy Orr gave an interesting account of the AARN convention which she and Mrs. Agnes Hilbor recently attended in Calgary.

In her president's address before more than 800 nurses in the Calgary Inn. Miss Frances Moore traced the growth of the new structure. It is so designed to involve the active general duty nurse more and decentralize some of the activities and channels of communication from the provincial to the district level. Mr. Harvey W. Adams of Ottawa, director of information for the department of national health and welfare, told the delegates to the Alberta Association of Registered Nurses that the challenge that faces the nursing profession it to get the message across to those most concerned. Those are the doctors, the patients, the hospital boards and above all, the general public.

The motion was passed that our chapter send a token donation to the Canadian Mental Health Association.

A gavel, hand made, by Mr. Bert George was contributed to the Killam Chapter.

We were enlightened with "much ed by Sisters Angelica and Lourdes. ed by Sisters Angelica and Lourdes Sister Angelica spoke on Conciliation Awards from A.R.A. (Alberta Hospital Association) and Nurses Salary Schedules. Sister Lourdes spoke briefly on the New Alberta Medical Plan.

Sister St. Bride told us that a Mr. Nese and Theret specialist from Edmonton would gladly honor us with a talk at a future meeting.

Canadian Lutherans To Become Autonomous In Centenial Year

SEDGEWICK—Centenial year in Canada will have special meaning for many Lutherans The Canada District of The American Lutheran Church has committed itself to become autonomous January 1st, 1967. The decision came at the 4th Annual Convention of the Church which was held in Saskatoon, June 13-17 (recently.) The vote for autonomy was a decisive one indicating a clear and positive concern that the Lutheran Church be better able to address itself to the Canadian scene. The Constituting Convention of the new Evangelical Lutheran Church of Canada will be held in Regina early in November.

In other business at the Convention, Dr. Karl Holfeld was re-elected President, of the 78,000 member Church which finds its main support in Western Canada.

Lay delegate Rolf Jacobsen of Bashaska attended the historic Convention.

The Evangelical Lutheran Church of Canada is looking forward to cooperating with other Lutherans in Canada, through a new Lutheran Council in Canada, which also expects to begin operation in 1967. The other major Lutheran bodies in Canada are the Lutheran Church in America, and the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

Hardisty Hi-Lites

Mrs. Annie Alderdyce has returned from visiting Allan and Ann at Prince Rupert, B.C. Mrs. Helen Laughlin returned with her to visit old friends.

Mrs. Hazel Armstrong spent the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hambaugh.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald McShane went to Calgary recently to attend the funeral of Mr. Jack McClinden. The sympathy of all is extended to Mrs Betty Kells on the passing of her father, Mr Bainbridge, at Innisfail.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Elengquist and Mr. and Mrs. Perry Powell are visiting relatives at Dawson, Minnesota.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Matthews spent a couple of days at the Laurie Blades farm at Gleniea.

Mrs. Bessie Miles of Vancouver is visiting with her son John and family.

Recently renewing acquaintances in town were Mr. and Mrs. Art Taylor of Prince Albert, Sask.

A truck accident near Biggar, Sask., last week, resulted in the hospitalization of two Hardisty pipe fitters. Milt Sims and Patrick Madden. Both were taken to hospital at Wilkie. Milt suffered a broken vertebrae, and will be some time in hospital. He transferred to St. Anne's, Hardisty, on Thursday. Patrick had a broken hand and other undetermined injuries, at time of writing he was still in Wilkie, though it was hoped he could soon be in hospital home.

Recent callers at the Lee Tennis home were Mrs Dan Tenney and sons. Victor of Vancouver and Leighton of Ontario. Pioneers of the district may remember Mr. Tenney as running a butcher shop in Hardisty some 50 years ago. He is at present a pat ent in Rosehaven.

Recent guests at the Ed Rose home were Ed's cousin, Mr. Harry Thompson and Mrs. Thompson of Everett. Wash.

Modern Cottages Being Built At Hardisty Lake

HARDISTY— On Friday afternoon last, several women of Hardisty motored out to the Harrison Cabin at the far end of Hardisty Lake to spend a most enjoyable "Tail-feat."

After serving a most delicious lunch the Heetsen took her guests out on the "Sub-Deck" which commands a beautiful view of Hardisty Lake through the branches of trees which shade the short distance between cabin and lake-shore.

This lovely home is most modernly being equipped with hot and cold running water, bath-room, Hydro, T.V. and so on (I secretly thought the name— "Bride-Awes" a most appropriate name for this cabin.)

It is quite gratifying to see so many summer cottages being built just opposite along the shore of our little Lake. One reason for this popular "Building Boom" could be attributed, possibly to the fact of Hardisty Lake being so near to the town of Hardisty itself. Also the sandy beach is an added attraction.

I wonder if our town-folks appreciate the beautiful summer resort which lies practically" in our back yard", and as it grows in popularity the town Hardisty itself should also grow. Let us hope so.
